OIL MEN TO DISCUSS LAW WITH MORONES

They Will Begin Parley Today, at Mexico's Invitation, Looking to Accord on Enforcement.

RETROACTIVITY IS DENIED

Calles Government Charges Move Is Afoot to Stir Up Hostility Between Mexico and Us.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 19 (AP).—Representatives of the various American and other foreign oil companies will begin tomorrow informal discussions with Luis Morones, Secretary of Industry, Commerce and Labor, at his invitation, looking to an agreement on details of the enforcement of the petroleum and alien land laws, which are under his department.

The regulations governing oil concessions will go into effect on Jan. 1. While some companies have acted in conformity with some, at least, of the Government's requirements, there are others which have not yet applied for concessions.

The hope is expressed by the department that a mutually satisfactory understanding will be reached.

The law regulating the petroleum industry again is defended in a statement which the department issued last night.

The statement declares that because the time limit granted the oil companies (Jan. 1) is expiring, a campaign against the Mexican Government has been started, "the purpose of which is to create a hostile situation among two peoples whose interests cannot be those of a small group who attempt to disown the laws issued by a sovereign country."

The statement adds that the oil law is not one of despoliation, but one of revindication, containing nothing that is not just and moral. Previously acquired rights, it says, are fully recognized.

The department goes on to say that Mexico's oil legislation establishes respect for the rights created by other laws and that only through malice and bad faith can the law be considered retroactive. The Government has not applied the law retroactively and does not intend to do so. Besides, the Mexican courts would not sanction such action, the statement says.

The Mexican Government has given proofs of its desire to apply the law in a broad-minded and liberal spirit, it is stated. This is established by the fact that some of the most important oil companies are complying with the law and have applied for the necessary concessions confirming their rights, the statement adds.

In conclusion the declaration is made that the Mexican Government has maintained an attitude of serenity in the face of the campaign against its rights and principles, convinced that truth will win and hoping that the reluctant oil producers may follow the example of the companies which have already sought concessions.

MYSTERY IN DAMAGE TO WARSHIP AND DOCK

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 19.—An accident to the battleship Yawuz, late the Goeben, and the floating dock at Ismid is shrouded in mystery and no reports about it whatever appear in the local press. Doubtless this is due to the fact that Ismid is in the military zone.

From a trustworthy source it is learned that some pontoons of the dock collapsed and a good deal of damage was done. The dock was built at Ismid by a German firm with German material, b ut largely with local labor. The Yawuz and the dock were both heavily insured with Lloyd's—it is said through Berlin—to cover the risk of accident attendant on the delicate operation of putting the Yawuz into dock.

The figures of the total amount of insurance differ, but it is believed to be about £1,250,000, the premium on this being about 10 per cent. A witness reports that the Yawuz herself is moored off Ismid, apparently undamaged.

PARIS, Dec. 19.—The Central Committee of the French Socialist Party today decided to bring up at the next meeting of the Second Internationale statements made last week in the German Reichstag alleging collusion between Russian Bolsheviki and German Nationalists. A resolution adopted by unanimous vote reads:

"The Secretary is charged with asking the executive committee of the Socialist Labor Internationale to examine at its next session the international scope of the revelations made from the tribune in the Reichstag by Deputies of the Social Democratic Party, particularly concerning the question of armaments manufactured in Russia for public and private organizations in Germany."

The French Socialists decided meanwhile to gather all documents and other information relating to activities endangering European peace.

PRINCE TO SAIL DEC. 29.

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 19 (AP).—Prince William of Sweden, King Gustav's second son, will sail from Cherbourg Dec. 29 for a lecture tour of the United States. Speaking today of his mission, he said:

"I have no pretension to being considered a scientist. My lectures and films will be descriptive of my experiences and adventures in the black continent of Africa from a sporting viewpoint, the life of the dwarf peoples, gorillas and wild game as seen with the camera. For the rest, my visit will be that of a private gentleman studying the daily life of the American people and avoiding as much as possible official functions. My brother, the Crown Prince, I consider has done that for me."

AMERICAN TREATY A GAIN, SAYS CHIARI

MAPS COURSE FOR REPUBLIC

He Hopes It Will Obtain, In Later Negotiations With United States, Advantages Now Denied.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, Dec. 19.—In an interview published in El Tiempo, President Chiari refuses to express an opinion on the damage to Panama in case the new treaty with the United States is rejected, saying:

"Although I have definitely formed an opinion on that question, I feel that, due to my position as head of the Government, my opinion would be misinterpreted."

To the question, "Are you satisfied with the treaty?" he replied:

"I would be completely satisfied if Panama could have obtained all we desired. As you understand, in negotiations of this kind it is not possible to obtain the maximum of the concessions desired by both parties. The points of view of one and the other are not exactly the same."

He expressed the belief that the new treaty was better than the old because its more definite language made exactly clear the obligations and rights of both parties. He also thought President Coolidge had sufficient friends in the Senate to obtain the passage of the treaty by the United States.

In closing the interview he said:

"Attention may be called to the fact that the new treaty does not close the doors against new negotiations in the course of time. By conducting ourselves seriously, governing ourselves judiciously, establishing between Panamians and Americans ties of mutual intelligence and confraternity and sincere, loyal friendship, with a true spirit of helpfulness and cooperation, as fortunately this administration has been practicing, we may be able to obtain later what has not been possible at this time.

"We must be convinced that this is the only reasonable, patriotic policy for Panama in its relations with the United States,and I shall not depart from that line of conduct so long as I have the responsibility as head of the Government. The National Assembly will decide the fate of the treaty. I am confident that august body will study it serenely and will conduct itself patriotically, inspired only by the best interests of the country."

The Committee of the National Assembly now studying the treaty asserts the ten days allowed it are insufficient and extension of time is probable. It is not likely that the treaty will be reported again to the Assembly before January.

NICARAGUA REFUSES GUATEMALA MEDIATION

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Dec. 19 (AP).—Official announcement was made today that Nicaragua had refused Guatemala's offer to mediate the difficulties between the opposing factions in Nicaragua. It was stated that the Government of President Diaz had been recognized by all important countries.

The Government also announced that its forces had defeated a band of rebels at Quilali after a fierce fight. The rebel losses were seven killed and fourteen wounded, and the Government's one killed and seven wounded.

Airplanes a re said to have located a large group of rebels near the Pacific, evidently awaiting a filibustering steamer with arms. The Government has started 400 troops for the scene.

Girl Dies in Auto Smash Near Bath.

BATH, N. Y., Dec. 19 (AP).—Evelyn Marshall, 7 years old, was killed and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Marshall, were injured tonight when their automobile skidded on the slippery highway between Wyland and Cohocton, ran into the ditch and hit a telegraph pole. Coroner Selleck investigated the accident. Mrs. Marshall's injuries are serious, but probably will not prove fatal.

BLUE LAWS BROKEN BY 26 IN ORANGE

SHOWS WILL OPEN SUNDAY

Special to The New York Times.

ORANGE, N. J., Dec. 19.—Michael N. Steinberg, attorney for motion picture theatres, gathered evidence today against violators of the Sunday closing law. He repeated that he had found twenty-six violators and that he would put evidence before Police Judge John I. Burke tomorrow.

Mr. Steinberg said that he had found a florist, a laundryman, several bootblacks, a pharmacist, a dentist, a taxicab driver and a butcher doing business. Mr. Steinberg said that the Royal Theatre, owned by his clients, would open for regular performances next Sunday, but today the only performance was a concert in celebration of Chanuka by pupils of a Hebrew school. The permit for the concert was issued by Mayor Frank J. Murray and approved by Joseph T. McGonnell, Chief of Police.

In the tour of the attorney seeking Sabbath violators he visited the gasoline filling station owned by Anthony McGonnell, who is a brother of the Police Chief. The lawyer also dropped into the office of Dr. John Pinsky, Main Street dentist. James Smith of Maplewood, N. J., was having a tooth treated.

"Isn't a man allowed to have a toothache on Sunday?" asked Dr. Pinsky.

"Not according to the Blue Law," responded Mr. Steinberg, smiling.

Movies Open in Irvington.

Special to The New York Times.

IRVINGTON, N. J., Dec. 19.—This town, which was the starting point of agitation to open the movies despite the section of the 1854 Vice and Immorality act which prohibited playhouses doing business on the Sabbath, enjoyed the movies today. About 2,000 persons attended the performances, which started at 4:30 P. M.

Members of the Irvington Ministerium, an organization of Protestant clergymen, who protested against Sunday movies and induced the authorities to close the showhouses, had no statement to make on the open theatres.

The motion picture theatre proprietors opened an offensive last Sunday and determined that if their theatres must remain closed all other forms of business activity must likewise cease, caused the arrest of ninety-eight persons. The cases of fourteen of the persons arrested will come up in court next week.

The motion picture men, busy in their boxoffices, made no effort to repeat their campaign of a week ago. Harry J. Stanley, Commissioner of Public Safety, said that no complaints had been made to him. On Saturday he served notice that any complaints would have to be filed with him on Monday, so tomorrow may see some protests made.

HITS BINDING OUT SYSTEM.

Secretary Davis Says Pennsylvania Should Abolish Its Practice.

READING, Pa., Dec. 19 (AP).—The binding out of children to render service in return for food, clothing and lodging should not be permitted, James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor, asserted in an address here today.

Mr. Davis, who is Dictator General of the World Loyal Order of Moose, was the principal speaker at the dedication of the $1,200,000 Moose Temple for Reading Lodge No. 155, said to be the largest temple of the order.

Emphasizing the wealth of the State, Secretary Davis said that it was the duty of Pennsylvania to turn out "the greatest product of all-healthy children, sturdy in body, clean in mind."

"In Pennsylvania," he said, "dependent children still may be bound out to render for food, clothing and lodging. That will no longer do in these enlightened times."

UPSHAW DENOUNCES NEW YORK WETNESS

Georgia Congressman Says the State Has Seceded From Union Through Dry Law Stand.

BIDS US TAKE NEW VOWS

Calls Referendum "Inane" and Attacks Roosevelt, Smith, Butler and Wadsworth.

Charging that New York State had seceded, morally and constitutionally, from the Union through its opposition to the Eighteenth Amendment, Congressman William D. Upshaw of Georgia urged yesterday that the citizens of the State take new oaths of allegiance to the Constitution and abandon what he described as "their futile opposition to prohibition."

Congressman Upshaw, who was speaking at a law and order rally in the Calvary Baptist Church, attacked Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt for his endorsement of modification of the Eighteenth Amendment and described the recent New York referendum on prohibition as a "piece of inane and indeterminate folly."

"Mr. Roosevelt's views on prohibition are a jumble of clashing inconsistencies," Mr. Upshaw said. "His statement that prohibition has produced more crime and corruption than the nation ever knew before is not proved by the records. It is a tragedy of morals that so many young men of means are fighting prohibition. These pampered sons of gilded wealth use the American flag to protect their palaces of pleasure and their cellars of intoxicating liquor, but they trample the Constitution beneath their feet every time they add to their stocks of debauching poison."

He referred to Governor Smith as "the hero of the outlawed liquor interests of America," but added that not all the opposition to the Eighteenth Amendment came from Democrats. "He must not wear alone the wantonly wet crown of the Empire State, for Nicholas Murray Butler would grow green with envy and Senator Wadsworth would turn in his political grave if Al Smith were credited with wearing alone the damp diadem of apostate New York," Mr. Upshaw said.

WIDENS SERVICE TO ALIENS.

Jewish Women's Body Finds More to Do, Despite Quota Laws.

Restricted immigration has expanded, not decreased, the work of immigrant aid organizations, according to Miss Florina Lasker, Chairman of the Department of Immigrant Aid of the National Council of Jewish Women. Miss Lasker, in a report made public yesterday, points out that the quota law has enabled her organization to enter new fields of immigrant education and international service.

"In this respect, at least, the new immigration law has been a good thing," said Miss Lasker. "The average layman doesn't know why immigration societies continue to function under the new law, but we have found that there are still many tasks of the utmost importance which must be performed.

"The reduction of services to new arrivals has been more than overbalanced by an extension of services to foreign-born women and girls who have been in this country a number of years, but who still feel themselves strangers."

Likewise, Miss Lasker reports, there has been an extension of services abroad to women and children cut off from relatives in the United States by the new Immigration law. A Bureau of International Service has been established, owing to the large number of such cases. During the last year 2,501 cases were handled by this bureau, the report asserts.

RINGLING STILL IN GARDEN.

Chairman of Board Denies Attempt Was Made to Wrest Control.

John Ringling, circus owner and Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, yesterday denied a report that an attempt had been made to buy out his share of the stock in the company. The purchase of a part of Mr. Ringling's holdings was announced yesterday by E. F. Hutton & Co. in behalf of a group which was said to include the Henry Phipps estate and George L. (Tex) Rickard.

"I wish to state that I have not sold out my interests in the Madison Square Garden and am one of the largest stockholders in the company and am Chairman of the Board of Directors," said Mr. Ringling. "Mr. Rickard and I are in thorough accord as to policy, and have been at all times, and we are working in perfect harmony. The statement that Mr. Rickard wanted to buy my share or that I wanted to buy his is entirely without foundation and nothing of the kind was ever thought of or discussed between us."

HILL WILL PRESENT NEW WET MEASURE

Definition in High Test Case.

Such is the definition of the United States District Court, ratified by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, accepted by the Department of Justice and approved by the Prohibition Unit, given in the test case of the United States versus Hill.

"The definition of 'intoxicating' exists at the present time under the Volstead act, and there is no reason why the beneficial provision of Section 29 should not be extended in accordance with the New York referendum. Two and three-quarter per cent. cider can be legally made in the home of the farmer, and from 8 to 12 per cent. wine can be legally made in the home of the farmer, because it is legally non-intoxicating. If it is legally not intoxicating, there is no reason why in those States which desire it such beverages, including malt beverages, may not be commercially sold under such restrictions as such States may make."

A lively debate on the wet-dry issue is anticipated in the Senate on the bill to reorganize the Prohibition unit. As amended in committee it provides that the Prohibition Commissioner be appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury instead of the President, as originally proposed.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19 (AP).—A nation-wide campaign for law observance and enforcement will be made, said a call issued tonight for the annual meeting here on Jan. 6 of the Citizens' Committee of One Thousand for Law Observance. Fred B. Smith, who issued the call, said "intolerable conditions exist" and "anarchy will result unless all Americans realize that the laws we like and the laws we don't like must be observed."

Western Union Warns of Frauds.

Imposters representing themselves as Western Union messengers delegated to make Christmas collections are again active, it was announced yesterday. The Western Union Telegraph Company has called the attention of its patrons to the fact that no messenger or other employe is permitted to solicit Christmas gratuities and asks that persons making such representations be reported to the local Western Union manager.

LAST CAMPAIGN DINNER HELD BY FEDERATION

The final dinner of the campaign of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies was held last night at the Hotel Pennsylvania. It was a testimonial to John Block and John Mack, heads of the ready-to-wear division of the campaign. Those present paid $10 a couple for the privilege of attending, which added $30,500 to the fund of $4,720,000.

All but the $220,000 has been raised, and it was announced last night that there seemed no doubt that the remaining sum would be contributed before the first of the year. So last night's affair was a celebration rather than a fund-raising dinner. It lasted until late in the evening and was followed by dancing.

Silver plaques bearing the signatures of a group of business leaders were presented to the guests of honor and to Oscar Abel, councilor of the ready-to-wear trades in the campaign. Short talks of congratulation were made by Jacob Sperber, Solomon Lowenstein, executive director of the Federation; Felix M. Warburg, Chairman of the Federation Board; Arthur Lehman, Z. D. Bernstein, Henry F. Samstag and Jonah J. Goldstein, who presided. The cloak, suit and dress groups contributed $200,000 toward the Federation fund.

City to Get Jenny Lind Statue.

A statue of Jenny Lind, the Swedish singer, is planned by the Jenny Lind Memorial Association to be placed in Battery Park near the old Castle Garden, where she first appeared in the United States, it was announced yesterday. The sculptor of the winning statue, Mrs. Vicken von Post Totten, has been asked to submit an estimate of the cost of the memorial.

THEATRE MEN FACE TRIALS.

Seven Accused of Permitting Unaccompanied Minors to See Movies.

Seven ticket takers in Bronx theatres were held for trial in the Bronx Court of Special Sessions when arraigned before Magistrate Vitale yesterday on a charge of having admitted unaccompanied minors to moving picture shows. The complaints were made by members of the staff of the Bronx Children's Society who collected their evidence on Saturday and made the arrests. Bail in each instance was fixed at $25.

The action was taken at the instance of Frederick A. Wurzbach, President of the society, after he had received an anonymous letter that his agents were permitting the violations. He was indignant and offered a reward of $1,000 to any one who could prove that his men were dishonest.

RUG INQUIRY REPORT GOES TO TREASURY

PROSECUTIONS MAY COME

Oriental Exporters as Well as Importers Here Are Said to Be Involved.

S. J. M. Kracke, Appraiser of the Port of New York, left for Washington last night to confer with Treasury Department officials on the results of a two-months' special investigation of alleged widespread irregularities in the valuation of Oriental rugs to this country. It is understood that the investigation, which has embraced rug importers here as well as the Oriental exporters, probably will result in some prosecutions before it is concluded.

United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner, who is at his home recovering from a recent operation for mastoiditis, said he did not believe any cases arising from the rug importations had yet been brought to his office. However, it was thought the whole matter would be placed before him when Mr. Kracke returns from Washington on Wednesday.

A person who has been in close touch with the investigation said that there were one or two cases involving New York importers, which "would require a great deal of explanation."

The possibility of prosecutions was explained as arising from what was described as a conspiracy to have rugs going through the customs here appraised at a figure far below their actual value. Mr. Kracke, reached on the telephone yesterday, said that there was no evidence of corruption within the Customs Service.

Importers here and exporters in Asia Minor, it was said, had worked out a system of close cooperation by which the actual payment for the rugs and the official payment presented to the Customs Bureau were two very different figures. The total appraised value of Oriental rugs brought into this port in a year is approximately $80,000,000. The undervaluation is estimated at about 50 per cent. The duty on such rugs is 52 per cent. At this rate, the annual loss in customs duties to the United States was estimated at more than $15,000,000.

POLICE DEPARTMENT HONORS ITS DEAD

Tributes Paid to 32 Who Died in Year, Ten While in the Performance of Duty.

HEROISM OF FORCE PRAISED

Congressman Cohen, In Address, Hopes New Moves to Curb Gunmen Will Cut Department's Toll.

Memorial services under the auspices of the Honor Legion of the Police Department in honor of the thirty-two members of the department who died during the last year were held yesterday afternoon at the auditorium of the Heckscher Foundation, Fifth Avenue and 104th Street. Two hundred members of the legion, headed by the Police Department band, marched from the Arsenal Police Station at Sixty-ninth Street up Fifth Avenue to the auditorium.

Ten men to whom tributes were paid died in the performance of their duty. The total was the largest in the history of the department for a single year, and caused Congressman William W. Cohen in the course of his address to remark:

"I am glad that one step has been taken to keep down this list, in that motorcycle policemen are now permitted to carry their guns outside their uniform coats. The length of this list re-emphasizes the dangers of your work, your facing duty without knowledge of what you must meet. The policeman goes after his man, who may be a thug or a gunman, the other fellow having the advantage, liable to pull a gun while the policeman must take second place. Let us hope that you get to the trigger first, next year, and that our honor list will be shorter."

Impressive ceremonies marked the reading of the roll-call. Sergeant William J. Gallagher, ritualist of the legion, read the names of the departed men, and as Patrolman Charles Mankopf answered "absent" for each who died of natural causes or "died in the performance of his duty" the flame of a candle was snuffed out. In addition to these thirty-two were two larger candles for the members of the department who died in the war and for those who died previous to this year.

The sobs of mothers and other relatives of the deceased policemen were heard as the names were called and the replies came from a voice strange to them. Buglers sounded taps at the conclusion of the ceremony and the Police Department Glee Club sang "Nearer, My God, to Thee," while standard bearers, one holding the American flag, the other the banner of the Honor Legion, stood at attention. Congressman Cohen fastened ten gold stars to the banner on which the memory of many other policemen is preserved.

Commissioner McLaughlin was scheduled to address the gathering but was kept away by another engagement. Senator William L. Love; the Rev. James Dunnigan, Chaplain of the Sixty-ninth Regiment; the Rev. Joseph A. McCaffrey, police chaplain; the Rev. William Hughes of the church of St. Vincent Ferrer, spoke.

Mr. Cohen said he regretted legislation enacted during the year to increase pensions for the wives or mothers of deceased policemen was not retroactive. He promised to confer with Mayor Walker and the Attorney General in the hope of amending the act to remedy this defect. He considered it unfair, he said, to keep from the families of men who died before the act was passed the benefits that had been denied them in previous years.

Father McCaffrey referred to the Police Department as the "greatest in the world" and said the dangers of policemen in New York were greater than those faced by soldiers in action.

"The New York policeman faces the most severe dangers possible with no one near him to bring aid," he said. "He is responsible for his territory."

The ten men who died in the performance of their duty were, Edward T. Byrnes, William Higgins, Louis J. Kieth, Stephen J. McPhillips, Oscar A. H. Oehlerking, Charles H. Reilly, John Singer and Frank White, Arthur Kanny and Frank Daskiewics.

DIES TALKING TO FRIENDS.

Robert S. Brown, sixty-nine years old, whose home was at Heberton Avenue and Bennett Street, Port Richmond, Staten Island, died suddenly yesterday while talking to friends in the drug store of Frederick C. He had been Chief Clerk of the Court of Special Sessions in the Borough of Richmond for twenty-five years.

Mr. Brown was a member of the Democratic County Committee and had held various political positions before he became Chief Clerk. Last summer he managed the Richmond County Fair in Dongan Hills. He is survived by his wife, three daughters and two sons.

JEWS IN PROTEST AGAINST RUMANIA

HE EXPECTS IMPROVEMENT

Resolution Calls for Meetings to Condemn Alleged Outrages in the Balkans.

A proposal to lay before the United States Congress a protest against persecution of Jews and other racial and religious minorities in Rumania was discussed at a conference of the American Jewish Congress at the Hotel Pennsylvania last night. The proposal was made by Max D. Steuer, Chairman of the Advisory Council, and was debated by six members of the House of Representatives and two Congressmen-elect.

Representative Adolph J. Sabath of Chicago insisted that this step should not be taken unless absolutely necessary.

"In these days in our country I advise the greatest caution," said Mr. Sabath. "Even in this great free nation of ours, during the last seven or eight years there has been a certain movement on foot that has not yet died out."

"Pretty nearly," interrupted Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, President of the Jewish Congress.

"I hope you are right," Mr. Sabath replied. "I believe if we could leave it alone it will die a natural death shortly.

Congress Opposes Interference.

"The policy of Congress is not over-friendliness toward interference with conditions abroad and I am afraid that if we were, at this time, to make any move it might not meet with success. I'd rather wait until the time is ripe to make such a protest."

Mr. Sabath declared that he was optimistic "that conditions in Rumania will be improved shortly."

Congressman-elect William W. Cohen of New York said he knew little of the facts, but promised his help. Representative Meyer Jacobstein of Rochester, N. Y., declared that the American people, at this time, are "rather out of patience with minorities."

"As Jews in the American Congress," he said, "it would not only be improper but harmful to our Jewish cause to make a protest against the atrocities in Rumania. We can, however, make such a protest as Americans against inhumanities."

Representative Nathan D. Perlman said that if the facts are compiled and presented at the proper time "they will be listened to."

Christian's Protest Favored.

Taking up the suggestion of Federal Judge Julian W. Mack, that it might be more advisable to have the protest come from a Christian, Representative Samuel Dickstein said he believed this might be done.

Other Representatives who promised their aid were Mrs. Florence P. Kahn of California, William I. Sirovich of New York and Emanuel Celler of Brooklyn.

A resolution was adopted to hold public meetings throughout the country in the next few weeks to consider Rumanian persecutions. Part of the preamble read as follows:

"We utter a solemn protest against the persecution of our brethren in Rumania, as evidenced by the continual anti-Semitic agitation and demonstrations of animosity against the Jews, and more recently by the assaults upon the lives and property of Jews in the cities of Kishineff, Kalrash and Bucharest. Our protest is directed against the Government of Rumania which has done nothing either to punish the perpetrators of the outrages or to suppress the hideous efforts to provoke aggression upon the Jews, or to avert the calamities which are inflicted on the Jews of Rumania."

PROTEST SENT TO CRETZIANO.

Rumanian Jews Here Write to Minister About Pogroms.

The United Rumanian Jews of America, having headquarters at 799 Broadway, has addressed to George Cretziano, Minister at Washington, an open letter dealing with the reported pogroms and persecution of their race in Rumania. The letter, signed by Leo Wolfson, President, and Herman Speiers, Executive Secretary, cites deeds done at Cermatti, Kishineff and Calarasi, and adds:

"Pogroms-mob attacks against the Jews, instigated by or made with the connivance or approval of the Government, used to be a Russian institution in the dark days of Czardom rule. Now we have a pogrom—yes, a pogrom in the real Russian style, perpetrated by Rumanian hoodlums under a Rumanian régime. We say, deliberately, that the Kishineff pogrom of 1926 and the excesses which were instituted by the so-called students could not have taken place if the Government had done its simple duty. To its everlasting shame it has not done it, and history will hold it responsible for this crime against the Jews."

A. F. OF L. AIDS FIGHT ON CLOAK UNION REDS

Federation Will Let Workers Choose Between It and the Communists, Sigman Says.

TO FINANCE REORGANIZATION

Green Names Committee of Five to Help Leaders—Employes May Be Relieved of Debts to Union.

The American Federation of Labor has acted to assist the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union to reorganize its New York locals, finance them and give the rank and file an opportunity to decide whether they will remain within the labor movement or "trail along with the Communist Party, which has ruled the last strike," declared President Morris Sigman of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union yesterday.

The first step in its program of assistance, said Mr. Sigman in his statement, was the appointment by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor of five prominent labor leaders to cooperate with the international officers in their efforts to "rid the New York unions of Communist influence."

The men designated were Matthew Woll, Vice President of the A. F. of L.; Hugh Frayne, New York organizer of the federation; John J. Sullivan, President of the New York State Federation of Labor; Joseph Ryan, President of the Central Trades and Labor Council of New York, and John F. O'Hanlon, legislative representative of the State Federation of Labor at Albany.

Mr. Woll accepted Honorary Chairmanship of the cloakmakers' Finance Committee, which is seeking funds to rehabilitate the organization after the disastrous strike under Left Wing and Communist management. Mr. Frayne accepted as Honorary Chairman of the Law Committee.

Members of the cloak and dress unions will probably be relieved of all indebtedness to the union. The Board of Directors of the General Strike Committee which superseded the committee of similar name which conducted the strike will meet tonight and make a definite decision that will relieve the strikers of the necessity of making back payments to the union. Those with union books dated last July will be registered at the reorganized local unions on payment of fifty cents.

Mr. Sigman explained that the action would be taken to relieve the members whose burdens during the twenty-five weeks' strike were considerable, as some of those who worked in settled shops had to pay as high as 20 per cent. of their weekly income to the strike fund.

Beginning tomorrow the Joint Provisional Committee of the cloakmakers and dressmakers will enroll the members as a preliminary to reorganizing the unions under the powers granted it by the General Executive Board. Registration the first week will be by shops and the second week by individuals.

The arbitrators in the cloakmakers' strike announced yesterday that a decision would be made public today or tomorrow in the dispute between the American Cloak and Suit Manufacturers' Association and their employes. The arbitrators are Judge Bernard L. Shientag, Colonel Herbert Lehman and Professor Lindsay Rogers of Columbia University.

OFFERS HIS FACTORY TO HELP SAVE WARE

WARE, Mass., Dec. 19 (AP).—An offer to turn over the management of a small factory and its equipment to any competent person who will continue to operate it here was announced today by Philip Deslauriers, a hosiery manufacturer.

Mr. Deslauriers, who is almost 70 years old and has other business interests, said he believed it should be in the hands of some one who could devote full time to developing the business. The factory is equipped with four modern knitting machines and is now busy on advance orders.

His offer gave an indication of the spirit in which the town is preparing to meet its threatened industrial emergency due to the proposal of the directors of the Otis Company, largest of the town's industries, to move their mills South. The possible loss of its principal manufactory stirred the town to new interests in its future welfare and brought plans for expanding its smaller industries.

It was announced that Mr. Deslauriers's offer, made through the Ware Chamber of Commerce as his contribution toward meeting the crisis, would not be withdrawn even though the Otis Company decided to remain here. Stockholders of the Otis Company are scheduled to meet at Boston tomorrow to consider a plan prepared by an independent stockholders' committee which hoped to provide a basis on which the company might continue to operate here.

The New England Council, through A. Lincoln Filene, Chairman of its Research Committee, has sent representatives to Ware to study the situation. The council has recommended that if the Otis Company moves South, the community arrange to have an industrial survey made preliminary to formulating a definite plan for obtaining new occupants of such factory space as may be abandoned and for expanding existing industries.

Biography of Harrison Authorized.

An authorized biography of President Benjamin Harrison has been undertaken by Professor A. T. Volwiler of Wittenberg College, Springfield, Ohio, according to announcement by Mrs. Mary Lord Harrison, widow of the former President, yesterday. Mrs. Harrison said she had turned over to Dr. Volwiler all of her private papers and the Harrison manuscripts which she has placed in the Library of Congress. "I realize that there is much material yet to be gathered," she said. "The biographer hopes that many letters and documents will be brought to light as the work proceeds and that old friends of the General who are still living and descendants of other contemporaries will offer access to manuscripts in their possession."

Kitten Saves Six in Fire.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19 (AP).—A kitten proved a hero yesterday in a dwelling house fire, saving the lives of six persons. It clawed at Meyer Rosenblatt's face until he awoke, but its little mistress, Blanche Solomon, 6, perished in the flames, the only one of the family not saved.

AIM TO END FRAUDS IN PENNSYLVANIA

REFORM IN REGISTRATION

Curbs Put on Agents—Mandatory Opening of Ballot Boxes Proposed.

HARRISBURG, Dec. 19 (AP).—Recommendation for revision of the Corrupt Practices act to limit primary expenditures of a candidate to 10 cents a voter based on the largest number of votes cast at the last general election for any candidate of the party in his district, is made in a report published today by the executive committee of the Commission of Seventy-six. The report declares:

"The necessity for all of the measures which we recommended was doubly proved at the Spring primary and the Fall election held this year."

"Fraudulent registrations, fraudulent counting or failure to count votes and illegal assistance besmirched both the primary and the election. Zero divisions abounded in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh just as in 1925.

"Notwithstanding abundant evidence of fraud, ballot boxes used at the general election have not been opened in several counties of the State because there is on the statute books no law requiring them to be opened."

The commission was named by Governor Pinchot voluntarily a year ago to revise the election laws. When the extra session of the Legislature early this year failed to pass bills submitted by it, Governor Pinchot called upon the commission to make further suggestions for consideration by the 1927 session.

The report advocated mandatory opening of ballot boxes, restricting of assistance to voters, use of voting machines and permanent registration as "vitally essential to clean elections" in Pennsylvania, and said that it believed in the adoption of constitutional amendments to abolish tax qualifications for voters and give courts the right to appoint overseers of election from outside the district in which they serve.

The committee submitted the draft of a proposed new primary corrupt practices act, which, besides limiting expenditures of candidates, would substitute one agent for volunteer committees to handle money contributed for campaign purposes; would prohibit expenditures for the "dissemination of information to the public, for the employment of watchers at the polls to the number allowed by law and for the transportation of voters to and from the polls," but would allow expenditures for "rental of radio facilities."

The proposed act also would limit a candidate's personal expenses to $200, any added personal expenses to be paid by the agents; provide for all contributions and payments of expenses in excess of $5 by check; limit expenditures for a group of candidates to the largest amount which, under the act, might be spent for any individual candidate in the group.

MRS. R. H. INGERSOLL SHOOTS HER ADMIRER

mained on amicable terms. Saturday evening he called on his wife and they effected a reconciliation, which meant the end of his close friendship with Mrs. Ingersoll.

It was to his wife that Mr. Probasco turned yesterday after he was shot, for he telephoned her to come to him, and it was she who gave the alarm to the police, then rushed to his side and summoned a physician.

Police Reconstruct Shooting.

The wounded man was able to tell only fragmentarily of the tragedy, but with the aid of his statements, statements made by Mrs. Probasco and others and evidence found in the apartment they were able to reconstruct the events fairly closely. The police version was as follows:

Mrs. Ingersoll had been living in the eighth-floor front apartment at 55 Park Avenue, between Thirty-seventh and Thirty-eighth Streets, since September. It was a simply and handsomely furnished home of four rooms. Probasco had been a frequent caller, and the apartment house employes, the police said, had been informed that he was Mrs. Ingersoll's brother and was to be admitted.

Neither couple had children and neither had formally separated. Mr. Ingersoll had gone to the Hotel Pennsylvania to live and Probasco had taken a room at Thirty-eighth Street and Lexington Avenue, around the corner from Mrs. Ingersoll's apartment, while Mrs. Probasco lived in the Irving Place home of her sister.

Probasco was to have called on Mrs. Ingersoll Saturday night. He did not keep this engagement, however, but called on his wife instead. He left Mrs. Probasco late in the evening and presumably returned to his room.

Yesterday in mid-afternoon Probasco called at Mrs. Ingersoll's apartment house, according to the police, and was taken up in the elevator. Mrs. Ingersoll had been busy wrapping and addressing Christmas presents and there was a pile of them standing on a chair in the living room. There were Christmas cards and letters also. More important, there was a letter she had written to Probasco, the contents of which the detectives would not disclose, but which they said intimated that "the whole thing had been a mistake" and "something was going to happen."

Say She Returned With Pistol.

Mrs. Ingersoll immediately took him to task for having failed to see her the night before, the police version continued, and their quarrel became bitter. Probasco told her he and Mrs. Probasco were reconciled. Then he rose to leave and asked for his hat. Mrs. Ingersoll stepped into her bedroom, which looks out on Park Avenue, and came back, the detectives surmised, with the hat in one hand and a .32-calibre pistol in the other. Whether she gave warning or not the police were not sure, but they were convinced she opened fire on him and struck him with each of the three bullets she fired.

Probasco fell to the floor near the open door to the bedroom. Mrs. Ingersoll, according to the police, then fired a shot into her own body, which penetrated just below the heart. She fell back toward the bed, but did not reach it and dropped to the floor.

No one heard the shots. Probasco, however, reached for a telephone near by and telephoned his wife.

"Come quick. I've been shot," he told her, then dropped the instrument.

Mrs. Probasco telephoned the police to send help to the Park Avenue apartment and hastened there in a taxicab. This was about 4:30 P. M. According to some versions, Probasco, despite his desperate wounds, was able to open the door for her.

"I'm shot," he told his wife.

"Who shot you?" she asked.

"That woman in there," he responded, pointing toward the bedroom.

Mrs. Probasco looked in and saw the outstretched body. She tried to telephone for aid, but the telephone was an automatic instrument and she could not work it. Then she ran out into the little vestibule and rang for the elevator. When the apartment house employes were told what had happened they sent for Dr. Douglass Palmer, who has offices at 16 Park Avenue.

Probasco Rushed to Hospital.

Meanwhile Patrolman William Mosher of the East Thirty-fifth Street Station arrived and called an ambulance, which took Probasco to Bellevue Hospital. Dr. Charles Norris and Inspector John D. Coughlin both came and took charge of the investigation. Dr. Norris took possession of the letter with its supposed implication of a coming tragedy and Inspector Coughlin himself questioned Mrs. Probasco, who was still in the apartment, and friends and relatives of the dead woman and the wounded man who called.

After the inquiry was under way Dr. Norris had the body taken to the city morgue, because at that time no one had been reached who could claim it. Mrs. Ingersoll was dressed in a pink afternoon dress, and on her finger was her wedding ring, a band of white gold inset with diamonds and rubies. When her body was found she wore also a pearl necklace, which the police said was worth $15,000, and a lorgnette, whose lenses were bound in white gold.

After a lengthy conference with the detectives in the apartment Mrs. Probasco went to Bellevue and spent some time with her husband. Later she went to the East Thirty-fifth Street Station, accompanied by her attorney, and tried to have her husband removed to a private hospital. It was explained to her that this was impossible because of the technical arrest of her husband. There she told of her reconciliation with her husband the evening before the shooting, and said Probasco had gone to Mrs. Ingersoll's apartment yesterday to tell her of this. It was that, she said, which had made Mrs. Ingersoll frantic and caused the shooting.

Assistant District Attorney James P. Mara questioned Mr. Probasco last night. Upon his departure he said: "It looks like an out-and-out suicide."

Mrs. Probasco and Mr. Goldstein came out a few minutes later. Mr. Goldstein said he would try to persuade a Magistrate to hold a hearing for Mr. Probasco in the hospital this morning "so he might be moved at once to a private hospital."

Mr. Ingersoll Finally Found.

The police had difficulty finding Mr. Ingersoll to tell him of his wife's death. He was understood to be living at 81 Park Avenue, but the telephone there was reported disconnected. They eventually learned, however, that he was stopping at the Pennsylvania, and reached him there. Other friends and relatives of the two families, some of them in tears, called at the apartment last evening, but the aged and infirm husband was the most pathetic figure of them all. He arrived in a taxicab and was helped to the door and up to the apartment by Inspector Coughlin, who was awaiting him at the curb.

To the police he confirmed what they had already learned of the friendship of the dead woman and the wounded man and said he had long known of it. According to some of those conducting the investigation, this friendship had been going on for five years or more. According to others, it had lasted only eight months.

Last night at the Probasco home, 72 Irving Place, Mrs. Brown, through a family friend, said: "It was an unexpected tragedy and we are too shocked to make any comment on it."

Had Ethical Culture Wedding.

The marriage of Mr. Probasco and Miss Maud Ingersoll took place on Dec. 31, 1912, and was of particular interest since both had been prominent before their marriage, as they have been since, in philanthropic work and the feminist movement. The ceremony was performed by Dr. John Lovejoy Elliott of the Ethical Culture Society. Mr. Probasco is a nephew of the late Supreme Court Justice John McLean. The ceremony was the simple one performed by the Ethical Culture Society, in which the word obey is not used. It was in keeping also with the principles of Mrs. Probasco's agnostic father.

Robert H. Ingersoll, husband of the woman who killed herself yesterday, had come from the West as a young man, and prospered in the manufacturing and mail order businesses. He conceived the idea of the dollar watch, and with his brother, Charles H. Ingersoll, built up a tremendous business. In 1921 the company, Robert H. Ingersoll & Bro., found itself in financial difficulties, which led to bankruptcy proceedings. The company was later taken over by the Waterbury Clock Company. Mr. Ingersoll has not been active in business for several years.

FIGHTS TAX-FREE HOUSING.

Ellman Says Unfair Burden Would Fall on Unprivileged Owners.

Opposition to further tax exemption for housing projects, either by legislative enactment or action by the city authorities, was expressed again yesterday by Lawrence B. Ellman, President of the Real Estate Board of New York. Mr. Ellman declared in a statement that an emergency in the housing situation no longer existed in the city. He expressed doubt concerning the efficacy of proposals to replace tenements in "slum" districts by modern buildings with the aid of tax exemption, and asserted that it was the character of the residents rather than the character of the buildings that made a section a "slum."

Mr. Ellman said that if the proposal to exempt from taxation land condemned by so-called limited-dividend housing corporations were adopted it would throw an unfair burden upon other property owners not so favored.

The popularity of Lucky Strikes among those who sing is because these cigarettes never irritate the throat, also because they give greater enjoyment.

The Thrilling Voice of Scotti

ANTONIO SCOTTI, famous baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York City, is very careful of his voice and therefore recommends Lucky Strike.

Lucky Strikes have become the favorites of men whose priceless voices thrill their audiences, as they have with the millions, because, first, they afford greater enjoyment and second, they are certain not to irritate even the most sensitive throat.

But in addition, a costly extra process—toasting for 45 minutes—develops the hidden flavors of the choicest tobaccos and at the same time removes all "bite" and harshness.

GLEASON DISPUTES SMITH ON PARDONS

SEES UNUSUAL LENIENCY

He Puts Smith's Total for 4 Years, 10 Months at 1,789, Against 1,568 in 8 Years of 3 Other Governors.

The Bureau of Statistical Research of the Republican State Committee made public yesterday the text of a letter sent to Governor Smith by Lafayette B. Gleason, Secretary of the committee, to refute the Governor's recent assertion that a statement given publicity by the bureau with reference to the Governor's record in the matter of Executive clemency to convicts and former convicts was "grossly absurd."

Mr. Gleason's letter, to which was attached a detailed report of the pardons, commutations, reprieves and restorations to citizenship which have been granted by Governor Smith, asserts that the statements of this character which were placed in circulation had the full approval of George K. Morris, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, who assumed responsibility for them in the form they were issued by the bureau.

Mr. Gleason reiterates in his letter that the clemency cases from the time Governor Smith began his second term to September, 1926, numbered 961. He asserts that the total grants made during a period covering four years and ten months—not including the record for two months last year and eleven months of 1926—were 1,789, as compared with 1,568 during the eight years Governors Dix, Whitman and Miller held office.

"What the articles which you criticize as 'grossly absurd' show is that there has been extraordinary leniency to criminals under your Administration," Mr. Gleason wrote.

The Gleason Letter.

New York, Dec. 18, 1926.

Hon. Alfred E. Smith, Governor of the State of New York, Albany.

Dear Governor:

Chairman Morris, who has been continuously confined to his house by illness since Nov. 26 and unable to reply to your communication of Dec. 6, in which you characterize as "grossly absurd" some statements issued for publication by the Bureau of Statistical Research of the Republican State Committee with reference to executive clemency in general and your parole in 1920 of John J. (Bum) Rodgers, now in jail under a life sentence, has requested me to forward the data upon which these articles were based. For your information copies of the articles to which you refer are attached.

The records quoted by the bureau were compiled for the State Committee from the official records in the office of the Secretary of State, which are open to every citizen, and show, as stated, that from Jan. 1, 1923, to September, 1926, executive clemency was extended to three murderers, eighteen homicides, twelve robbers, forty-six burglars, eighteen receivers of stolen goods and twelve convicted of rape.

These records also show that in addition to the above clemency was granted to fifty convicted of grand larceny, forty-six convicted of assault with intent to maim or kill, six criminal anarchists, four convicted of abduction, two of forgery, three of blackmail and sixty-two of other and various offenses.

Total of 941 in Period.

Transcript of the records of the Secretary of State thus cited is herewith forwarded for your consideration and correction. The Secretary of State also informed us that 663 convicts and ex-convicts have been restored to citizenship over the period in question, making a total of 941 beneficiaries of executive power, as stated in the articles to which you refer.

You will observe that the figures quoted cover only a limited period of your tenure of office and represent only a portion of the acts of clemency extended by you. Additional figures are set forth in your public papers, published by the State of New York, for the years 1919 and 1920. They are carried out in even greater detail in the report of the Baumes Anti-Crime Committee, incorporated in the records of the State Legislature March 17, 1926.

From these sources tables covering acts of Executive clemency extended under Governors Dix, Whitman and Miller and covering your own term of office from Jan. 1, 1919, to Dec. 31, 1920, and from Jan. 1, 1925, to Oct. 31, 1925, have been prepared and are attached to this letter for your consideration and correction.

These records show that over the four-year-and-ten-month period covered by the official documents cited you extended Executive favors to a total number of 1,789, embracing the classifications of pardons, commutations, restorations to citizenship and respites in capital cases. This is an average of seven per week and does not include the clemency record for two months in 1925 and eleven months in 1926.

Acts of Executive clemency thus recorded compare with similar acts under Dix (two years) totaling 413; under Whitman (four years) of 916, and under Miller (two years) of 239. The total term period of these Governors is eight years, and the total acts of clemency recorded by them is 1,568, as against clemency extended to 1,789 convicts and ex-convicts during four years and ten months of your terms as Governor.

Explains "Executive Clemency."

As this is a letter in kind to the communication forwarded to Mr. Morris, and a copy herewith is given to the press, it should be stated for the benefit of the public, that the term "Executive clemency," as used herein includes pardons, commutations, restorations to citizenship and respites in capital cases, as noted in the accompanying tabulation and contents of this statement. Also that an act of clemency as listed does not necessarily mean a jail delivery.

What the articles which you criticize as "grossly absurd" show is that there has been extraordinary leniency to criminals under your Administration.

The report of the Prison Committee of the Association of Grand Jurors of New York County, cited in our articles, was dated Oct. 22, 1926, and a copy is attached. Addressing George W. Alger, appointed by you to investigate parole systems, this committee recommends that the pardoning power be taken from the Governor and points to the case of the notorious Bum Rodgers as a good example of the dangers of easy parole.

If you will kindly point out wherein any of the facts contained in these official records come under the classification of "grossly absurd statements," as alleged in your letter, I am sure the Bureau of Statistical Research will be glad to give public correction of the same.

In the matter of the activities of the late Bourke Cockran as attorney for Rodgers, it is gratifying to note that a letter from Mr. Cockran's law partner, given out by you, states that Mr. Cockran defended his client through successive court actions, terminating in the Court of Appeals, and solicited his commutation of sentence before you without fee.

No Desire to Be Unfair.

In closing Mr. Morris desires me to state that there is no intention or desire on the part of the Republican State Committee or its members to publish or make public any untruthful or unfair statement, and if there be any such, this committee stands ready to retract or correct the same in the interest of accuracy and fair play.

In view of the facts disclosed by the official documents herewith submitted to you, I am requested by Mr. Morris to inform you in answer to your querry, that he accepts full responsibility for the statements referred to in your letter as issued by the Bureau of Statistical Research. He does not, however, admit responsibility for these statements as altered, rewritten and published in certain newspapers.

Very truly yours,
LAFAYETTE B. GLEASON,
Secretary Republican State Committee.

Excerpt of Report to Alger.

The excerpt from the report of the Prison Committee of the Grand Jurors' Association to George W. Alger, commissioned by the Governor to investigate the prison and parole system, which was appended to Secretary Gleason's communication to the Governor and in which it was urged that the pardoning power be taken away from the Chief Executive, was as follows:

"We are concerned at this time with practical principles rather than possible limitations of laws and constitutional provisions. We firmly believe that the Governor should be relieved of the cumbersome duties of commuting sentences and the burden of granting pardons. These functions of the Governor should be transferred to a judicial board. • • •

"The parole laws are vague and the administrative practices are most liberal in granting parole to the prisoners rearrested while at liberty on parole.

"The prisoner is too readily given the benefit of the doubt. In the past criminal record of the notorious Bum Rodgers a good example of easy parole is to be found."

BERKSHIRE WILDCATS OUT.

Driven Forth by Cold, They Are Killing Deer and Scaring People.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Dec. 19.—Exceptionally cold December weather with much snow has driven wildcats from their lairs in the mountain ledges in search of food and they are attacking deer in the foothills of the Berkshires.

Yesterday Richard M. Davis, Superintendent of the New Marlboro Game Reservation, which is owned by J. Macy Willetts and family of New York, found a doe torn to pieces and partly buried in the snow. He set a trap last night and today caught a thirty-pound wildcat.

The Berkshire County Commissioners have received fifteen $10 bounty claims for wildcats killed this Fall. The snarling wildcats have so frightened women and children in Mount Washington that they do not dare go out nights.

MAYOR KILLS HIMSELF AS FAMILY AWAITS HIM

Whitt, Head of Ashland, Ky., Had Been Ill, but Apparently Had Recovered.

ASHLAND, Ky., Dec. 19 (AP).—William B. Whitt, 57, Mayor of Ashland, shot himself through the heart at his home here this afternoon while his family waited for him to join them. When a daughter went upstairs to call her father, she found him stretched on a bed, a shotgun clutched in his arms.

Letters believed to contain Whitt's explanation of his act were found in the mail box, but members of the family tonight declined to make public the contents. About a year ago, friends said, Whitt's health was very bad, but it was generally believed he had recovered.

Whitt, who was a prominent business man of Eastern Kentucky, holding interests in several local concerns, took office as Mayor the first of this year, following his election on the Democratic ticket.

RALPH HOLDEN'S WILL FILED

Leaves Estate Indirectly to New York Skin and Cancer Hospital.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 19.—Upon the death of Miss Halis K. Holden of Philadelphia the New York Skin and Cancer Hospital will receive the large estate left by her brother, Ralph Holden of New York City, under the terms of his will, filed here for probate yesterday.

The estate's value was not announced. Mr. Holden, who was a member of the firm of Calkins & Holden, explained in his will dated May 17, 1923, that he contemplated marrying Florence R. Beck of New York. He directed that if he left a widow she should receive two-thirds of the net income from his estate for life and his sister the other third. If he left no widow he wanted his sister to have the entire income.

The Board of Health of the City of New York adopted an amendment to the Sanitary Code which provided for the pasteurization of all milk other than Certified and Tuberculin Tested Milk.

This action of the health authorities was an endorsement of Sheffield methods, and a tremendously important step. It likewise displayed an interesting change in official attitude toward pasteurization.

It was only seven years before (1907) when the Sheffield plant in 57th Street was built, at which time the health authorities threatened to close the plant if it continued to pasteurize milk.

The Holding Method for the pasteurization of milk, now universally accepted, was first used in the Sheffield 57th Street plant.

It did not take seven years to demonstrate that pasteurization was saving the babies and wiping out frequent epidemics of various kinds.

Pasteurization has been accepted and proclaimed as the greatest of all public health measures and Sheffield Farms has been the pioneer and leader in the development of pasteurization, as well as in designing and building equipment for this purpose.

TWO HARLEM BODIES PROTEST LYNCHINGS

Committee Will Ask Coolidge to Emphasize 14th Amendment Equally With 18th.

DENOUNCE 'NIGGER HEAVEN'

Two Pages Torn From Book Are Burned at Negro Gathering—"Black Hawks" Proposed.

At a mass meeting of protest against lynchings by two negro organizations in Harlem yesterday afternoon two persons were appointed as a delegation to request of President Coolidge that the Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution be equally enforced with the Eighteenth. The chief topic of the meeting was the lynching of Bertha Lowman and her two brothers at Aiken, S. C., on Oct. 8.

J. R. Williams, a professor in Wilberforce College, who presided, denounced "Nigger Heaven," by Carl Van Vechten, and tore two pages from a book he held in his hand. After reading several passages he asked what should be done with them to show proper resentment of their contents.

When a chorus of voices shouted "Burn 'em up!" he ignited the two pieces of paper and held them aloft until the flames had consumed them. He said the two pages were perhaps the most objectionable in the book, but that there might be a later ceremony for the burning of the entire book.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the National Negro Development Union and the National Negro Centre Political Party. There were 400 persons present, who donated $25 to pay the expenses of the delegation to Washington.

Professor Williams counseled that if the Government would not protect the negro in his legal rights he must act to protect himself. In that event, he advised, the negroes must organize, say as the "Black Hawks," to fight the Ku Klux Klan.

He and Ruth W. Whaley, negro attorney, who also spoke, were appointed to see President Coolidge on a date to be selected after the holidays.

"We must demand of the President," said Professor Williams, "that he see to it that the Fourteenth Amendment is as vigorously enforced as the Eighteenth. The question which we must put to the President is this: Is a glass of whisky worth more than the life of a negro American?"

The deed covered the transfer of 102 acres of land in the town of Howard, Steuben County, and was executed in favor of Mrs. Mary Vosburgh by Robert L. Cole, attorney, representing the owners of the tract.

EXPLOSION HURTS 18 IN TRAIN WRECK

Maybrook and Waterbury and for the fire departments from Carmel and Pawling, the nearest towns. The others, joined soon by residents of Towners, threw buckets of water and snow on the fire in an effort to extinguish the flames before they reached the powder car in the wreckage. They worked frantically and were joined soon by Mr. Christinger and several railroad employes from Hopewell Junction.

The explosion occurred at 1:10 P. M., shortly before the arrival of the fire departments and the wrecking crews. There was nothing left then for the fire department to do.

All the houses in Towner and throughout the countryside for a mile were shaken, and debris from the train rained over the terrain through a radius of a half mile.

Mr. Christinger, Lundie and Shields were struck by flying pieces of iron, and with them the other members of the train crew and townsmen who were helping them were thrown to the ground.

Woodland Torn as By Shells.

A patch of woodland a half mile away later appeared as if it had been shelled in battle, with the limbs and bark of the trees torn from the trunks.

There was no one in the home of former Senator Towner when his house was shaken down. Mrs. Peck was alone in hers, but all the Rogers family were at home and all were hurt. Raymond, who was outside and was struck by a bit of flying debris, was the least injured. The three others were hurt by falling timbers and plaster in their home.

Traffic on the Central New England, a branch of the New York, New Haven & Hartford and one of its main freight feeders from the west into New England, was suspended for the night. The wreckage was not expected to be cleared and the tracks repaired until late tomorrow afternoon.

While no explanation of the derailment was offered by the railroad officials, it was believed that a journal of one of the cars broke as it reached Peck's Crossing, throwing this car from the track and causing the others to follow it.

WANTS FORD CALLED TO GIVE HIS 'FACTS'

Bloom Urges Rules Committee to Sift Charge That Jews Control Federal Finance.

SAYS PEOPLE SHOULD KNOW

If Ford Has Proof, Says Representative, "It Is Treason for Him to Withhold It."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—Representative Sol Bloom of New York has urged Chairman Snell of the Rules Committee to invite Henry Ford to lay before the committee "the facts he claims he has" to substantiate his recent charge that "the international Jew is in direct control of all financial centres of Government, including the Federal Reserve System." Mr. Bloom's resolution calling for an investigation of the Ford charge has been referred to the Rules Committee.

Mr. Bloom's letter to Chairman Snell reads:

Washington, Dec. 18, 1926.

Hon. Bertrand H. Snell,
Chairman, Committee on Rules,
Washington, D. C.

My dear colleague:

Referring to my resolution before the Committee on Rules of the House for the appointment of a select committee of seven to investigate the charge made by Henry Ford that the international Jew is in direct control of all financial centres of Government, including the Federal Reserve System.

True, the Congress has nothing to do with any charges that Mr. Ford may bring against the Jews in general, but the Congress has everything to do with charges made in connection with the Administration of the United States Government.

Says Integrity Is Involved.

Mr. Ford's assertion that the United States Federal Reserve System is under international control (which is to say, at least in part alien control) cannot be interpreted otherwise than as a charge involving the integrity of this country's Governmental financial organization. For this organization's loyalty to every American interest the Congress, as its creator, is responsible to the American people. Any question raised as to its unqualified devotion to these interests of necessity is of the most vital concern to the nation, and especially to us of the Congress as the nation's trusted representatives.

Mr. Ford raises such a question. More, he makes the definite charge that the United States Federal Reserve System is internationally controlled or dominated. Mr. Ford has made many charges behind a smoke screen of generalities. With them I have nothing to do. Now, however, he makes this specific, unmistakable charge "the international Jew is in direct control of all financial centres of government, including the United States Federal Reserve System."

It is immaterial that he speaks of this outside influence which, he asserts, controls the financial system of the American Government, as a Jewish influence. The essential point is that he refers to it as an international influence—I repeat, at least in part, an alien influence, for it cannot possibly be international and at the same time all-American.

So grave a charge from such a source is not to be lightly disregarded. Mr. Ford is a public man. When he speaks he has a national audience. He has been seriously mentioned for the Presidency. His fortune is placed in the neighborhood of a billion of dollars—or a dollar a minute since the dawn of the Christian era. Mr. Ford's bank balance on Dec. 15, 1926, was reputedly more than the net balance in the general fund of the United States Treasury on that date, as given by the latter's published report.

"Only a Charge" Thus Far.

So when Mr. Ford speaks his words have more than ordinary weight with the public, his national audience. Thus far his charge is only a charge, but Mr. Ford says he has proofs to substantiate it. I repeat, proofs to substantiate it.

If he has proof that any voice but an American voice—the voice of a Jew or non-Jew—has a controlling influence in shaping the financial policies of the Government of the country which has favored him so highly, it is treason for him to withhold it.

Possibly Mr. Ford has been right hitherto in his contention that an investigation of his broad, general, non-specific charges could lead nowhere. We have before us now, however, his concrete charge that the United States Federal Reserve System is under international control. This charge can be proved or disproved. The only jury he could trust, Mr. Ford announced, was the American people. Very well, the Congress is the American people.

Unless Mr. Ford can trust seven of the American people's elected proxies in the House of Representatives, he cannot trust even the American people. He can trust nobody. Mr. Ford calls his Dearborn Independent the "Chronicler of the Neglected Truth." It is Mr. Ford who neglects the truth, if he has proof that the United States Federal Reserve system is under international control and refuses to lay it before the Congress.

Claims the Right to Know.

A vindication of the Jew is not my resolution's object. My religion and my Americanism are two entirely different matters. Not as a Jew, but as an American, in behalf of my constituents, non-Jewish as well as Jewish, I claim the right to know whether or not this Government—for its finances are vital to any Government—is controlled internationally. The issue is of supreme importance.

Mr. Ford assures us he has facts. He offers to put any investigator who calls upon him in the way of finding them. He can do better than that. If he has these facts he himself can reveal them. He owes them to his country. If he can substantiate his charge, he is entitled to the opportunity. The people are equally entitled to demand it of him.

Either the situation calls urgently for action or it should be clearly shown that so damning an accusation as Mr. Ford's against one of the most important agencies of the American Government is wholly baseless. It is pre-eminently a question for the Congress to determine.

Therefore, after placing the above information before your committee, I respectfully ask that the Rules Committee invite Henry Ford to appear immediately before the committee to present an outline of the facts that he claims he has with references to the international control of the United States Federal Reserve system, so that the committee can decide whether or not these facts are sufficient to ask that my resolution be reported and that a committee of seven be recommended to investigate the charges in further detail.

Most sincerely yours,
SOL BLOOM.

CONDUCT OF THE YOUNG DECRIED AND DEFENDED

Fortnightly Forum Speakers, One a 13-Year-Old Girl, Disagree Sharply.

Seven members of the younger generation, expressing seven divergent points of view, tried to account for "Modern Social Standards" at the Fortnightly Forum last night in the Park Lane. The opinions ranged from those of John Charles Straton, son of the Rev. John Roach Straton, who thought the standards of the present-day young folks extremely low and indicative of a "disregard for law and order," to those of 13-year-old Elizabeth Benson, Vanity Fair contributor, who declared herself to be "bigger and healthier than her mother."

The younger generation came in for particular lambastings from young Mr. Straton and John P. Cluett, a former Williams student. The son of the Calvary Baptist pastor, who is a graduate of a Georgia college and who is now studying law at New York University, pictured the "cream of the campus" as trending toward "moral turpitude." He talked of college dances sponsored by the best families as productive of "brazen debaucheries." Mr. Cluett spoke of young men working in Wall Street as staying up all night and not going to work until "11 o'clock in the morning."

However, at the conclusion of the listed speeches, anonymous parents and grandparents in the audience rose to proclaim the conditions and social standards of today as no worse than those of "twenty, thirty, forty and fifty years ago."

One of the seven listed speakers, Harry Junior Taylor, who graduated from the University of Virginia, thought the pecadillocs of the younger generation rather immaterial "in the long run." Others who spoke were Miss Miriam Beard, daughter of Professor Charles Beard, the historian; Miss Margaret Sutherland, daughter of ex-Senator Sutherland, and John Pell, a graduate of Harvard.

GIVES $100,000 MORE TO YESHIVA COLLEGE

Nathan Lamport's Donations Now Total $300,000—Building Fund Has $2,500,000.

An additional gift of $100,000 to the building fund of Yeshiva College, which is to erect a group of buildings costing $5,000,000 on three blocks on Amsterdam Avenue and 186th and 188th Streets, was announced on behalf of its President, Nathan Lamport, who was the guest of honor at a testimonial dinner last night at the Hotel Astor on his seventieth birthday. The gift, which brings the total of Mr. Lamport's donations to $300,000, was announced to the 500 guests by Rabbi Moses S. Margolies, dean of American orthodox rabbis.

Mr. Lampert, referring to his contribution, said:

"I would mortgage my life for the Yeshiva. The college will be the first cultural contribution that the orthodox Jews have made to this country.

"It will mean that the centre of Jewish learning will be removed from the Ghetto to a proper home amidst real American environment. It will be a safeguard for traditional Judaism in this country, without which the religion of our fathers could not be perpetuated in America.

Chairman Samuel Levy of the building fund announced that the gift of Mr. Lamport, together with $400,000 of contributions recently announced, brought the total of the building fund to $2,500,000.

ASKS BUSINESS MEN TO ACT ON TRANSIT

Aron Calls Present Situation "More Sinister" After Years of Political Exploitation.

SEES BOARDS IN CONFLICT

Urges Republican Organization to Seek Solution of Problem in Interest of Taxpayers.

Action by the Republican Business Men, Inc., to bring about a "business men's" solution of the city's rapid transit problem was suggested yesterday by Harold G. Aron, Chairman of the Advisory Committee of that organization, in a letter to Colonel Arthur W. Little, its acting President.

"Ten years' exploitation for political ends of the city's need for adequate transportation has been serious enough," Mr. Aron said. "The present situation appears more sinister.

"What is the average man to make out of a muddle in which there is imposed on the Board of Estimate of the city a Board of Transportation appointed by the Mayor and a Transit Commission appointed by the Governor, no two of which bodies can agree? What is the average man to think when the leader of the party to whom the present Administration owes its existence carries to victory a constitutional amendment based on the principle that bonding public improvements is sound governmental policy for the State and the Chairman of the Board of Transportation denounces it as a fallacy for the city in providing for more permanent and productive public improvements?

"Apparently the Chairman of the Board of Transportation has discarded the arguments of Governor Smith in the bond amendment fight of a year ago and become a belated convert to the doctrines urged by Congressman Mills.

"A business men's settlement will not attempt to conceal the two fundamental facts—that dollars must certainly be available before they can be spent and that service must be in some way paid for at what it costs. A business men's settlement will be based on an appreciation of the fact that the really vested interests in the city are not the traction companies, but the 400,000 taxpayers and the 1,200,000 rent payers and families of the city, on to whom is passed and who pay in the last analysis the high cost of government and inefficient administration."

THE BOHEMIANS ARE HOSTS

Give a Dinner In Honor of Harold Bauer and Ossip Gabrilowitsch.

The Bohemians, the New York musicians' club, held a dinner last night at the Commodore in honor of Harold Bauer, pianist, and Ossip Gabrilowitsch, conductor of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, as a mark of appreciation for their services to the cause of music in this country during the last twenty-five years and also to celebrate the club's twentieth anniversary.

Rubin Goldmark, President, introduced Mr. Bauer, who told of the tribulations of a musician's life. He said, among other things, that last Summer a Frenchman in Paris blamed him for American jazz. Mr. Gabrilowitsch, in the course of his remarks, said of his present home city, "Once Detroit was a peaceful and innocent little town. Now it has grown into a noisy metropolis, due to the Ford car, and has music of every conceivable variety for every person."

Among those present were Walter Damrosch, Mischa Elman and Karl Flesch.

WALKER JOINS ELKS; LAUDS THEIR IDEALS

Initiated, He Says in Speech New Obligations Will Make Him a Better Mayor.

LEADERS OF LODGE PRESENT

Leon Errol and Assistant District Attorney Wallace Also Become Members.

Mayor Walker was initiated into Lodge No. 1, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, last night at its clubhouse, 108 West Forty-third Street, before the largest crowd, it is said, that ever overflowed the hall. Numerous other notables, including Leon Errol, the actor, were initiated with him, and leading Elks from cities within 200 miles from New York came to see and hear the ceremonies. The Mayor made the principal oration.

"The obligations which I have taken upon me here," he told the lodge, "will make me a better Mayor and a better citizen." Praising the tolerance of the Elk principles, he said, "I came here a man of one religion. I go out a man of all religions that worship God."

The officers of the lodge presented a gold card case to the Mayor. His fellow-members in the Tough Club, an old Greenwich Village organization to which he has long belonged, gave him a diamond and ruby studded gold emblem, combining the symbols of the Elks and the club. The principal feature of the emblem was a horseshoe, diamond set, bearing the club's motto, "We bend but never break." Within the horseshoe was the Elk's head, with ruby eyes.

Besides Mayor Walker, Mr. Errol and Assistant District Attorney James G. Wallace spoke as initiates. Other speakers were Murray Hulbert and Charles H. Grakelow, Grand Exalted Ruler of the Elks, who is Commissioner of Public Welfare in Philadelphia.

Others initiated were George J. Atwell, President of the National Democratic Club; Dr. John J. McGrath, President of the Board of Trustees of Bellevue and Allied Hospitals; Assistant District Attorneys John L. MacDonnell, James J. Foley and Robert Daru; Chief Clerk William L. Kavanaugh of the Manhattan District Attorney's office; City Magistrate Andrew Macrery, and Commodore Louis M. Josephthal, commanding the State Naval Militia.

The ceremonies were the usual Elks' initiation, beginning at 10 o'clock, with speeches and reception lasting till after midnight. Prominent among those who attended were United States Senator Robert F. Wagner, Boxing Commissioner James A. Farley, Past Exalted Rulers Joseph T. Fanning and J. Edward Masters and John T. Gorman, President of the New York State Elks.

Lawyer Sees Nation Drifting Toward Government Rail Ownership.

In a speech criticizing the work of the Interstate Commerce Commission in regulating the railroads, H. T. Newcomb, attorney for the Delaware & Hudson Railroad, told members of the Justice Brandeis Society of St. John's Law School dining at Keene's Chop House last night, that the recent proposal of the railroad he represents for the creation of a new trunk line to the west would have been of great benefit to the country. The plan's disapproval by the Commission he called one of many unwise decisions.

SAYS DEBT SHE OWED MADE GIRL ROB BANK

Rebecca Rogers Obligated to Historical Association in Texas, Paper Asserts.

AUSTIN, Texas, Dec. 19 (AP).—The American Statesmen, in a copyrighted story, says that Rebecca Bradley Rogers, under $5,000 bond on charges of robbery with firearms in connection with the hold-up of the Farmers National Bank of Buda eight days ago, needed money with which to pay her obligations to the Texas Chapter of the American Historical Association.

Claims against the association for unpaid accounts amounting to about $1,000 as the result of an unsuccessful membership campaign for which she was responsible are involved, the story says.

A $1,500 mortgage negotiated by the girl on property belonging to her mother figured in the girl's efforts to straighten out her difficulties, the story relates.

A dream of an organization with 5,000 members, each of whom would pay an annual fee of $3, resolved itself into the campaign begun during the absence from his post of Dr. Charles W. Ramsdell, professor of History at the University, who now is one of her bondsmen. Dr. Ramsdell is Secretary of the Texas Chapter of the Historical Association.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 19.—At the Landau court-martial today came the crucial point in the investigation of the disturbances in the Rhineland between natives and French soldiers.

Lieutenant Rouzier, resuming his testimony, told how, when he was attacked, after shooting twice in the air then wounding his antagonist, Holzmann, in the cheek, he was still followed by two of Holzmann's friends, who gathered a number of comrades on the way. He soon found six men facing him whose attitude he thought threatening. Holzmann had previously smashed Rouzier's glasses, which added to his handicap.

Mathes rushed at him and put his hand at a hip pocket as though to draw a weapon. Rouzier fired, wounding Mathes, and then killed Muller, who was the next man to leap at him. He then summoned stretcher bearers and a patrol, but the Germans would not let the French care for the wounded man, who since has been carried across the Rhine and is being tried by default.

FROHMAN FETED BY THEATRE WORLD

Dinner at $1,000.44 a Plate in Honor of 44 Years' Service to Actors' Fund.

Otto H. Kahn Accepts National Chairmanship for the Drive—Quotas Are Announced.

In recognition of his forty-four years of service to the Actors' Fund of America, Daniel Frohman was dined and fêted last night at the Hotel Biltmore. The dinner marked the opening of the fund's campaign for $1,000,000 to care for the needy, aged and ill of the theatrical profession. Many of the guests paid $1,000.44 for the dinner, the thousand dollars of which, it was announced, was to go into the organization's treasury.

The culmination of the evening came with the unveiling of a portrait of Mr. Frohman, painted by I. Mortimer Block. Just before the picture was shown to the guests, a keynote speech by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, was read by seven men prominent on the stage—John Drew, Augustus Thomas, Fred Stone, Otis Skinner, William Hodge, Walter Hampden and Frank Gillmore. The speech was the gift of Dr. Butler, who had been called to Chicago.

The portrait was unveiled by Hazel Dawn and Gertrude Lawrence. Then Colonel Arthur Little, Chairman of the dinner, introduced Mr. Frohman, who responded briefly.

"As featured player at this dinner, I certainly have the most distinguished professional support ever known," he said. He reviewed some of the work of the Actors' Fund and of the theatrical profession generally.

Otto H. Kahn Made Chairman.

During the evening Colonel Little announced that Otto H. Kahn had been appointed National Chairman of the campaign. Mr. Kahn accepted with a speech during which he selected Colonel Little to head the New York City division.

A group of forty-four actors and actresses was invited to the dinner to represent the theatre. This number symbolized the years of service Mr. Frohman has devoted to the fund, as did the forty-four cents added to the charge for the meal. Each stage person in attendance paid the forty-four cents, plus whatever he felt he could give, while the laymen were charged the $1,000.44.

This stage group introduced one another between the courses of the dinner. Among those who thus paid their respects to Mr. Frohman were Marie Dressler, Willard Mack, Sylvia Field, Selina Royle, William Courtleigh, Blanche Yurka, George Hassell, Florence Reed, Genevieve Tobin, A. E. Matthews, Helene Chadwick, Charles Coburn, Jessie Busley, Lee Tracy, Nydia Westman, Hazel Dawn, O. P. Heggie, Thais Lawton, Dorothy Stone and Amelia Bingham. Miss Bingham made an impassioned plea for the fund.

The dinner was followed by an entertainment and dancing. Ben Bernie's and Eddie Elkins's orchestras furnished the music.

The Young Men's Committee, of which Howard Hilton-Spellman is Chairman, has undertaken to raise $25,000, it was announced, and the British Committee, headed by Gertrude Lawrence, has accepted a $20,000 quota. An Uptown Committee is being headed by Franklin Simon, while Nathan Wilson and L. B. Silliman head the real estate group.

SUBWAY FARE RISE STUDIED BY BOARD

its opinions will mean something. Under the Miller act of 1923, amended in 1925, the contractual parties are the city and the transit companies. Some good lecal arguments are advanced in support of the theory that the act can be amended to take the right from the contractual parties and place it in the hands of the Transit Commission. I do not agree. But that is something for a court to decide. And until a court does make such a decision the city and the transit companies alone are concerned in the contract and must decide as to the fare.

"I do not think that it has been proven that the 5-cent fare cannot be maintained. If the Transit Commission were to approach its work with the conviction that a 10-cent fare is necessary it would be handicapped in its hearings. I don't think the commission is convinced that a change is needed."

Inquiry to Be Broad.

That the commission's coming investigation is intended to be an exhaustive one was indicated when it was learned that it will include an investigation of the routes proposed for the new subways, although construction is a function not directly within the commission's jurisdiction, being now vested in the city through the Board of Transportation. The commission, it was said, believed that the construction of new lines, however, linked directly with the readjustment plan it was directed by law to prepare. It was explained that before preparing its plan the commission must know, for example, just how the city proposes to connect the Washington Heights-Eighth Avenue subway, now under construction.

In this connection, some of the members of the commission are understood to concur in Controller Berry's demand for the speedy determination by the Board of Estimate of a definite subway policy. The subways now under construction are capable physically of connection with the existing B. M. T. subways at comparatively little additional expense. Whether the Board of Estimate will consent to this or not is one of the things that must be decided before any plan which the Commission may submit has a chance of acceptance by the city and the companies.

Controller Berry's demand for a definite subway policy will be strengthened during consideration by the Board of Estimate of requests for municipal public improvements during the year 1927, which aggregate $713,000,000. The Controller has already indicated that the city's borrowing capacity for the coming year will be between $200,000,000 and $250,000,000 and many of the projects for which money has been asked will have to be abandoned temporarily.

Subway Needs Up Today.

One of the chief items in the aggregate of $713,000,000 is the request of the Board of Transportation for $182,000,000 for subway construction. The requests will come before the Board of Estimate today and will be referred to Controller Berry for report. The Controller has been working on an analysis of the requests for several days and is expected to be ready to report at the board's first or second meeting in January. He is understood to consider the amount requested by the Board of Transportation as excessive and in any event is likely to make his report the occasion for another attempt to bring about a decision on subway policy.

Submission of the various requests at this time was requested by Mayor Walker. The Mayor's motive is understood to have been the desire to place before the people of the city the city's financial situation as it affected proposed municipal improvements, to show them that the city could not possibly undertake all the projects for which there is popular support.

When Controller Berry's report is made, the board will decide just which of the proposed improvements will be undertaken next year. An effort will be made to reach an agreement on priority and to pledge the members of the board to keep to this program.

WANTS SUBWAY PUSHED.

Head of Brooklyn Realty Board Says Crosstown Line Is Vital.

Immediate action in building a Brooklyn crosstown subway was urged yesterday by Charles Partridge, President of the Brooklyn Real Estate Board. Mr. Partridge declared that the members of the board were not impressed by the changes in the route recently proposed by John H. Delaney, Chairman of the Board of Transportation.

"The Brooklyn board believes that the time has come to build a crosstown subway in Brooklyn and to stop talking about it," Mr. Partridge said. "There is no more important improvement for the Borough of Brooklyn.

"For more than twenty years each succeeding City Administration has promised a crosstown subway. But that has been the end of it. Nothing has been done.

"Borings for a crosstown subway were made in 1904 or 1905 all along Bedford Avenue and it was confidently expected then that bids for construction would be advertised for in a short time. Since then plans have been approved along Franklin Avenue. Now we have plans for a crosstown route set up that will carry it along Nostrand Avenue."

Mr. Partridge added that a crosstown subway should have a physical connection with the existing subway system and with the Brighton Beach elevated line of the B. M. T. and urged construction of the proposed Ashland Place connection between the Fulton Street elevated line and the B. M. T. subway.

He also declared against municipal operation of the city's new subway system, now under construction. "With private operation we get more efficient service with less cost to the taxpayer," he said.

THE CONTINENTAL FAMILY

The human element is an extremely important part of every successful business. Without this factor, methods and machinery would prove of little value, the stupendous successes of modern commerce would never have been realized.

The Continental Motors Corporation bases its success largely upon the human element in its business. Eight thousand employees, trained to the exacting methods which are a part of Continental policies, insure the quality and performance of the product. The reputation built up by more than a generation of effort is in their keeping.

This remarkable increase of investors in Continental securities is a marked indication of confidence in Continental's present opportunities and future possibilities. Tonight's Schedule.

Toronto vs. N. Y. Americans at New York.

By SEABURY LAWRENCE.

Battling briskly through two overtime periods, the New York Rangers and the Detroit Cougars fought it out to a 1-1 tie last night at Madison Square Garden in a National League hockey game before a crowd of 12,000 persons. The Rangers were in front during most of the evening, but Detroit suddenly came to life with only two minutes to go of the third regular period and tied it up.

This tie enabled the Rangers to climb back into a tie for first place with the Chicago six in the American section.

The tie-up came as a result of a superb play by Hobie Kitchen and Jack Shepard, Detroit forwards, and gave the big crowd one of its biggest thrills of the night. Kitchen skated down through the New York team, whirled around the Ranger net and then whisked it out to Shepard, who did the rest. There was only 1 minute 39 seconds to go when the tie-up came.

Two extra sudden death periods of ten minutes each were ordered, and through both these sessions the teams battled evenly, with the attack going steadily up and down the rink and many close shots being whisked off by the goalkeepers but without a score.

The Detroit team was clearly outplayed in the first two regular periods, but they finished well, and toward the end of the third period were staging some aggressive team plays that took them through the N w York defense for the first time.

There was some fast play at the opening of the first period, which was marked by excellent poke-checking at centre ice by Frank Boucher, centre for the Rangers. Time and again Boucher broke up the offensive single-handed.

Cook Brothers Fail.

The Cook brothers started attacks on their own account, but the defense of Halderson, Loughlin and Holmes was too strong. Holmes flicked the disk away as if he were brushing aside mosquitos. Each goal keeper was credited with making nine stops. Neither team counted.

Nick Altrock and Al Schacht, the famous baseball comedians, who have taken to stage hockey for the Winter, amused the crowd between the first and second periods.

Boucher also started the second period cleverly. Frank picked up the disk and skated almost to the net through the Detroit team. His hard shot was well blocked by Holmes, but Murdock, who was just behind Boucher, caught the rebound and slashed it in for the first counter of the game in 4:23.

Boucher and Bun Cook stirred the crowd with some swift combinations. Loughlin, on the Detroit defense, got rough and was put off three times during the period.

Detroit staged some attacks, but they were usually made single-handed and there was no further scoring.

Early in the third period both Shepard and Halderson of Detroit were put off for roughing, and with only four men on the ice, the Cougars were strictly on the defensive. Boucher again staged some clever plays, as did Bun Cook, but they could not fool Holmes.

Frederickson, Shepard and Arbour finally combined on a nice play that took the disk almost to the net, where Winkler slid out to stop it. With three minutes to go, the combination again took it down, but were stopped after a scrimmage in front of the net.

Cougars Tie the Count.

Two minutes to go, and on a great play by Kitchen and Shepard the Cougars tied up the count. Kitchen carried the disk down right around the New York net, where he passed it out to Shepard, and the latter slapped it past Winkler, in 18:21.

Halderson, Kitchen and Frederickson all staged flashing plays for Detroit in the first overtime period, and the action was often in Ranger territory. Boucher, Bun Cook and Abel made good runs for New York, but neither team could crash through, and another sudden death session was ordered, which ended in the same way.

The line-up:

Brown's Craft Take Fourth and Fifth in First Races of Season at Red Bank.

Special to The New York Times.

RED BANK, N. J., Dec. 19.—In the first ice yacht race of the season, held by the North Shrewsbury Ice Boat and Yacht Club this afternoon over the regular triangular course, Benjamin L. Atwater's Pet won the ten-mile event among third-class ice yachts. The Marconi-rigged craft, well handled by Oscar and Frank Brand, led by two lengths at the finish.

The new hollow-keel Snow Goose, owned by George W. Bray, was raced for the first time today. Allie Haviland and Dustin Allaire handled the craft, which lost when the mainsheet rope caught on the rudder. The Snow Goose jumped away at the start and led on three of the four laps. Pet overtook the Snow Goose on the third lap, and it was a nip and tuck race to the finish.

Henry Applegate's Whim finished third, Thomas Irving Brown's Now Then and Say When, fourth and fifth respectively, and George W. Bray's Daisy, sixth.

A moderate northwest breeze was blowing, and despite the snow on the course the third-class ice yachts made good time and were sent up in the air on a single runner by puffs of wind, making a spectacular race for the spectators.

There will be racing every day. The races for the Commodore's Cup and points on the W. W. Vaughn Trophy have been set for Wednesday afternoon.

The North Shrewsbury Ice Boat and Yacht Club has challenged the Long Branch Club again for the championship pennant, and also has arranged a series of races with the scooters of the South Bay Scooter Club of Bayport, L. I. The races are to take place soon after the first of the year.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Dec. 19.—Joe Turnesa, who has lived all of his twenty-five years in Westchester County, where he is now professional at the Fairview Golf Club in Elmsford, today won the first annual Sacramento open tournament on the Del Paso course. A 69 on the final round gave Turnesa a total of 287, which left him three shots in front of any one else in the field.

Turnesa won on the last nine holes in a duel with Eddie Loos of Chicago. They started today on even terms, each having a total of 143 for the first two rounds. Turnesa was not putting well this morning and his 75 left him three strokes behind Loos at noon, for the latter returned a 72 with a 7 on the second hole.

Loos, playing four holes ahead of Turnesa, went out in 38 this afternoon and Turnesa picked up two strokes with a 36, one under par. On the inside nine Turnesa was playing his shots with more confidence than Loos was, and by deadly approaching he was able to come back in 33 to Eddie's 37.

Sanderson Finishes Strongly.

Third money went to Harold Sanderson of the Hollywood Club at Deal, N. J., by a whirlwind finish that gave him an aggregate of 140 for today's thirty-six holes. Sanderson started the day in thirteenth position, but a 71 on his third round moved him up to fifth and he turned in a 69 for his final round this afternoon.

Another who finished with a 69 to gain a place among the leaders was Frank Walsh of Appleton, Wis. His total of 294 gave him fifth money, one stroke behind Bill Mehlhorn. Mehlhorn was unable to play the par 3 holes today, and on these holes alone lost seven shots to Turnesa.

There were many thrills for the largest gallery ever at a golf tournament here. There was an eagle by Bobby Cruickshank on the seventh hole and another by John Golden on the tenth, to provide high spots.

The final eighteen started with Turnesa, 218; Loos, 215; Mehlhorn, 221, and Bobby Cruickshank, 221. Loos and Cruickshank, playing together, both took 38 to the turn, Cruickshank taking three putts on the first and ninth. On the latter hole Loos nearly holed his approach for an eagle 2. On the in-play Cruickshank began pulling his iron shots and finished with a total of 295, in a tie with Al Watrous for sixth.

Turnesa Close to an Ace.

Turnesa finally caught Loos on the eleventh, where the former came within an eyelash of scoring a hole in one. Turnesa's pitch here grazed the right side of the cup and stopped not two inches away. Loos, a few minutes before, had missed a seven-footer for a 2 there.

The thirteenth cost Loos the lead when his second shot, played out of the rough, rolled over the green. On the fourteenth, Turnesa picked up another stroke by a deadly approach, and on the sixteenth, he drove the green for his 3. Loos had taken a 4 here, his drive being to the left of the green. That put Turnesa three shots to the good and he finished with two pars.

The cards of Turnesa, Loos and Mehlhorn for the final eighteen holes:

Out—
Turnesa	4	5	3	4	4	3	4	5	4	36
Loos	4	5	3	4	4	4	6	5	3	38
Mehlhorn	5	4	4	4	4	4	5	4	4	38

Loos	5	3	4	5	4	4	4	4	4	37	75
Mehlhorn	4	4	5	4	4	4	3	4	4	36	74

Turnesa's Play Steady.

Turnesa played five rounds of steady golf on the Del Paso course. His rounds in the championship were 72, a par-equalling card made in the rain; 71, 75 and 69. Loos never was over par until the final round.

First prize was $600. The remainder of the prize money was divided as follows: Loos, second, $425; Sanderson, third, $325; Mehlhorn, fourth, $225; Walsh, fifth, $150.

Abe Espinosa on his final round tied the course record of 68 with a 5 on the last hole. The record was set yesterday by Arthur Demane of the Sound View Club, Great Neck, L. I. Espinosa this afternoon went out in 32, a new record for that side, par for which is 37.

His card:

Out	4	4	3	3	4	3	4	4	3	32
In	4	3	4	4	4	4	4	4	5	36	68

Greece Enters Davis Tennis for First Time; 31 Nations Now Have Challenged for Cup

The number of nations that have challenged for the Davis Cup since 1900 has been increased to thirty-one, with the receipt of the entry of Greece for the 1927 matches. Announcement was made yesterday by the United States Lawn Tennis Association of the arrival of this challenge, which was filed by Pan M. Pappadopoulo, whose official title is Hellenic Delegate to the International Lawn Tennis Federation. This is the first time that Greece will play for the cup, and it will compete in the European zone.

During the twenty-seven years since Dwight F. Davis, now Secretary of War, offered the cup bearing his name, thirty nations had thrown their racquets into the international arena, representing Europe, Asia, North and South America, Australia and New Zealand.

England has played twenty-one times, the United States nineteen times, Australia sixteen, France fourteen, Belgium eleven, Canada nine, South Africa, Spain, Czechoslovakia, Austria, Denmark and Japan each six times, and these nations are followed by a long line of others which have participated to a lesser extent. The total playing years represented by the thirty nations which have competed since 1900 aggregate 185 years.

TILDEN TRIUMPHS IN TWO NET FINALS

Takes Singles at Penn A. C. When He Conquers Alonso by 6-1, 6-3, 6-4.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 19.—William T. Tilden captured both finals in the Penn A. C. indoor invitation tennis tourney here today. In the singles he defeated Manuel Alonso in straight sets but had to be content to win the double by default from Alonso and Dixon when the match stood two sets each.

In the singles final, which was contested in the morning, Tilden showed some fine tennis to conquer Alonso, 6—1, 6—3, 6—4. The match was keenly contested, despite the apparent superiority of the former champion.

In the final set, Alonso staged a rally and won the first four games with the loss of only three points. Tilden braced and ran off five straight games, taking the ninth after being forced to deuce three times. Tilden finished the match by winning the next game without losing a point.

Alonso took the court again in the semi-finals of the doubles with Dixon as his partner. Francis Hunter, scheduled to play with him, was hurt on the opening day of the tourney and withdrew. The pair defeated Sam Gilpin and Carl Fischer, 13—15, 7—5, 6—3, in a match which lasted more than two hours. With only a ten-minute rest, Alonso took the court for his third match of the day with Dixon against Tilden and Warren Coen. Despite Tilden's brilliance, he dropped the first two sets, 7—5, 9—7, when Coen's service failed to steady down.

Dixon and Alonso were nearly exhausted and dropped the next two sets, 6—3, 6—2, when the former could continue no longer because of blistered feet.

Accompanied by Jock Fleming, Scotland's welterweight champion, and George MacKenzie, former British featherweight titleholder, Clark made the trip on the liner Caledonia. Charles J. Harvey, American manager of the trio, and a reception committee were at the pier.

DRUMHELLER SILKS SHOW FIRST TWICE

Stable Carries Off Both of the Feature Events on Racing Card at Tijuana Track.

Special to The New York Times.

TIJUANA, Mexico, Dec. 19.—The Drumheller silks were much in evidence in the racing here this afternoon. The stable took both featured events on the card. Trainer Cannon saddled the winner of the Baja California Handicap in Bonnie Omar after he had sent Pat to the post to win the Santa Monica Handicap, the secondary feature.

Bonnie Omar hadn't shown much in his last two starts, but his trainer had him ready today and the horse shook off the challenge of Baron Long's Cherry Tree and beat the popular campaigner to the finish of the mile and seventy yard race.

Pat has yet to see the hoofs of any other horse here this season. Previous to today he had started twice and showed his gameness by winning both races after grueling stretch duels. Today he took the Santa Monica from H. M. Mason's Deep Thought.

Those who believed that Pat could keep his record here clean got $6 for every $2 ticket purchased on him to win. Pat won in a field of seven of various ages, covering the six furlongs in 1:12 1-5. The three-year-old colt Booze Beyer took third money.

CATRONE AND ALLEN SHINE AT HAVANA

Both Jockeys Take Two Races in a Row to Share Riding Honors.

FEATURE GOES TO CATRONE

He Scores on Extreme After Winning With Rope's End—Allen Captures First Two Events.

HAVANA, Dec. 19.—Jockeys Allen and Catrone shared riding honors in the racing at Oriental Park here this afternoon. Both riders hustled two winners home in a row, but Catrone, a product of Saratoga racing, had a slight edge on Allen for the day's laurels because it was he who got C. Cafarelli's gelding Extreme first to the wire in the featured Country Club Handicap.

Extreme stood out on the card. The gelding had won three straight previous to today. He had not shown any evidences of letting his streak end there and the players backed him to a 7 to 10 closing price.

Extreme ran true to form and showed that he could give plenty of weight away to his opposition and still be the first to catch the judges' eyes at the finish. He beat C. D. Pryor's Anaconda, which was not neglected in the betting, while Queen Towton was third and Dante's Inferno last in the four-horse field.

In the race before the Country Club Handicap, Catrone scored another popular victory when he landed A. R. Freeman's Rope's End, a 3 to 5 shot, ahead of Miss Sand and Majoe among others.

Allen started the spectators talking when he won the first two races on the program. He scored with H. Magee's Meddling Seth in the first number. In the second he had the leg up on Myrrh, a three-year-old from the Shady Brook Farm Stable and had to beat Catrone on Mrs. A. Davis's Lieutenant Farrell to take the major share of the purse.

The Indiana Flooring Company of this city defeated Bethlehem, leader in the American Soccer League, yesterday by 2 goals to 0 before a crowd of 3,000 at the New York Oval. The winners tallied twice and presented such an impregnable defense that the steel workers were unable to score. It is the fourth time the national champions have been beaten this season—twice by Indiana and once by Boston and Fall River.

James (Hooky) Leonard, who landed here on Saturday from Scotland, where he played for Cowdenbeath in the First Division League, made his début at centre forward for Indiana, where he proved a tower of strength. He scored the first goal, and throughout was a menace to Bethlehem. Leonard hooked the ball into Bethlehem's net after twelve minutes of play in the second half, when Carlson's drive at Edwards, the Steel goalie, bounded back into play.

The ground was free of snow and ice, but hard and fast, making the going anything but easy. Twenty minutes from the start Bethlehem forced two corners in rapid succession, and five minutes later two consecutive corners came to Indiana, but all were cleared.

Indiana pressed with vigor in the second half, and nine minutes from the end McGhee turned in a centre from Gallagher on the right for Indiana's second goal. After some fast work by both teams the game ended.

Wanderers Excel Before 3,000.

The Brooklyn Wanderers soccer team followed up its victory at Springfield on Saturday by defeating Fall River by 1 to 0 at Hawthorne Field yesterday before 3,000 persons. The Wanderers excelled in three quarters of the play and several times overwhelmed their strong opponents, but only one goal was counted.

Fall River kicked off and Brooklyn attacked from the start, Kerr saving from Yule in the first minute of play. The Wanderers continued to force the pace and three corners were obtained in quick succession, but all were cleared.

Brooklyn set a fast clip upon resuming and soon assumed the offense, Yule again missing a fine chance to score. After fifteen minutes had elapsed, Bobby Yule cleverly eluded Martin, right back, and sent the ball over to Adair, the outside right, heading it into the net for the only goal of the game. Except for an occasional breakaway by Fall River, the play was all in favor of the Wanderers in the remaining minutes, but no goals were scored.

MANHATTAN FIVE IN ACTION TONIGHT

Will Clash With Dartmouth Here —Each Team to Lack the Services of a Regular.

Manhattan College will face the Dartmouth College five at the alumni gymnasium here tonight. Manhattan has won two out of three games, while Dartmouth has won three out of four this season. Although neither team will be able to present its full strength tonight, the fact that each combination will be without the services of one regular should balance matters.

John Cohalan, Manhattan varsity centre, who was so badly injured in football, has been unable to take part in the preliminary practices. He worked out for the first time last Friday and may break into the line-up tonight.

In the preliminary game, which starts at 7:30, Xavier High School will clash with the Manhattan freshmen.

EVANDER CHILDS STRONG.

High School's Swim Team Boasts Victory Over Army Plebes.

The Evander Childs High School swimming team this season is considered one of the best the Bronx school has had. One of its recent achievements was a 39 to 23 victory over the strong Army plebe team at West Point. One of the point gainers for Evander was Romanoff, who recently broke the P. S. A. L. 50-yard breast stroke record. In the Army meet he won the 100-yard breast stroke.

Callahan, an Army diver, was the individual star of the meet, as he totaled 56 out of 60 points in the high dive. Second was Schmitt of Evander with 53 points.

THE WEEK IN SPORTS.

Peace in Baseball—Control of Racing in the West—An Iron Man of Tennis—Met. Open Golf Difficulties—Lively Days in Hockey — More Boxing Upsets

BASEBALL

Baseball finally seems to have come upon peaceful days. Kenesaw Mountain Landis and Byron Bancroft Johnson have returned from the wars. The National and American Leagues are beaming at each other across the trenches. Phil Ball sat beside Mr. Landis at the latter's own dinner.

The American Leaguers trod on one another in their eagerness to nominate the Commissioner for another seven-year term at $15,000 more a year. Two years ago Mr. Landis declared that he would "never sit in the same room with that man again," meaning Mr. Johnson. Last Thursday they posed with broad smiles and clasped hands for the cameras.

Peace has come. It is possible of course that the innocent bystander is being deceived by the hand-shaking and back-patting. It may be only a lull in the firing. Several times in the last few years the warring factions have been pried apart and calmed down, but the treaty of peace never lasted very long.

All Now Fraternising.

The prospect of permanent peace in the major leagues is annoying to those persons who like a good fight. They feel that if the two big leagues should ever go one year without a good old-fashioned battle it would be a sign of degeneration in the national pastime. Now that the rival players are fraternizing on the field and the magnates off the field, there is a tendency in some quarters "to view with alarm."

It is quite probable that the present truce will be fairly permanent. Mr. Johnson's ill-health is one great factor. The American League President is in the Winter of his career. He cannot fight with the rough and ready abandon of old. As his notable career approaches an end his old animosities are softened.

Mr. Johnson showed sense and shrewdness in accepting the inevitable with graceful humor. It is to be hoped that his supporters will do the same.

Having re-elected Mr. Landis and confirmed the agreement with him, the magnates should not complain in the future.

Baseball Big Industry.

The Commissioner's new salary of $65,000 is not too much. Baseball is a big industry. Functioning last season were two major and twenty-nine minor leagues. The latter covered 201 cities and towns, employed 7,046 players and had a payroll, including club officials, of well over $20,000,000. In the majors about 400 players were paid at least $2,000,000. The National League alone had 4,950,000 paid admissions last season, but this was only a drop in the bucket. The value of property franchises and players' payrolls, money spent for new players, cost of equipment and traveling expenses runs into enough millions to make baseball one of the important national industries.

Over this vast domain Judge Landis has ruled with stern impartiality. He has been accused of leaning toward the National League, but that seems so only because the President of the American League, for many years the biggest man in baseball, fought the intruder who was drafted from a Federal bench in Chicago.

The annual meetings were dully routine. No trades were expected and none made. The business men of the game had their day, and in the business details of baseball there is little popular interest except when the magnates are having another "war."

It was decided to let the schedule-makers end the season on any day they saw fit. In 1927 the season will end about Oct. 2, which means that two October Saturdays will again be stolen from football.

GOLF

That the best tournament conducted under the auspices of the Metropolitan Golf Association should be so unpopular as is the open, judging by the apparent unwillingness of clubs to offer their courses for it, is beyond understanding. At the last two annual sessions of the M. G. A. not a single course has put in a bid for the event which has done more to focus attention on the district than all the amateur championships combined. Yet while bidding for the amateur has always been spirited, requests for courses on which to play the open have fallen on deaf ears.

Last season, for example, when the event was scheduled to go to one of the New Jersey district courses, not a single offer was forthcoming. Seeing the dilemma that the officials were in, J. J. Lannin, Laird of Salisbury and friend in need of all linksmen, but particularly the pros, stepped forward with the offer that saved the day and sent the event to Long Island, where history was made when Macdonald Smith and Gene Sarazen played 54 extra holes for the title.

No Bids were Forthcoming.

Having dodged the event last season, New Jersey was expected to take the event in 1927, but when bids were begun the delegates from clubs across the Hudson suddenly lost their tongues and after some discussion and a long wait the matter had to be left with the Executive Committee to dispose of as best it could.

There are two reasons for this apathy toward the open. The main one goes back several years when golf professionals, as a class, were not as mild-mannered and well-deported as they are today. In those rough and ready days before prohibition and before the manufacture of hats, clothing and shoes seized upon the professionals as fashion mannequins, open championships were apt to be a bit unruly, but today not even the most rabid reformer could find excuses for flaw-picking at an open event.

Close to National Open.

The second reason has to do with the period of the year selected for the event. In years gone by when there were only a few open tournaments and when the leading professionals were scattered about the country it was customary to fix the date of the metropolitan open as near that of the national open as possible, the object being to attract stars who would not otherwise be attracted because of the comparatively meagre purse offered. As the national was held generally in July so was the metropolitan, although July is not ordinarily a good month in which to hold the event since courses are heavily played then.

Now that the leading professionals are located in the metropolitan district there is no reason for holding the tournament immediately before or after the national open. There is no dependence on the national open for a good field and, as a matter of fact, it would be better if the two events were separated.

TENNIS

William Augustus Larned must be given a place in any list of the iron men of sport. For twenty years he held a high position among the world's leading tennis players and for nineteen of those years he was ranked in our first ten, his absence from the court during the Spanish-American War costing him a place in the 1898 ranking.

Seven times winner of the national championship, Larned, in his hey-day, ruled as supreme in America as Tilden did from 1920 to last season. He did not stand out quite so vividly against the international horizon as did Tilden, for Norman Brookes of Australasia was capturing the plaudits at Wimbledon as one of the greatest players that had ever trod that historic green, and the Dohertys were also very much in the picture. But from 1907, when he regained the title, which he had held in 1901 and 1902, until he retired in 1912, when approaching his fortieth year, he was in a class by himself in the United States.

Versatility in His Game.

To watch Larned on the courts was to see the ideal tennis player in action. There was no one stroke that stood out in his répertoire. He was soundly grounded in all of them. It was the speed of his drives, the quickness with which they died, that made him so formidable a player, but he did not put his sole reliance in speed, as did, for instance, Maurice McLoughlin later, and for that reason, because he did not burn himself out by putting too great a strain upon his physical resources, he was able to play championship tennis for a generation.

Equipped with a destructive forehand drive and a backhand that was a real attacking weapon, and an adept, though not a spectacular, volleyer, he played a game that was the epitome of grace and almost mechanically flawless, to whose success the perfection of his timing and the sureness of his footwork were contributing factors.

While it is true that in the day's of Larned's ascendancy champions were not called upon to play through the all-comers, nevertheless, in those years in which he fought his way up to the title from 1892 to 1901, and in playing in the various tournaments, Davis Cup matches and challenge rounds, he went through almost as rigorous a physical test as the player of today undergoes.

Should Be an Inspiration.

The fact, therefore, that Larned should have been able to remain at the top for so many years in spite of the inroads made upon his health by the rheumatism he contracted as a member of Roosevelt's Rough Riders, should serve as an inspiration to those players whose swan songs are sung each year because they have passed the thirty-year mark.

Larned was champion at 39 and had he chosen to defend his title it is possible that he could have been champion in his forties. Tilden, with his style of play, puts no greater tax upon his physical resources than did Larned, and so it may be that the Philadelphian, counted as having seen his best days, will hold a position near the top for another decade.

HOCKEY

A busy week in hockey opens tonight with the National League game between the New York Americans and Toronto St. Pats at Madison Square Garden.

Neither of this evening's combatants came through the past week with anything like flying colors, the Americans dropping from second to fourth place, and Toronto, despite a decided improvement in play, being unable to scramble out of the cellar position in the international group of the National Hockey League. No one, however, should make dire predictions about the St. Pats at this early stage. They have already shown some brilliant efforts and distinguished themselves by playing a feverish tie game with the Ottawa Senators.

Sure to Produce Upsets.

In a sport where the pace is so swift and with so many good teams in the National Hockey League, there are bound to be upsets. Changes in the standing are apt to be of the rapid-fire variety. Even the great Ottawa team, apparently unbeatable, finally fell before the Detroit Cougars last week, after rolling up nine victories. And in a savage battle on Saturday night Ottawa was held to a tie by the Montreal Maroons, who had not done so well in previous games.

In pro hockey victory usually rests with the team that happens to be on the sharpest of razor edges and gets the breaks. In these lightning sorties on the enemy's net there are bound to be all sorts of chance shots made and during these mêlées luck is a factor. There was an example of this in the recent Ottawa game here, when the Americans certainly got none the best of the breaks in their frequent and concerted drives on the Senatorial goal posts.

Strengthened by Trade.

The Americans, in much better shape than they were at this time last year, have undoubtedly been strengthened by the trade in which they got Conacher of the Pittsburgh Pirates for Langlois. Conacher, who is recognized as one of the strongest defense men in the pro ranks, should provide a fine bulwark working with Simpson or Reise, and may be a trifle more dependable on the offensive than Langlois was. The latter, though unquestionably a tireless and skilled player on the defensive, threw all ideas of team play to the winds when he took the disk down on the attack.

Not only are the pro hockeyists in for a festive week, with games tonight, tomorrow night and Thursday night, but the Metropolitan Amateur Hockey League will stage another of its triple-headers on Christmas night. The amateurs showed fast play in their recent opening carnival, especially the Knickerbockers, New York A. C. and Crescents, and all six teams will undoubtedly display improved work as the season goes on.

TURF

An important step in turf government was taken when representatives of the numerous race tracks in Illinois met in Chicago to discuss the racing situation in that State and consider methods for improving the sport in general. A temporary organization was formed and a committee appointed to draft a plan for a permanent body.

With five courses in operation in Illinois the time is ripe for an organization to govern the sport, either by means of an association to rule by the mutual consent of the several tracks, similar to the Jockey Club in New York, or by a State racing commission established by legislative enactment, as is the case in Maryland and Kentucky. For the present, at least, the former arrangement seems profitable, as offering immediate solution of important problems, such as the allotment of dates for the coming season and uniformity in practice and racing rules.

Central Control Needed.

It would be a splendid thing for thoroughbred sport if a responsible body, composed of the strongest elements in racing and breeding, could be formed to assume control in the West and Middle West where there are no State commissions. Such a body could prevent clashes in schedules, combat unwise legislation, prevent reckless building of new plants and work in harmony with the established organizations in Kentucky and the East.

Eventually there will have to be thrashed out in the Illinois Legislature and courts the legality of the present certificate system of wagering, which may be followed by a movement to amend the present anti-race track betting laws or to legalize the pari-mutuel system.

There is immediate need of a governing body, and such an organization could work closely with the national council proposed during the meeting at Saratoga. Not much has been heard of the latter, but it is sincerely to be hoped that the matter will not be dropped. While such a national association would have no power to rule in State-governed racing centres, it would have an immense influence in safeguarding and promoting the interests of racing.

Weights for Coffroth.

Weights for important races announced well in advance of the running are always a fruitful source of discussion among the horsemen. This is true of the imposts for the Coffroth Handicap just announced by the Tijuana Jockey Club.

There are 110 eligibles for the $75,000 race to be run on March 13, and the honor of heading the list is held by the Rancocas Stable's four-year-old gray colt, Silver Fox, whose allotment is 127 pounds. There is a considerable drop to the 121 pounds on the Seagram Stable's Edisto. Next in line is Backbone, sold by H. P. Whitney during the Bowie meeting, which has 118 pounds. This is one more than is given to Cariaris, last year's sensational winner.

BOXING

The record for ring upsets is being sustained right up to the end of the year. During the past week the setbacks suffered by K. O. Phil Kaplan and Bushey Graham were added to the long list.

Kaplan, recognized contender for the world's middleweight title, was a contender only until he met Maxey Rosenbloom. Then he was revealed as just an ordinary fighter, too slow thinking up an attack and too slow executing it to be a success. He dropped a decision to Rosenbloom, who was fighting at an unnatural weight when he scaled down to 160 pounds, which only emphasizes Kaplan's lack of qualifications. If Kaplan is to regain the position he held prior to last Monday night among the front runners in the pursuit of the championship, he must go through an intensive campaign.

More startling was the defeat of Bushye Graham by Tony Canzoneri, a youngster in years and ring experience. With Graham favored at 4 to 1 in the betting, Canzoneri surprised onlookers by the convincing victory he scored and the method by which he scored it. It was a distinct shock, and a grave reversal for Graham, who is matched to fight Charley (Phil) Rosenberg for the world's bantamweight title on Jan. 7.

Canzoneri did not make the bantam class weight for the contest, but, while that is recognized as sufficient basis to retain Graham as the title challenger despite his defeat, the victory will stand out as the greatest in the career of Canzoneri, who has been boxing as a professional for less than two years.

Naturally Canzoneri's backers are clamoring to have him substituted for Graham in the Rosenberg title bout, even in the face of the announcement from Chairman Farley of the State Athletic Commission that the commission would not regard the setback as reason for a change. A wiser course would be to delay this title meeting which is sought for Canzoneri, and if Graham beats Rosenberg, send Canzoneri after a return bout with Graham for the championship. In the meantime Canzoneri can benefit from additional ring engagements.

BILLIARDS

There is little doubt that the masters have conquered 18.2 balkline. The ease and consistency with which the outstanding balkline players compile large runs and high averages show that there is need for a new style of billiards for the masters. The ideal game, critics maintain, is 18.1 balkline, which is just difficult enough to force the stars to bring into play all the billiard knowledge at their command.

The case of Willie Hoppe during the past two weeks illustrates clearly that 18.2 has been mastered. Hoppe had been away from balkline for nearly seven months; upon his return he made a grand average of fifty-three for 3,600 points; in his second week he had a grand average of seventy-nine for 4,500 points.

Kinrey Matsuyama, the national junior 18.2 champion, compiled a grand average of 37 against Hoppe—remarkable billiards. Matsuyama has been playing billiards about eight years, yet he is making grand averages that seven or eight years ago would have been rated sensational in such a long match.

The explanation is that the experts have mastered the drive, the nurse and the massé to such a degree that the game is almost as easy for them as straight rail was twenty years ago when the series of long runs made games one-sided and monotonous.

Young Jake Schaefer ran out a 400-point game in a championship match from the break; he had another average of 200 for a title game; in a challenge match against Edouard Horemans he had a grand average of ninety-three for 1,500 points.

No plans have been made for an 18.1 balkline tournament, but it seems logical to believe that action will be taken before the season ends.

THE PRESIDENT AND THE CRUISERS.

In the House on Saturday a bill was introduced authorizing the building of ten additional modern cruisers, each of 10,000 tons. The Chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee explained that this was done with the approval of the President. That it represents a decided change in Mr. COOLIDGE'S view of our naval needs requires no arguing. In his budget message to Congress he was explicitly against any such enlargement of our navy. Later, on Dec. 9, he wrote to the publisher of The Army and Navy Journal stating that he had not changed his mind. He said: "I am convinced that the estimates submitted provide adequately for the services; and that economic administration will maintain the navy in a high state of efficiency."

What has led to this sudden shift of the President's? Why should he have decided to set aside the mature decision of the Director of the Federal Budget? The answer must be found in the interviews which he has had with members of Congress especially interested in the navy, and officially responsible for the naval appropriations to be recommended to the House. These gentlemen have no doubt pressed upon Mr. COOLIDGE the necessity of adding modern cruisers to our naval strength from year to year, in order to make the fleet well rounded. It is admitted that on this score there is an excellent argument for the program to which the President has now agreed. But it is also evident that considerations were brought to the attention of Mr. COOLIDGE having to do with the building projects of other navies. In particular has the activity in British and Japanese shipyards been pointed to as evidence that if the United States did not also proceed to build more cruisers, our navy would soon drop behind the ratio fixed at the Washington Conference in 1922.

This would be done without violation of the treaty then signed and since ratified, because it left each country free to build as many cruisers as it pleased, provided they did not exceed 10,000 tons. But that our naval experts and members of Congress see in this development a spirit of rivalry and competitive building cannot be doubted. Proof can be found in one proviso of the bill introduced on Saturday, which is to the effect that if there should be another international conference for the limitation of naval armaments, the President would be empowered, at his own discretion, to "suspend in whole or in part any or all construction authorized by this act."

Mr. COOLIDGE has several times indicated that he would call another disarmament conference if the way were open. But latterly the way has seemed not to be open. It is doubtful if either Great Britain or Japan would admit that her cruiser program had an aggressive motive, or ran beyond the actual needs of protection for her commerce. It is notorious that France would not be disposed to join in another Washington Conference like that of four years ago. Thus the most hopeful outlook for anything of that kind would seem to lie in the endeavors of the League of Nations to bring about a general cut in military armaments. Though its committee this year was unable to work out a promising formula, the effort is to be continued. Only recently it was announced that a disarmament congress would be summoned in Europe either in 1927 or 1928.

That our Government would be eager to take an active part in this there can be no question. The President sent delegates to Geneva this year to help deal with that problem and doubtless would be ready to do it again. There is, in fact, a steadily mounting number of reasons why such an international conference should be held as soon as possible. In addition to this unforeseen competition in building cruisers, we have the failure of the Senate to ratify the treaty forbidding the use of poison gas, together with reports about a new and deadly aerial torpedo and other inventions to make war more disastrous and ghastly. If the nations are not to let all these things get out of hand, they ought to arrange to confer together in order to maintain such a control over the instrumentalities of war as will make peace more probable and permanent.

REFLECTIONS OF TWO SAGES.

It takes something of an event to stir great intellects and characters to their depths. The acquittal of Mr. DOHENY and Secretary FALL has had the bye-effect of refurbishing that shabby old commonplace. Mr. JOSEPHUS DANIELS, careless of the prophecies of a cold Winter, no longer stores his heat. The verdict in Washington is "the worst thing that has happened to the people" since the English barons bulldozed King JOHN into granting Magna Charta. Clearly it is the provision protecting the freeman in his property, liberty and life, unless they are taken from him "by lawful judgment of his peers," that so moves him. Jury trial is a failure unless it results according to one's hopes, prejudices, beliefs. "There is a crying need, certainly in the District of Columbia," continues the Raleigh Sage, "for a system that will exclude from the box such mental inepts as constituted that jury." His qualifications as an expert on mental ineptitude will scarcely be denied.

In the Senate a still fuller-orbed genius, J. THOMAS HEFLIN, "burned with righteous indignation." He attacked the Judge that presided at the trial, intimated that the jury was cooked, lynched the living and defamed the dead. It would be superfluous to follow his romantic accusations and surmises. Imagine a tabloid newspaper standing on two legs, leaning against the soft cushion of parliamentary privilege and belching one continuous fiction. "Goo help the country!" shrieked the Alabama Senator. But a country that can boast such a Conscript Father is by no means helpless. Was it SHAKESPEARE who said "Poor Tom's a scold"? At any rate, two of our glories have outdone themselves.

LONGER VIEW OF THE WAR DEBTS.

In THE TIMES today is printed a noteworthy statement signed by the members of the Faculty of Political Science in Columbia University. It is a direct and sharp challenge to a fresh study and a new settlement of the war debts. The distinguished scholars and authorities who signed this paper have no axe to grind, personal or political. They have no wish to interfere with pending debt settlements, such as that which the French Parliament is soon to take up. On the contrary, they hope by what they say to facilitate and expedite the latter, to the end that it may be got out of the way, preparatory to the further inquiries and the new conferences which will in time be necessary to bring about permanently satisfactory adjustments of the debts between Governments which arose out of the war. The reasons for such an investigation, with the results that may be expected to flow from it, are set forth by these detached and unselfish professors of economics, history, social science and public law, with a moderation and persuasiveness beyond praise.

They are for no hasty action. They do not contemplate an improvised international conference. Note should be taken of this fact by public men in France who are opposed to ratifying the Mellon-Bérenger agreement. It would be a quite unfair use of this Columbia document to throw it as an obstacle in the way of Premier POINCARÉ, who is moving steadily toward closing the account with the United States. He has just succeeded in getting the budget through the French Parliament in record time. One item in it is a certain number of millions of francs to be paid to the United States Treasury in case the debt settlement is approved. Nothing ought to be allowed to obstruct this. It is an essential step to be taken before others can follow. With this opinion the Columbia professors would doubtless be in full accord. Nothing in their publication is to the contrary.

What they propose is, in part, a fresh examination of conscience by Americans. Another eminent American economist, Professor TAUSSIG, said a few days ago that he could not look upon the war debts purely as a legal question. This country might have a right to demand all that it had asked, and even more, but the thing had come to be a moral issue with him, and he did not feel satisfied about it either in his conscience or in his sense of national honor. This is a sentiment echoed by his colleagues at Columbia. But they also go further, and argue the case partly on the ground of our enlightened self-interest. It is probable that this will prove, in the end, to be the determining factor.

An English publicist recently declared his belief that "events" would ultimately demonstrate to Americans that they had taken too short-sighted a view of the war debts. Some of these events are hinted at in the analysis of the situation made by the Columbia authorities. And it may be added that their own sober, comprehensive and penetrating study of the entire matter should be set down as one of the events which will be found to have had a great influence in changing the mental attitude and altering the international policy of the American people.

GERMAN PARTY MANŒUVRES.

It is not altogether coincidence that the Marx Cabinet was overthrown just before the Reichstag adjourned for a month's holiday. At the beginning instead of the end of a session the Socialists would have thought twice before precipitating a Ministerial crisis. As it is, they indulge themselves in the luxury of a flick of the whip hand without untoward consequences. It was no doubt foreseen that President HINDENBURG would ask the defeated Chancellor to carry on over the vacation. There will follow a month of party inventory, bargaining, compromising, in the course of which it will be decided whether Germany is to go on with a minority Government picking up its support for the special occasion or whether a Grand Coalition is to come about.

For some time German Cabinets have lived in the kind of ultra-modern one-room apartment which changes its aspect according to the needs of the moment by lowering things from the wall or folding things up. The irreducible skeleton habitation has consisted of the Little Coalition of centre parties numbering about 170 members in a Reichstag of about 425. When the family took up foreign politics the Socialists joined in with a hundred-odd votes and made a comfortable majority round-table. When the subject was domestic politics the Socialists vanished and the hundred-odd Nationalists appeared from the wall and made a comfortable majority bed. With Socialist aid the Little Coalition has put through the Locarno policies. With Nationalist aid it has put through the fairly drastic home policies necessary for economic rehabilitation. After a while, of course, life in a one-room apartment begins to wear on the nerves. The signs have for some time been apparent in Germany.

The end of this new housekeeping will be in sight if the Nationalists stick to Count WESTARP'S warning that they will no longer countenance a minority Government. A Grand Bloc of one kind or another there seems likely to be. Will it include the Nationalists and become definitely anti-Socialist? For himself Chancellor MARX rejects the idea. For some time to come foreign policy will continue to be of greater moment than home affairs, and the whole-hearted support of the Socialists in the work of European reconciliation will probably be found by German Cabinet-builders to outweigh Nationalist support at home. It is significant that in voting out the Marx Government the Socialist spokesmen stressed the value of Herr STRESEMANN'S achievements in the foreign sphere. Next year may see a Marx or a Stresemann Cabinet enjoying permanent Socialist support at the price of some concessions in domestic legislation.

THE POLAR LEGION.

The Polar Legion will always be a small and choice company, if membership is limited to leaders of expeditions that have attained the North or the South Pole, whether by sledge or airship, whether to make a stop or to pass over. Of living men only Captain AMUNDSEN, Commander BYRD and LINCOLN ELLSWORTH qualify now. They are the organizers. They have placed on the honorary roll Admiral ROBERT E. PEARY and Captain ROBERT F. SCOTT, who respectively gained the North and the South Pole.

As Captain AMUNDSEN has been at both the Poles, he may have no peer in that distinction unless Commander BYRD realizes his dream of flying to the South Pole. That, it has been pointed out, would be a hazardous enterprise, so vast, high and rugged are the glacial gateways, so fierce the blizzards, so violent the winds. AMUNDSEN has told the story. Surely an inhospitable region to aviators. On arriving at the Pole with his companions AMUNDSEN made a generous resolution. The Norwegian flag was to be given to the breeze on the spot:

> I had determined that the act of planting it, the historic event, should be equally divided among us all. It was not for one man to do this; it was for all who had staked their lives in the struggle and held together through thick and thin.

So "five weather-beaten, frost-bitten "fists * * * grasped the pole, raised "the waving flag in the air, and "planted it as the first at the geo-"graphical South Pole." Then camp was made, a frail tent, and there the adventurers stayed two days, Dec. 16 and 17, 1911. A month later arrived SCOTT with his four comrades. "The "Norwegians have forestalled us and "are first at the Pole," he wrote in his journal. He noted that the Pole was about 9,500 feet in altitude: "Now for the run home and a des-"perate struggle. I wonder if we can "do it!"

ROBERT E. PEARY reached the North Pole after twenty-three years of striving. He described his achievement as "the cap and climax of nearly 400 "years of effort, loss of life, and ex-"penditure of fortunes by the civilized "nations of the world." PEARY conquered the North Pole more than two years before AMUNDSEN set up his country's flag at the South Pole. If polar exploration still had to be conducted with dog sledges, the Polar Legion would acquire new members very slowly, if at all. PEARY perceived that the airplane would revolutionize exploration. It would take only hours to fly from Cape Columbia to the North Pole. Commander BYRD was a boy at school when PEARY planned flying schedules, and in fancy saw younger men making the passage of the Arctic Sea to Spitzbergen and crossing its unmapped spaces. There will be other exploring parties going to and over the North Pole in airships. One sees the Legion taking in their leaders as new members. Flying the Arctic Sea may even cease to be a novelty, in fact become a tourists' excursion. The white bear may cease to heed the whir of the propeller as the plane speeds over his cake of ice. In time the Legion may have enough members to found a club and consume walrus and seal meat at an annual dinner.

THE ART OF HELPING.

As Miss TARBELL pointed out in the letter which she sent with her gift to the Neediest Cases, the art of helping needs study. Giving may harm or it may help. It may pauperize or it may encourage to new effort. Particularly is this great art necessary in dealing with those who have seen better days, so that their self-respect may be protected. Fortunately, those who make contributions to the Fund for Neediest Cases have at their command the services of men and women skilled in helping, who know how to give without harming the character or wounding the spirit of those whose need is greatest.

In smaller communities men and women living in close acquaintance with the "hungering neighbor" learn with Sir Launfal the art of giving themselves with their alms. Yet now and then there is a village without persons in need, as, for instance, one in New Jersey from which a contribution to the Neediest Cases was sent by one who says "we have no poor in our borough." But in this city, where one does not know even his neighbors, the giver must give himself through others, if he is to feed three: himself, the unknown and the "me" who reads of his gift and so has some nourishment of spirit. For such givers the other less-quoted lines of "The Vision of Sir Launfal" are more pertinent:

> He who gives [though] a slender mite
> And gives to that which is out of sight,
> * * * * *
> The hand cannot clasp the whole of his alms,
> The heart outstretches its eager palms,
> For a god goes with it and makes it store
> To the soul that was starving in darkness before.

The contributor to the Neediest Cases gives to a need out of his sight, except as he reads of it, but in a true sense a god goes with each gift in the person of one who knows the divine art of helping.

The Fund for the Neediest Cases is today about one hundred thousand below the total contributed last year—and there remain but five days to Christmas morning. No reader should fail to give at least a little, since he or she may know not only that every penny will go to the need, but that it will be applied by those who know how to make it a "store"—that is, abundance—to some one "starving in darkness."

FROM THE FIG LEAF PRESS.

Being a journalist, Mr. GORDON PHILLIPS in The Manchester Guardian admits the awkwardness of being mistaken sometimes for a literary person. He receives not only the printed matter which any one with a permanent address is deluged with every morning—notices from restaurants, money lenders, florists and department stores—but the special ammunition reserved for those who earn a living by writing, and presumably are able to read. What seductive prospectuses of limited editions come to hand! From the letters and leaflets broadcast to pen-pushers or typewriter-pounders, one would imagine that a rich supply of esoteric literature awaited their command.

Mr. PHILLIPS has described one of the pamphlets characteristic of the small, noble-minded presses which publish works combining the frankness of the Middle Ages with the frankness of the Moderns. He confesses to some uncertainty about his facts: it is possible he dreamed the whole thing. But even if he did, his fancy is so closely allied to conditions seen about us that it is at least as good as the truth. The first proof is the name of the forth-putting publisher—the Fig Leaf Press. Next in importance for verisimilitude is the appearance of the manifesto, decorated with a woodcut depicting "an "ebony Adam embracing a negroid "and vastly abdominal Eve under "the shadow of a pitch-black stick "of celery." Who will not recognize this cover of a thousand and one slim, elegant booklets? They are all done on paper of rough texture, with torn edges, very black print, usually Clarendon or something like it. With the physical aspect of the announcement goes its interior thought.

First of all, "the Fig Leaf Press "inevitably attracts to itself the Writ-"ers of Distinction." Then comes the list of names of novelists, poets, critics and philosophers who have been attracted. They are rather ingenious and astonishing names, concluding with the American authoress, Miss Alice Egg, who is admitted along with the others as being (in Bloomsbury) a household word. It appears that in spite of the diversity of their talents these lights have one quality in common—they are candid, every line written bears the impress of a personal mood and moment, and "the Urge of the Ultimate Ego has been All-Sufficient."

A statement of aims announces that morals are not considered; Art suffices. "Solely at the discretion of the "author—or until there is positive "trouble with the police—all shall be "noble and nude and Neo-Georgian." This brings us to an explanation of the name of the concern, as logical as all the rest of the business. It is called the Fig Leaf Press because there is no fig leaf. It also brings us to the conclusion that Mr. PHILLIPS'S dream was no dream, but an undistorted reflection of all the fig leaflets now bursting the buds.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Other Things to Be Thought Of.

The proposed 110-story building on West Forty-second Street may or may not be a thing of beauty, but certainly it is a thing of congestion. This is the first and appalling objection which occurs to everybody interested in city planning and city rapid transit. It is estimated that the projected structure would house 30,000 people. In other words, it would locate a moderate-sized city in a single block.

According to engineers and architects, the great building would technically be feasible. Real estate men believe that the financial returns from so large an investment might be highly doubtful. These things are for the experts in their respective fields. But the wayfaring man in the street, especially the man who makes daily use of the subway, is fully able to appreciate the new strain on transportation which would be caused by the addition of 30,000 travelers at one point.

The discussion of this structure, planned to be the highest in the world, is but one more argument for securing a comprehensive and perfected scheme of city development. The old haphazard, every-man-for-himself practice was long since given up. Rules and ordinances have been adopted insuring a certain measure of restraint and control. But that they have not yet gone far enough is vividly suggested by the announced attempt to make the Tower of Babel look like a child's plaything.

London's War on Jay-Walkers.

London is starting a campaign against jay-walkers. With the proverbial English courtesy, the warnings against crossing streets except at designated places are couched in the words "Please cross here."

The reasons for this designation are several. In the first place, Britain never succumbed as much as did the United States to the German system of "Verbotens." Our laws and regulations naturally contain countless prohibitions. Our campaigns too often do the same, with the result that we are constantly faced by "Don'ts." We have therefore come to expect a "bawling-out" even from signs and posters.

In England they order this otherwise. Their instructions are more in the affirmative. Those whose duty it is to see them enforced are almost invariably courteous. The number of "Th'nk's'rs" daily uttered by London "bobbies" and bus conductors is incalculable.

London is lucky in being spared the grotesque figures of the severely prim lady who appeared in posters in this city two years ago under the title "Aunty Jay-Walker." Her exhortations not to cross between corners were voluminous. But as her title is pronounced in England "ahnty" or even "awnty," the Londoners would be certain to regard her interference as an impertinence.

Answers as Wanted.

Scientific investigators are finding out many facts about children which it may be suspected parents have long known. The complete report of three years' study of "honesty" among school children in New York will not be made until after the first of the year, but meantime a few useful items have been allowed to leak out.

Tests have been devised to discover tendencies to lie, cheat or steal. At the same time ordinary intelligence tests were given in order to show the relation between good sense and good character, if any. The results indicate that the more intelligent a child is the more honest he is likely to be.

A number of questions designed to probe the religious and filial feelings were answered as might have been expected, and the children were convicted of "overstatement." Apparently they all thought it desirable that they should seem pious and dutiful, and they said that they thought it their duty to read the Bible every day, to pick up broken glass in the str to speak kindly to their parents and instructors, and to try to get the license number of a motor if they suspected the driver of speeding.

Most children have the knack of reading the mind of a questioner. They are as shrewdly observant as monkeys, and a really intelligent inquirer often resorts to trickery to get to the bottom of their busy little minds.

How Did King David Pronounce?

It is to be presumed that the Habima Players in presenting a repertory in Hebrew before a New York audience took count of several factors. In the first place, they would depend on the universal appeal of art, and especially of the art of the theatre, which in the case of the recent Stanislawsky players from Moscow succeeded in cutting across the barrier of language. In the second place would be the large Jewish population which might derive from the liturgy of the synagogue some equipment for keeping up with proceedings on the Habima stage. The Faculty of the Union Theological and General Seminaries might, or might not, help to fill up the lower boxes.

The difficulty, however, goes beyond vocabulary. For the purposes of the Hebrew theatre a knowledge of the language of the Bible is conditioned by the style of pronunciation in which the listener has been trained. The Habima Players pronounce Hebrew in the so-called Sephardic manner. The stress, as in French, falls on the terminal syllable. There are other differences from the prevalent pronunciation in Eastern Europe. Consequently difficulties have been recorded.

It is a factor not always taken into account in schemes of an international language. Englishmen, Russians and Chinese may use the same Ido or Esperanto vocabulary, but in speaking, and speaking rapidly, will nationalize the word, sometimes out of recognition.

Conditions at Yale-in-China.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read with some interest, and not without amusement, The Associated Press dispatch from Shanghai reporting the "Bolshevist" disturbances in the College of Yale-in-China.

The so-called demands were presented on Oct. 28, and on Oct. 29 the students voted that the Faculty reply was perfectly satisfactory. Classes were not interfered with, and nothing approaching a deadlock happened.

The demands were not presented by students in the college, but by Middle School students—boys of high-school age and mentality—the group which has been most vocal in all Chinese student disturbances. College students were very helpful in effecting a compromise.

Recent correspondence assures us that classes have gone on without interruption, that our enrolment continues larger than last year, that the spirit on the campus is good, and that cordial relationships exist between the Cantonese and Yale-in-China.

Children and Churches.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Diana Rice's article entitled "Few Children in Pews of New York Churches" has a tendency to give some of your readers, notably non-churchgoers, a false impression. Although the author writes of "one who has visited twenty-five churches of different denominations during the past year reports that not 5 per cent of the congregation in any of these churches are children," in no case is it stated that the Catholic churches are not under consideration.

There are more Catholics in New York City than members of all the other denominations put together. Children make up from 20 to 25 per cent. of the congregations of all our churches. Practically every parish has to have a special service for the children each Sunday, at which the whole church is given over to them. It is not a case of getting the children to church, a number of Catholic pastors will tell you, rather it is a question of finding room for those coming.

Gifts for Children Needed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The New York Nursery and Child's Hospital, 161 West Sixty-first Street, is appealing to its friends for Christmas toys and comforts for the children in its care.

Four hundred of these children, abandoned or separated from their parents by death, sickness or worse, are in foster homes. We want to see that Santa Claus visits every one of these homes, that the wonder and excitement of waking to Christmas morning is fulfilled. Three hundred more, under treatment in our dispensary, are in their own homes, but likely to wake to empty stockings. Another hundred will be in the hospital wards, expecting Santa Claus just the same.

New toys and books, or money to buy them with, will receive warm welcome—also blankets or clothing for those who need them.

We have been "playing Santa Claus" for over a hundred years, and each year the circle widens and the joy of it mounts anew.

Vanderbilt Clinic Asks Aid.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Every Christmas the Vanderbilt Clinic has remembered many of the unfortunates who visited the clinic for medical aid during the year. Last year holiday cheer was given to 820 people, including distribution of 299 items of clothing to 106 patients, sixty-six Christmas baskets provided by the Women's Auxiliary, and from forty to forty-five baskets from other sources.

In the children's tubercular clinic there are now 326 children. It is hoped to remember from 200 to 300 of them—of course, dependent upon whatever money is received. In two other clinics there are 285 children. In the children's and babies' room there are 100 children, all in need of some sort; but the present Christmas fund is inadequate. Contributions will be gratefully received. Address Christmas Committee, Vanderbilt Clinic, 15 Amsterdam Avenue.

Who Will Fill a Red Stocking?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The visitors and nurses of the A. I. C. P. staff are depending on old and new friends to help them in filling the Christmas Red Stockings which they send on Christmas Eve to all the children in the families under their care. Last year 6,000 of these stockings were filled through the cooperation of individuals and organizations. About half of that number are now in the hands of old friends. The others, each labeled with the name of the boy or girl to whom it will go on Christmas Eve, are waiting for a call from those who would, in this personal way, send the Christmas message into some tenement home.

Any one wishing to help may write to the A. I. C. P., 105 East Twenty-second Street, or phone Gramercy 7040, Red Stocking Department.

THINGS LOVED.

I have not loved so many things—
Pink roses in a silver bowl,
And once I loved a Dresden doll
With her stiff frock and china soul.

There was a child with dingy hands
And such a gay gold head;
All day we hunted lovely things
By sprightly fairies led.

And I have loved the twilight hour,
The broken-hearted dusk,
The linnet's song, the light of stars,
The dim perfume of musk.

There was a lad I dearly loved,
Who left my heart a trap
That's filled with dim half-hearted things,
And opalescent scrap.

And I have loved your mind, my friend,
With its majestic light—
Light that has filled a darkened room
And left no place for night.

AN ANALYSIS OF THE SOUTH'S ATTITUDE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is opportune for the thinking people of this section of the United States to take cognisance of the claims of Governor Smith for the prize he is now seeking and to weigh those claims calmly and dispassionately. This paragraph is written in the full knowledge that Governor Smith, personally, is not doing a single thing to help his candidacy.

As a Southern Democrat, the writer will attempt an analysis of the feeling toward Governor Smith as held by a majority of the Southern Democracy. The conclusions reached will not be creditable to us; but they will, at least, have the merit of candor.

As viewed by the writer, the outstanding figures in the Democratic Party, representing extremely opposite views, are Senator Walsh of Montana and Governor Smith of New York. Mr. McAdoo is not taken into consideration, because his candidacy is but a gesture which no one takes seriously.

Senator Walsh is a dry, his character and ability are too well known to admit of any argument. As one outstanding foe of political corruption, he is in a class by himself. As a lawyer and statesman, he simply scintillates. As a dry, his defense of the Volstead act leaves nothing to be desired. As a believer in a strongly centralized Government, he is the direct heir of Alexander Hamilton. If Senator Walsh were elected President, it would mean the enforcement of the Volstead act with an inflexibility now unknown. Every ounce of power that the Federal Government controls would be used in a relentless manner in order that Volsteadism might be enthroned. In a recent issue of Columbia, the official organ of the Knights of Columbus, Senator Walsh defends the enactment of the prohibition amendment with a vigor and clarity that one would expect of a man of his attainments. This article should alone stamp him, from the prohibitionist point of view, as the logical candidate for their support. If the prohibitionists in the Democratic Party really want the Volstead act enforced, they should rally around Senator Walsh.

Now about Governor Smith. As a pure type of the Jeffersonian Democrat his candidacy should appeal more particularly to the South than to any section of this country. As a defender of the rights of the State against a highly centralized Washington oligarchy Governor Smith is in line with Southern sentiment. His position on the Volstead act, as understood by the writer, is that it should be repealed or modified, and that each State should handle its whisky problem in the manner best suited to its people. This position is sound, and the attitude of the South on a Federal anti-lynching bill leads one to the conclusion that the South still believes in "States' rights." The teachings of Calhoun have not been relegated to the limbo of lost political ideals—in South Carolina, in any event.

Governor Smith, while lacking the possible polish and attainments of Senator Walsh, is, nevertheless, his equal in strength of character and downright rugged honesty. Coming as he does from plebeian folk, untainted by any patrician flow, and with a power unequaled by any man in America to captivate the voter, Governor Smith deserves the serious attention of those Democrats, North and South, who believe honestly that the success of the Democratic Party will enhance the general welfare.

Assuming the correctness of the foregoing, the question arises: Why is it that the "dry South" does not concentrate on Senator Walsh for the Democratic nomination, and why the wets and States' rights politicians of the South do not demand Smith? The answer is easy. They both worship the God that created them in a manner unconventional in the South! That both Senator Walsh and Governor Smith have this right, the South concedes—and at the same time penalizes.

It is true that the South does not know, and, not knowing, cannot understand, that there is nothing incompatible with good citizenship and the religion of these two men, that spiritual obedience and political obedience are entirely separate and distinct, and that the one does not imply the other. That Smith and Walsh owe political allegiance to the United States and to no other country or person is something that should be told to our people.

The South is a religious land; yet the religion of Smith and Walsh built the first church in the New World dedicated to the worship of the one true God. Does the South believe in education? Let it be told to us that the same religious faith that is responsible for the first church erected in the New World the first schoolhouse. Let the South be told that the faith of Smith and Walsh has not yet produced a Benedict Arnold. We should also know that in proportion to population the adherents of the faith of Walsh and Smith do not hold public office in disparity to their numbers, serve in the army and navy in time of war. Let the South know that during the Civil War no religious test was applied. North or South, that Beauregard, a Confederate soldier, of whom it has been written:

> There is a name on the book of fame,
> Encircled by stars of quenchless light;
> Never a blot that page hath marred,
> And the star-wreathed name is Beauregard.

was a communicant of the faith held by Smith and Walsh. That gallant, M. C. Butler, a Senator from South Carolina, and Pat Walsh, a Senator from Georgia, belonged in the same religious category. That Father Ryan, the poet-priest of the Confederacy, was of the same faith embraced by Smith and Walsh. That Christopher Columbus and his patron, Queen Isabella, were also of this faith.

The whole truth of the matter is that our people do not know; if they were taught the truth, Governor Smith will receive the vote of the South in the next Democratic Convention. If nominated, he will carry every State in Dixie. All talk about Smith not being able to carry Dixie on the Democratic ticket is veritable bosh; and the propagandists spreading it know full well that this is true, hence the fight against his nomination.

There are numbers of influential men in the South who are hoping Smith wins the nomination, because they feel that he can be elected, and I feel quite sure that their weight will be felt in due time.

Put this question to the test: Would you prefer the brilliantly mediocre, taciturn Coolidge to a fellow disciple of democracy with such an unapproachable record as Governor Smith's? The writer feels sure that the response would be well-nigh unanimous for Smith.

A SOUTHERN DEMOCRAT.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

R. H. Dabney of the University of Virginia makes a curiously contradictory plea in support of Governor Smith's Presidential candidacy. In one paragraph he argues that Southern Democrats have such acute memories of "reconstruction" days that they will vote against anybody bearing the Republican label. In the next paragraph he argues that Southern Protestants have grown so liberal that they have forgotten the 400 years of intense spiritual jealousy between the Roman and the Nordic religious faiths.

Having been active in Southern journalism for forty-five years, I am not able to agree with Mr. Dabney. There are old social associations still existing in the South which have the effect of handing political inheritances down from father to son. But there has been much immigration from outside, and industrial life, and "reconstruction" has been largely forgotten in the presence of material activities. Religious hatreds are deeper than political jealousies, and the old fire is always smoldering, ready to be blown into flame by hot-air oratory.

The real situation might be better understood from inquiry among the Catholic clergy—the real priests who minister to their people daily. They dread the raising of the religious question in politics upon the Presidential scale. It means to them and their flocks a long period of social and political war. The South, outside of a few localities, is intensely Protestant. With the Democrats carrying both Tammany and Catholic handicaps in the saddle, the South will be openly debatable, in my judgment.

We Restore Maine's Geography.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Right in the midst of my satisfaction with THE TIMES I read an article—I think it was on Nov. 27—having to do with the election of Senator Gould of Maine. This being my native State, I was naturally pained and shocked to have you attempt to rearrange its geography with apparently no consideration for the feelings of the inhabitants.

I find a statement something like this: That Presque Isle is off the northeast coast of Maine. This, of course, may be true but the last time I was down there there was no northeast coast of Maine unless you count the boundary line where it runs along the St. John River. Furthermore, Presque Isle is not an isle anyhow.

I appeal to you on the ground of fairness to restore the geography of the old State to the same position where the Almighty, assisted by Daniel Webster and Lord Ashburton, left it.

Praise for Ellis Island.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Some five years ago I had occasion to see something of Ellis Island when some young friends of mine were coming across from the Near East. At that time I found a great deal of discourtesy at the island.

I am writing this not to bring up unfortunate memories, but to say how much pleased I was a short while ago when I again had occasion to visit the island to see the great improvement in conditions there. Some of the attendants, indeed, put themselves out to be helpful to me.

Of course Ellis Island is not yet heaven. Immigrants may on occasion find things of which they may have real cause for complaint. But the improvement is so great that I want to congratulate the immigration authorities on it.

The Late Chandler Withington.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The death on Monday last of Chandler Withington, late Chief Engineer of the Department of Finance, deserves more than passing notice. To say that for forty-five years he was a faithful and devoted servant of the City of New York tells only part of his story. As one who knew him well for thirty years, and who served under him for ten years of that time, I feel that his great service was in the example he set for all who were associated with him. Courteous and considerate, he was always willing to hear both sides of every question. Visitors and claims for millions of dollars poured through his hands each month. Some he approved, some he disapproved, but in all his long service no claimant ever left his office or his presence with the feeling that he had received other than a square deal from Chandler Withington.

Personally a man of the highest sense of honor, he built up a staff imbued with his ideals, and today the engineering division of the Department of Finance stands pre-eminent in the city's service.

Appeal for City Mission Society.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At this Christmas season may I call attention to the extensive Christmas [illegible] rendered by chapelains and workers of the New York Protestant Episcopal City Mission Society?

From its foundation in 1831 it has been the object of this society to go in Christ's name to the needy and the overlooked. Today, although its work needs to be much enlarged, it reaches out as never before into hospitals, homes, asylums, prisons, courts and many other fields of service.

In all of its work there is need for gifts of money and clothing for men, women and children. It is my hope that hundreds of people throughout the city will wish to make a gift this season to its Festival Relief Fund so that this may be large enough not only for Christmas needs, but for a substantial program of relief throughout the year. Gifts or checks should be drawn to the order of Harry P. Robbins, Treasurer, and be sent to the headquarters, 38 Bleecker Street.

DR. HUNTER DIES ON VISIT TO DETROIT

HE CHAMPIONED SUCCESSOR

Pastor Emeritus of Second Presbyterian Church Planned Fight Before Assembly.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 19.—While making a short visit with a lifelong friend the Rev. Dr. Pleasant Hunter, pastor emeritus of the Second Presbyterian Church of Newark, N. J., died at the Cadillac Hotel in this city at an early hour this morning.

The Rev. Dr. Hugh Jack of Dearborn, with whom Dr. Hunter and his wife were visiting, said Dr. Hunter complained of not feeling well late Saturday evening but thought it was nothing serious. At midnight he became worse, and the house physician was called. An hour later Dr. Hunter died from a heart attack.

The body will be shipped to Newark Monday morning. It will be accompanied by Mrs. Hunter.

Dr. and Mrs. Hunter were on their way to California and stopped in Detroit to visit Dr. Jack.

Planned to Defend Successor.

The Rev. Dr. Pleasant Hunter, pastor emeritus of the second Presbyterian Church, at Washington Park and James Street, Newark, was formerly pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian Church, at West End Avenue and Ninety-first Street, New York City. He was 71 years old.

Dr. Hunter and Mrs. Hunter left Newark last Thursday morning for Pasadena, Cal., where they had planned to remain until after the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church next May in San Francisco.

The clergyman had expected to fight before the General Assembly for the dismissal of a complaint to be sent to that body from a minority in the Presbytery of Newark against the installation of the Rev. Lester H. Clee as pastor of the Second Church, Newark, as Dr. Hunter's successor. The orthodoxy of Mr. Clee has been under fire. The Presbytery had voted to defer the installation until after the Assembly takes action.

Dr. Hunter had been the stanch supporter of Mr. Clee in his clash with the Presbytery.

The news of the death of Dr. Hunter reached Newark through a telephone call from Mrs. Hunter. Mr. Clee announced it at the morning service.

There was widespread comment that a stormy meeting of the Newark Presbytery last Tuesday afternoon at which it was finally voted to postpone the installation of Mr. Clee at the Second Church until after the Assembly, in which Dr. Hunter took an active part, preceded his death by only a few days.

At the request of Mrs. Hunter, Dr. Wallace Hurff, a friend of Dr. Hunter, and Mrs. George Marshall, Mrs. Hunter's closest friend, left for Detroit to accompany Mrs. Hunter home.

The funeral services will be held in the Second Church, probably on Wednesday.

Dr. Hunter was twice pastor of Second Church. His first pastorate was for about five years and his second for twenty years. He retired more than a year ago and was elected pastor-emeritus on a pension of $4,000.

DIES AFTER PRISON ROW.

Hart's Island Inmate Struck by Man Whose Sleep He Disturbed.

With the death yesterday morning of Nicholas Codispodi, an inmate of the branch penitentiary on Hart's Island, from a wound received Friday when he was struck on the head with an iron rod by another prisoner, the charge of felonious assault against George T. Sullivan, 54 years old, was changed to one of homicide.

Codispodi, 21 years old, of 10 Oakland Place, Brooklyn, was serving a one-year term for receiving stolen goods. Sullivan, held as a vagrant, was taking a nap in a dormitory about 5 P. M. Friday, while Codispodi and several other inmates were skylarking. The noise awakened the sleeper who remonstrated with the merrymakers and lost his temper. According to Assistant District Attorney William Kier, Sullivan admitted later he had picked up an iron rod and struck Codispodi and Edward Payson, 30, a peddler, before other inmates subdued him.

GENERAL WILLCOCKS. NOTED FIGHTER, DIES

LIEUTENANT OF KITCHENER

Took Part in Indian and African Campaigns and World War—Knighted by the King.

DELHI, India, Dec. 19 (AP).—General Sir James Willcocks, distinguished soldier and Governor General of Bermuda from 1917 to 1922, died at Bhartapur on Saturday.

General Sir James Willcocks was an active participant in many of the important campaigns of the British forces in India and West Africa from 1879 to 1908. He was born at Delhi in 1857, knighted in 1900, mentioned scores of times in dispatches and rewarded for his services with numerous decorations, including the Distinguished Service Order.

He also received the freedom of the City of London and a sword of honor and was mentioned in the King's speech at the opening of Parliament.

Amherst College, in Massachusetts, conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Laws in 1918, after he became Governor of Bermuda.

General Willcocks was one of the chief lieutenants of the late Lord Kitchener in the reorganization of the military defenses of India. He was selected at the outset of the World War to command the large force of Indian troops that went to France. The natives idolized him, and few Englishmen have had more intimate acquaintance with India. Sir James came of a noted Anglo-Indian family. His brothers also had distinguished careers, one of them, Sir William, having organized the State irrigation systems of India and Egypt and constructed the famous dam at Assuan on the Nile.

In December, 1915, General Willcocks resigned his command of the Indian troops in France. It was said at the time that he did so on account of differences with Sir John French. Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien had previously taken similar action, supposedly for the same reason.

When General Willcocks assumed the Governorship of Bermuda that colony's trade was suffering from the effects of the war. Shortly before he returned to England he stated that conditions were fast approaching pre-war prosperity.

MISS K. A. M'CANN DIES; TEACHER FOR 53 YEARS

Miss Katherine A. McCann, who retired last February as Principal of Public School 17 after fifty-three years of teaching in the city's schools, died yesterday morning at the age of seventy-one in her temporary residence at 465 West 148th Street. Since her retirement she had been living at her country home in Spring Lake, N. J. The funeral services will be conducted by Monsignor Michael J. Lavelle at St. Patrick's Cathedral at 10:30 Wednesday morning.

At the old North Moore Street School in this city, Miss McCann received her elementary education. Later she attended Hunter College and was a member of the first class to graduate there, in 1872. That Fall she began her work for the New York schools. Throughout her career as a teacher she taught boys the elementary subjects.

Appointed a principal in 1896, Miss McCann was assigned to Public School 51, where she remained for nine years. Then she went to the big school at 328 West Forty-eighth Street, No. 17, and there stayed for twenty years, until she reached the age seventy and therefor was compelled by law to retire. Those who saw her last Friday at the big testimonial meeting in her honor said that she looked far less than her age, capable of many more years of valuable service to the city. In the first thirty years of her work, Miss McCann did not miss a single day through illness, and except for a serious operation she was only absent from her duties for three days in fifty-three years.

Miss McCann was one of the founders and a former President of the Theta Pi Alpha, an organization of Catholic teachers, and she was a life member of the Catholic Summer School of America.

HERBERT R. GALT, ST. PAUL EDITOR, DEAD

Head of The Pioneer Press and Dispatch for the Last Thirteen Years.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 19 (AP).—Herbert Randolph Galt, editor of The St. Paul Pioneer Press and Dispatch for thirteen years, died of heart disease early today in a hospital at the age of 45.

Stricken last Monday at his desk, Mr. Galt had shown improvement during the week, and physicians on Thursday said they believed he might recover, but a relapse came this morning.

Mr. Galt was born in Upperville, Va., on April 27, 1881, and was educated at the Marston School in Baltimore and the Episcopal High School in Alexandria, Va. He began newspaper work in 1900 as a reporter on The Baltimore American. Two years later he went to The Baltimore News. In 1909 he came to St. Paul.

For four years he was city editor of The Pioneer Press and Dispatch and in 1915 became managing editor. While in recent years his attention had been given to the editorial page, he continued in touch with the news department.

He was one of the first members of the American Society of Newspaper Editors and had been prominent in its work.

FROM THE WRITINGS OF THE FOUNDER

They Say That the Hours of Christmas Week

fly faster than at any other time of the year, but it is really a fact that our most pleasant hours always fly the fastest.

"I will go myself and attend to it" and "I will see to it at once" alway succeed in getting things done.

To believe you cannot do a thing is the way to make it impossible. Whoever does not improve today will grow worse tomorrow.

There is such a thing as avoiding the rain and getting into the hurricane.

Place the Mark of Distinction on Your Gifts

HAPPINESS ENTERS HOMES OF NEEDIEST

More Than 200 Cases Are Cared For, but Many More Are Calling for Relief.

SIX ORGANIZATIONS ACTIVE

ANOTHER $1,000 GIFT COMES

Total of the Fund Is Now $161,605 —Children, Schools and Groups of Employes Aid the Cause.

Contributions of $9,186.66 increased the total for the Neediest Cases yesterday to $161,605.62. Nearly $100,000 more is needed to equal the total of the fund last year—$260,998.20—which provided for [illegible] cases. More than two hundred of this year's cases have been taken care of.

Among yesterday's contributions was an anonymous gift of $1,000. Three $500 contributions were received, one from Abner M. Seeley, another sent anonymously, and the third, "In Memory of J. H. C. and L. R. C."

Contributions of $100 came from the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, the Charity Organization of Woodmere Academy, Clarence R. Newell, Robert F. Gleason, Jules M. Salmanowitz, Mrs. H. L. T., Edgar Boody, Mrs. A. Abraham, Anna Terbell, F. P. K., Mr. and Mrs. Percy H. Jennings, Estes & Blum, Inc., J. L., Arthur Lorsch, and Frank L. Scott Company. Two $100 memorials were received, one "To the Memory of My Husband," and the other "In Memory of Helen."

Thirty-six contributions were made in memory of dear ones.

Children Find a Way to Help.

One contribution of $5 represented money raised by the sale of tin foil collected by school children. Many schools, clubs and groups of employes were among the contributors. Another contribution consisted of the proceeds of a play staged at home by two 10-year-old girls, Amie Herzog and Isabel Lucile Pick.

A $2 contribution came with this explanation: "I am Roger K. Wolbaisb and I sent you 100 pennies last year and this time I broke my new sister's bank. She is Jane and she is 1 year old. Let every boy and girl send some money and make many poor playmates happy."

Contributions must pour in generously between now and Christmas to insure relief on a scale equaling that of last year. This relief goes to those who are utterly helpless through sickness, bereavement, accident or old age. It is not for the holiday season only but for the year around. All that can be done for hopeless invalids and for aged couples is to see that they have a degree of comfort and peace of mind as they pass through the twilight of life. In other cases not only are immediate needs met, but constructive help looking toward the future is provided.

In each case the work of relief is complete and thoroughgoing. Sick men, women and children receive the best of treatment and care. Minor ills receive attention as well as major ones. Incipient troubles are checked. The foundation is laid for sound health in the future, so that a family may not only become self-supporting again but may remain so. Sick fathers, mothers and children are treated in hospitals or at home, according to the needs of the case.

Saving the Children.

Children, suffering from the neglect necessarily accompanying dire poverty, are often thoroughly made over hygienically. Decayed teeth are filled. Adenoids and diseased tonsils are removed. Cod liver oil and sunlight gradually builds up strong, healthy bodies for pale, shaky children suffering from rickets, the scourge of childhood, especially in great cities where high buildings keep the streets half-darkened, and more especially in poor families where proper diet is not understood or cannot be supplied. Crippled children receive the benefit of modern research. Operations and special exercises often make it possible for them to discard crutches and braces. Mothers receive the benefit of modern knowledge of nutrition. They are taught what foods their children need and how to prepare them.

The qualities and abilities of growing children are studied. They receive expert advice as to their future. They are instructed in the trades for which they are best fitted so that their earnings may be substantial as soon as they are old enough to leave school. Men who have become partial invalids through sickness or accident are trained and helped to find lighter employment. The blind are trained at schools for the blind so that they may become wage earners again. Contributions for the neediest cases pay the rent and purchase food, fuel and medical attention. The instruction and guidance and other personal help are the contributions of the six great philanthropic organizations aiding the cases.

Families Kept Together.

In many cases excellent mothers would have to give up their beloved children to orphan asylums unless public generosity made it possible to keep them. Many such helpless devoted families are in danger of being broken up.

If dollars and cents were the only consideration, if the angle is taken from which Scrooge surveyed the social problems of his time, it is cheaper for the immediate present to break up the families. A child can be maintained somewhat more economically in a great public institution than in the home of a semi-invalid mother. But the claims of the family cannot be disregarded so easily. Even the lower animals will fight for their young, and even in slavery days to separate a mother and children was considered an outrage. The feeling in a civilized community is that a good mother should be aided in every way in keeping her children.

Contributions to the neediest cases will save good households now in danger of being broken up and scattered. It will spare children the cruelty of being taken away from their homes and losing the happiness and spiritual value of family life. The aid of the State is not given in cases which are not covered by widow's pension legislation.

CASE 269—A Family of 5, Trying to Live on Vegetables Picked From the Streets.

Gertrude, 10, saw a neighboring family evicted. The sight of the crying children and men throwing the furniture on the sidewalk made a lasting impression on her. She could not sleep for two nights and would not go to school. She knew that her own mother was four months behind with the rent, and she feared that, in her absence, her own family would suffer a similar calamity and would disappear before she could get home from school. There was only $2.90 left, when the bills were paid after her father's death. Her mother, suffering from bronchitis and in grave danger of tuberculosis, could earn very little. She was defrauded out of a $10 weekly disability insurance by an unscrupulous agent who induced her to sign a waiver under the belief that she was signing a receipt for the first week's insurance. Besides the mother and Gertrude, there are Ida, 9, Maude, 5, and Arthur, 4. They have had to live largely on potatoes, carrots, beans and other vegetables which Gertrude picks up on the street as she passes through Wallabout Market on the way home from school.

Case attested and administered free of cost by the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities, 69 Schermerhorn Street. (Telephone Triangle 0710.)

Contributions to the neediest cases breathe the spirit of Christmas. To the distressed, sorrowing mother and children there is something miraculous in the way generous help comes to them suddenly from a mysterious, unknown source. Men, women and children, all of them strangers, have come to the rescue of an afflicted, heartbroken home. There is no obligation involved. The family does not even know to whom gratitude is due. The gift is a thing of immeasurable value. It is a lifeline to a shipwrecked family. It is the gift of a comfortable, decent life for the ensuing year and of a well-justified hope for a brighter future.

Checks should be made payable to the "Hundred Neediest Cases Fund" and sent to THE NEW YORK TIMES or to one of the six charitable organizations.

Messages From the Sympathetic.

Freda M. Jacobi—Enclosed please find check for $5 as the Jacobis' mite toward this gigantic reconstruction work.

S. I. C.—In the name of Him who said, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me," I am enclosing my contribution to the Hundred Neediest Cases Fund. I derive more pleasure in bestowing this gift than in any one that I give to friends at this Christmas season. My congratulations again upon this splendid work and trust that before another week ends the contributions will equal those of 1925.

Edith H. Quimby—I enclose a small check for the Hundred Neediest Cases. I only wish it might be much larger. This is a wonderful work, both in rendering aid to those who need it so desperately and in helping us busy and heedless ones once in a while to realize the other side of the picture and do a tiny bit toward evening up.

Theresa and Alfred Herrman—Daddy gave us the enclosed check to send you for your good cause.

Susan M. Cummings—Some of the ladies of the Seabury Home family have taken pleasure in getting together some "Missionary Pennies" for some needy family. I am very glad and grateful for this wonderful work, so much greater than any one can yet know.

H. E. A.—I herewith enclose my check for $25, to be applied to Case 34. The bitter cry of the poor and unfortunate should swell your fund to the hundreds of thousands. I am glad to make a slight contribution to this splendid cause.

Jean Hood, Southport, Conn.—Enclosed please find a new dollar bill which was given to me for Christmas last year and told to spend as I wished to. I chose to use it to help a neediest case. I wish it to be given to Case 50, but if it has enough already give it to another case which needs it.

Anonymous—I am glad to see that the list of contributors is increasing. It is a splendid thing to give so many people an opportunity to help those who are in such desperate need, especially at Christmastide.

Leah, Jane and Ruth—Kindly accept my wee contribution for your worthy cause in the name of my two grandchildren.

Gift From a Little Child.

Robert A. Lomberg—Again I hope this will help some other baby. It is my third Christmas and it would not seem like Christmas if I could not add my mite to the fund.

Anonymous—Kindly accept $1 for the two aged sisters, Case 79, described Dec. 15, from an aged widow who would love to contribute more to this worthy case but cannot afford it.

Marian R. Schloss—Enclosed please find a check for $5.45 for the benefit of the 100 Neediest Cases. This amount has been raised by the class of 1928 of the Dalton High School, 20 West Seventy-third Street. We are a small class and this is a small amount, but we know that every dollar counts. The class would like to be informed as to what has been done with this money and would like to keep in touch with the case which we are aiding.

Employes of Howson & Howson—We take pleasure in sending you herewith a check for $10 toward the work which you are so nobly undertaking. This contribution is sent to you from the employes of this office.

Elsa H. Keris—Enclosed please find check for $5, this amount having been realized from the sale of tin foil collected by the pupils of the second floor of Public School No. 4, Hoboken, N. J. Case 38 appeals to the boys and girls, with Case 83 as a second choice.

C-R C Law List Company—Enclosed please find check for $35, the donation of the employes of this company toward a worthy cause.

American Engineering Standards Committee—I am enclosing a check for $12.73 for the 100 Neediest Cases. This contribution comes from eleven members of our staff who are taking this means of expressing their Christmas spirit instead of the usual exchange of cards among themselves.

Irving Stein—As it has always been the custom of my dear wife to send a contribution of $25 every year to this noble and wonderful charity which I deem it a privilege to take part in, and as she has departed from earth this year, I am enclosing a check for $25 in memory of my loving wife, Mrs. Molly S. Stein. I hope that this contribution will bring cheer to some poor unfortunate family. My you go over the top with the best of success.

Mrs. H. H. H.—My daughter and I are sending checks to help a little in caring for the poor and suffering of whom there are so many that one's heart must ache for them. We should like this money to go to Case 85 or Case 96, or if those are already provided for, to any others in dire need. Please list this contribution in memory of E. H. A. L. from M. H. H. and F. L. H.

Sends Cheering Message.

Rexford Kendrick—With this small check go three cheers for this heartwarming work. Please apply the money to the case of the two old ladies who asked the way to the poorhouse. In memory of my mother, Mary Louise Kendrick.

Mrs. Albert Pretzfelder—Enclosed find a check for $5 from my children to help relieve the suffering of some other little child, with best wishes for this good work.

H. L. S.—Find enclosed check for $48. Please put it under the name of "H. S. 1 Girls of Alcuin." We all feel that this is a very worthy cause, so we've all given our bit. And as the old adage goes, "Every little bit helps."

Mrs. Joseph Friedman—Enclosed please find check for Case 33, which I think is one of the most pitiful. This cause is the most worthy of all charities.

Well Wishers—Enclosed you will find a money order for $15 that we would like to use for Case 33. It represents just a little mite from quite a few of us, and we sincerely hope that you will get the amount you need and then some.

Pierson High, Sag Harbor—The pupils of the German departments of the Pierson High School hope that this small amount may help some girl or boy to have a happier Christmas.

L. O. S.—I am very sick myself, over four years, but every one is so good to me that I must pass along a wee bit to others.

W. H. B., Albany, N. Y.—The little children mentioned below have decided that they will go without some Christmas and are sending the second installment, which they wish you would see goes to the most needy and where it will do the most good for Christmas.

Anna O. Kraus—Will you accept the enclosed check in memory of Ruth Grossman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Grossman, who passed away in a foreign country some time during the early part of December?

Jefferson B. Browne, Judge Twentieth Circuit, Key West, Fla.—I enclose check for $20 to be applied, $10 each on Case 5 and Case 31.

M. F. S.—I am enclosing to you a check for $5 for Case 29. This is sent by the members of the St. James Branch of the Girls' Friendly Society, with sympathy for the children living in a room so dark that bulbs will not grow therein.

Jean Winifred Stickel—I enclose $4. $2 of which I earned myself. Please give it to Mary in Case 85 because I was paralyzed when 3 years old. I am very glad that I can help.

Glad to Share Happiness.

Sue Marjorie Stickel—Enclosed please find $4 for Case 62 of the Hundred Neediest Cases. I am very glad to share what I have with Clara and I hope she will find a good home. With best Christmas wishes.

Anonymous—Please accept this amount, $2, in memory of my mother. I only wish it were more, but such as it is, I wish you would apply to Case 85. It's really a privilege to know of these cases first hand and to be able to help, if only a trifle. I hope that through this big work all these unfortunate ones will find help.

Esther Foster Stark—Enclosed please find check for $8 from the Girl Scouts of Haverstraw for Case 35.

Anonymous—Please use the $10 enclosed for Stuart, Case 26, a boy who has been hurt by the feeling that nobody wants him. He has my sincerest sympathy. However, if he has good stuff in him, he has a better chance to make a fine man of himself than the 12-year-old boys who are petted and neglected by indulgent parents.

A Friend—Enclosed find $1, my donation to the Hundred Neediest Cases. It is only a drop in the bucket, but I am poor, and out of a very little I give a little.

William O. Kuempel—Herewith my check as my contribution to the fund. These are heartbreaking cases and I hope that your donations greatly exceed the amount needed.

Claire del Riccio—Enclosed find my check for $15 sent in gratitude because a little boy who is very close to me has had an attack of infantile paralysis and is getting well.

Amie Herzog and Isabel Lucile Pick—We are too little girls each 10 years old. Each year we try to help some poor child to have a happy Christmas. This year we gave a Thanksgiving play in our home and earned some money. We hope that this money will bring to some poor girl or boy a Happy Christmas.

Harry L. Gips—Enclosed please find two checks for $5 each. One is from the savings ($2.50 each) of my two sons, Edward, aged 4, and William, age 7. Kindly use for the six children in Case 34 who lost their daddy. The other check is from my wife and myself to use as you wish. We wish we were more blessed with worldly goods so that we could send many times more to thank Him who is the Giver of all good things, for the loving family life that we enjoy.

Phyllis Hyman—Please accept this little trifle from me which might help make some poor little child or mother happy.

K. M. B.—This small sum is sent with an amazed appreciation of the extent of your work and heartiest good wishes.

Dr. Floy McEwen—It is a great pleasure to be able to give again to this splendid undertaking. Christmas would not be complete without a share with you in this wonderful work.

A contribution of $100 has been received from Mrs. P. J. Goodhart. It was incorrectly acknowledged. A contribution of $25 should have been acknowledged "In Memory of Mary Sanchez."

An Invalid Father, a Mother Aged Before Her Time and Five Children.

"The father and the oldest boy are both in the hospital suffering from tuberculosis and the others are in great need," telephoned a hospital nurse. The mother and five younger children were living in rooms reported "scarcely fit for human habitation." The chairs were tomato boxes; the table top was supported by an old trunk; paper and plaster were falling from the walls. In all the time that she could spare from her family the mother was busy at a table rolling cigars. She was only 37 years old, but she already looked aged. The children were Felix, 12; Ada, 11; Blanche, 7; Howard, 5, and Leon, 3. Shortly after the plight of the family was reported James died. The father is somewhat improved and their immediate necessities have been met, but their future is very doubtful.

A Boy of Nine Stricken With Paralysis and Abandoned by His Father.

Howard is 9, or maybe 10—no one knows for certain. His mother died when he was a baby. His father neglected Howard so shamefully that the boy had to be taken away from him. He had another misfortune as well—some time in his babyhood he had infantile paralysis and his right side was paralyzed. He has outgrown his limp for the most part, and the right foot drags only when he is very tired. His little mouth will always be twisted, but his little soul is whole. He is a good-natured child, anxious to please, painstaking and obedient. He is now with a kindly woman in the country who is giving him the affection he so richly deserves, but her purse is not as full as her heart. Money must be obtained to keep him in his happy home.

A fragment from an emery wheel pierced his eyeball. In a few weeks he was apparently recovered and he went back to his work as a grinder in an iron foundry. But terrific headaches and waves of dizziness came on without warning and he could not continue with his exacting occupation. He took whatever work he could get—driving a laundry wagon, helping a fruit peddler, street sweeping—but he grew steadily worse and is now an invalid at 27 years of age. An operation and months of treatment may cure him. "I wish I could help him, but I can hardly limp around," said his wife, a sufferer since birth with hip dislocation. Their baby, Caroline, is less than a year old. Their happiness has been cut short after little more than a year of marriage, and they are in the greatest distress.

A Hungry Family of Six, With Only $3 a Week to Sustain Them.

All the rooms were icy cold except the kitchen, where a small oil stove was burning and the mother and five children huddled around it. All the children are puny. The only toy in the household belongs to Rose, 4 years old, who has a three-legged woolen dog which she found in the street. The family's chairs have broken legs and arms, which are nailed or tied together. To pay the rent of their rooms, which are in a dark basement, their mother works as the janitress of two tenement houses. From overwork and undernourishment she is small and emaciated, weighing less than 100 pounds. Their only regular income of $3 a week which Michael, 15, earns by working after school and on Saturdays. Mildred, 11; Carrie, 9, and Eustace, 5, are very much undernourished. While the family is in this condition, the father is in Bellevue Hospital suffering from tuberculosis.

Alone in the World for Thirty Years, a 71-Year-Old Woman Needs Help.

She was moving with a slower step and her 71 years were telling on her. Failing eyesight and increasing feebleness made it impossible to do a good day's work any longer, and her services were not in demand. A poor neighbor saw that she was not getting enough to eat and appealed for help. The aged woman is of old American stock, her family having lived in New York for many generations. Her husband and two children died more than thirty years ago and she has been entirely alone in the world since then. Since 1896 she has earned her living by sewing, cleaning and laundry work. She lives in one basement room, which she has converted into three by dividing it with heavy curtains into kitchen, living room and bedroom. She has lived there for eight years and hopes that some piece of good fortune will make it possible for her to stay there.

Each of the schoolgirls has only one dress and one blouse, but they go to school looking very neat. Every night, when they are in bed, their mother washes their dresses and blouses and hangs them near the stove to dry. But the children are undernourished and nervous and their teeth are in bad condition. Their home is hardly furnished at all. The kitchen is the only room with a window. Never since their father died have they had enough to eat. His long illness left them two months behind with the rent and in debt to the grocer and vegetable dealer. There was insurance of $200, but the mother paid this in advance for the casket and the mourning clothes. She had not money enough to take her to the cemetery, and she could not borrow it. She does not know where her husband's grave is. Gladys, 18, handicapped by a curved spine, is a wrapper in a sausage factory. Donald, 17, a plasterer's helper, brings home his earnings and extra money that he picks up from participating in the preliminary bouts at National Guard boxing exhibitions. But the small earnings of Gladys and Donald do not save the family of seven from great distress.

In Three Small, Dark Rooms Live Two Helpless Families.

The traffic across one of the bridges over the East River roars into three small, dark rooms in which ten people live. There are two families there; one, which had a small income, had taken in the other, which had none. The father of the second family, wracked by asthma, thin, hollow-cheeked and wasted, was compelled to stop work altogether. Overwork and anxiety has broken the mother's health. The three children are pale, undernourished, listless and literally dressed in rags. They sold their household goods in order to pay rent at their former lodgings. When they were finally evicted they received shelter from the other family, but it is too poor to carry this burden without outside help.

CASE 238.

A Deserted Mother Forced to Give Up Work to Care for Her Children.

Neighbors had sent in soup. It was the only food in the house. The mother a thin, delicate woman, old in appearance for her thirty-five years, was nearly distracted. Her 5-year-old Jerry was crying incessantly, miserable from the pain in his ears and head. He had been operated on a month before. Vera, 6, was in bed, pale, weak and slowly convalescing from typhoid fever. Their father had deserted them. A small gas stove took the frost out of the air, but did not warm the room. Before the children became ill the mother had supported them by working in a pencil factory, but it will be long before she can return to that employment. Food, clothing and medical care are needed for the children.

Tuberculosis Threatens a Widow, Who Is Old at 30.

Her husband died of tuberculosis. During his illness his small store failed and the young mother was left destitute with three children. She found work in a toy factory, where she made wigs for dolls. In addition she cared for her three children, Helen 8, Alec 6 and Stanley 4, and she kept them so neatly dressed that neighbors remarked on it. One day she staggered and fell, completely exhausted by overwork and by worry about the future of her children. She is threatened with tuberculosis. Those who knew her a few years ago say that she was an extremely handsome girl, but today she is old at 30 years. Her features are thin and careworn. She must have rest and help with her little ones.

Father of 6 Is Dead, Mother Suffering From Heart Trouble.

Her husband, a longshoreman, fell down the hatch of a vessel, fractured his skull and died. The mother and her six children are now dependent on Mabel, 20, who operates a nailing machine in a box factory. The family lives in three dark, damp basement rooms. Helen, who is 13 and in 6A, wears patched, cast-off clothes given by neighbors. Caroline, 14, and Elsie, 9, have not had a new garment for years. Harriet, 17, is in a hospital with an infected foot. George earns a little by helping at a carpenter shop after school hours, but he is only 11 years old and cannot do much. The four girls sleep in one big bed. The mother is in a serious condition from heart trouble. They need better rooms, food, fuel and medical attention.

ALBANIANS HERE PROTEST.

Ask League Intervention Against Italo-Albanian Treaty.

BOSTON, Dec. 19 (AP).—Formal protest and a plea for intervention against the recently executed Italo-Albanian treaty was expressed in a resolution addressed to the League of Nations today by members of the Sons of Albania, an organization comprising twenty-five branches in the United States with headquarters in Boston.

Delegates from all over New England met here to frame the protest in which they characterized Ahmed Zogu, "self-styled President of Albania," as an "irresponsible agent of foreign States, serving the purposes of those States and imposed by foreign force upon the people."

Will Rogers Visits Kansas And Lists Its Noted Men

To the Editor of The New York Times:

DODGE CITY, Kan., Dec. 19.—Speeding across Kansas, noted for three—Senator Capper, who holds the rainbow sent up for the farmers; Curtis, who walks in front of the Republican Senators, holding out a stick of Coolidge candy, which they never reach, and William Allen White, home talent critic.

This is Dodge City, which used to be bad till the East made it ashamed of itself. The last murder here was in 1917. The man was fiendishly attacked by an infuriated Ford.

Tomorrow Arizona, if we are not late; if so, New Mexico.

The Rambling Mayor of Beverley Hills, WILL ROGERS.

I. C. C. APPOINTMENT PUZZLES COOLIDGE

OTHERS WANT COX KEPT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—President Coolidge is represented as having difficulty in reaching a decision on the vacancy in the Interstate Commerce Commission resulting from the expiration of the term of Frederick I. Cox of New Jersey early this month. A demand for a Pennsylvanian to be appointed has been made by Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, who contends that his State has no Republican on this committee nor on any other that deals with complicated industrial and railroad questions such as exist in that State.

Some months ago he presented his case to the Senate and threatened to carry his opposition so far as to oppose other Administration nominations if an assurance were not given that his plea would be heeded.

The first vacancy in the Interstate Commerce Commission since his protest is caused by the ending of Mr. Cox's term. Senator Reed has proposed Cyrus E. Woods, former Ambassador to Japan and manager of Senator Pepper's primary campaign.

Mr. Woods is a lawyer who has had experience in industrial questions and was for a time chief counsel for the soft coal corporations. His experience qualifies him for the place, in the opinion of Mr. Reed.

Senator Edge of New Jersey is working to bring about Mr. Cox's reappointment and some lawyers and labor leaders are aiding the movement. The latter contend that the selection of another man would tend to destroy the traditions of the commission and appear as an attempt to "pack" it with conservatives who might follow the ideas of those now seeking to obtain favorable action on soft coal rates to the West.

According to some opposed to the retirement of Commissioners after they have gained experience by a four-year term, the opposition to Mr. Woods might be strong enough to prevent his confirmation. Some members of the Senate group, opposed to the seating of Senators-elect Smith of Illinois and Vare of Pennsylvania, it is understood, would connect Mr. Woods with the expensive primary campaign in Pennsylvania in an effort to prevent his confirmation, if the President should name him.

The fight for maintenance of the semi-judicial aspect of the commission, as against selection on a patronage basis, has become so strong as to cause former Commissioners to protest to President Coolidge. Lawyers have written to him to protest against the retirement of Commissioner Cox.

It is understood that the President is giving the matter serious consideration and does not intend to act hastily on filling the vacancy. Commissioner Cox will continue to serve until a successor is appointed.

ORVILLE WRIGHT HEADS AIR TROPHY COMMITTEE

He Will Serve With Lewis, Findley, Ericson and Schory in Deciding 1926 Winner.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19 (AP).—Porter Adams, President of the National Aeronautic Association, today appointed the committee which will award the 1926 Collier Trophy for the greatest achievement in aviation.

The committee, which will meet here next month, is headed by Orville Wright of Dayton, one of the inventors of the airplane. He will serve with Dr. George W. Lewis of Washington of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, Captain Findley of Washington, F. C. Ericson of New York and Carl F. Schory of Washington.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Dec. 19.—The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals in Sullivan County has started a movement for Christmas dollars to care for starving and suffering animals in the county. Many of them have been left by heartless owners to starve. In some cases horses and cows have been found which had been shot and badly wounded by those who desired to get revenge on the owners of such animals.

RAILROADS OPPOSE REGIONAL BOARDS

EVILS SEEN IN DIVISION

TRADE BODIES JOIN FIGHT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—American railway Presidents, officers of State public service bodies and heads of many national trade organizations appear to be opposed to any change in the transportation laws that would diminish the authority of the Interstate Commerce Commission in regulating railroads or restore to the States the power over carriers which they exercised prior to Supreme Court decisions restricting the States to intrastate regulation.

Testimony to this effect is contained in a hundred or more letters received by Representative Homer Hoch of Kansas, who sought information on whether the work of the Interstate Commerce Commission could be lightened and made more effective if it were broken up into regional boards, or, as an alternative, that its powers be curtailed and larger authority be vested in State regulatory bodies.

Among those who responded to Mr. Hoch's inquiry on this subject were Robert S. Lovett of the Union Pacific; L. W. Baldwin of the Missouri Pacific Lines; Hale Holden of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad; E. J. Pierson of the New Haven System; Alfred P. Thom, general counsel of the American Railway Executives; William A. Prendergast, Chairman of the New York Public Service Commission, and Joseph B. Eastman, Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

For Keeping States Within Bounds.

Nearly all of these expressed opposition upon the proposal to subdivide the Interstate Commerce Commission into regional boards, as proposed by Senator Hawes of Missouri. The testimony of the railroad men was that the States should be kept within bounds and not permitted to touch interstate commerce.

Mr. Lovett expressed the belief that subdivision of the Interstate Commerce Commission would lead to confusion and probably in no way remedy the evils of Federal regulation that have been made targets of attacks. He suggested that purely executive work and police control by the commission might be transferred to the Department of Commerce for the benefit of all concerned.

Mr. Baldwin believed the burdens of the Federal commission, which is held responsible in large part for alleged faulty or inadequate regulation of railroads, might be lightened by increase in personnel. He was inclined to favor regional commissions or boards, but would not entrust this work to groups of State commissions.

Mr. Holden said the regional system might afford relief, but he was opposed to any enlargement of State authority over transportation, because, in his opinion, it would restore the former "confusion" and "discrimination."

Seeks Scientific Rate Structure.

President Pierson thought the adoption of a regional system for the commission would prove cumbersome; that the commission now kept in touch with the country through State commissions and hearings by its own examiners, and decentralization was unnecessary. He said that many of the evils complained of by shippers and railroads could be corrected by scientific rate structures. The present rate structures, he said, amounted to "patchwork," but could be easily adjusted to modern conditions, and this was all that was necessary to make the existing Federal regulation entirely effective.

While Mr. Thom did not formally commit himself in favor of the regional system he suggested that, if it were carried out, all rulings of the regional board should be subject to review by the commission in Washington.

Mr. Prendergast wrote that "it would be harmful to the entire theory of regulation to attempt to make any changes in the system at the present time." He thought the regional system would not solve the problems of the commission, the railroads or the public, and that in its operation those responsible might lose sight of the national character and scope of their work.

Would Limit State Jurisdiction.

"My impression is that it would be a mistake to give them [State commissions] more power over freight rates than they now possess," wrote Chairman Eastman of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"They still have jurisdiction over State rates and it is a complete jurisdiction except to the extent that such rates may cause prejudice to persons or localities connected in interstate commerce or unjust discrimination against interstate commerce."

Chairman Eastman said it would be "difficult to regulate freight rates in any region without consideration of the corresponding rates in adjacent regions," and for this reason the rate situation as a whole could be better handled by a central body having outlook on the country as a whole.

The Board of Railway Commissioners of South Dakota suggested that the Federal law might be changed to permit groups of State commissions to make regional examinations and promulgate rulings subject to review by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

FOSDICK ANALYZES POWER OF CHRIST

"DREW NO COLOR LINE"

Minister Cites The Times "100 Neediest Cases" in Praising City's Organized Charities.

"Christ's interest in individuals was the way by which He came to the universality of His gospel," said Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick yesterday morning in his Christmas sermon, "The Importance of the Individual," in the Park Avenue Baptist Church, Park Avenue and Sixty-fourth Street. The church was specially decorated for the Yuletide season with holly and greens and the music was appropriate to the season.

"Christmas presents us more and more each year with the astonishing contrast between the historic influence of Jesus and the apparently absurdly inadequate means which Jesus Himself used to achieve that influence," Dr. Fosdick declared. "On one side it is not simply true that His historic effect has been colossal—the calendar itself bears witness to that; here is a birth with reference to which mankind dates all other happenings whatever—it is true also that His influence permeates deeper, reaches further, haunts more consciences than ever before.

"On the other side stands out in contrast the astonishingly simple method which Jesus employed. He did nothing except care for individuals. As far as methods are concerned, that is the sum and substance of them all."

"In caring for all sorts of individuals," Dr. Fosdick went on, "the Master lost all interest in the things that divided them—color lines, race lines, religious rituals. That happened in him which happened in General Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, who, a generation ago, became passionately interested in helping individual people. 'Every canon of society,' says his biographer, 'appeared in his eyes as the trivial and pitiful etiquette of a doll house.'"

Asserting that the "wholesale poverty" of New York demanded wholesale methods, Dr. Fosdick paid tribute to the work of the organized charities of this city. "Any one who can read the stories of those unfortunates that we may read in the '100 Neediest Cases' of THE TIMES every day and remain untouched is not much of a man," he said.

"But," he went on, "it is all too easy to write a check, or two checks, or three checks and then consider our Christmas and Christian duty completed. I want every one of you, after the last check is written this Christmas, to think of some poor soul or of some poor family that may suffer unhappiness if you do not aid him or them. This, my friends, I want you to go and aid them. Aid the individual.

"This method of Christ with the individual was the test of his spiritual genuineness. What really tests our inner quality is our personal treatment of the individual. If you saw the most famous organizer of philanthropy that our charitable organizations in this city have ever produced misuse a single bootblack, you would know there was something radically wrong with him."

SAYS JESUS MARKED EPOCH.

Dr. Moor Declares His Birth Opened Brighter Age of Mankind.

The Rev. Dr. George Caleb Moor, pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist Church at Thirty-first Street, spoke yesterday morning on "The Message of the Manger."

"When we consider how sinful and depraved man can become," he said, "and then when we realize that God took upon Himself the corrupt human body just to manifest Himself to us, we can appreciate the marvel of Bethlehem. That is why the birth of Jesus was the revelation of a new epoch in the history of man.

"The greatest lesson that we personally can learn from the birth of Christ is expressed in that line of Scripture, 'Unto you is born a Saviour.' That 'you' means every one of us, and it especially applies to the toiler, the working man. Indeed, if that humble lesson of Christ to the toiler would be taken rightly our labor problem would find itself automatically solved.

"The message of Bethlehem is just as important for the men of education, for their problems are the same and their spiritual sorrows as keen. The scientist cannot put aside Jesus; indeed, geology can never get behind the Rock of Ages, biology can never really explain the rose of Sharon, and astronomy will forever be confronted with the star of Bethlehem.

"Christianity exalts the child and worships the little ones as no other religion or civilization ever has. It also deifies maternity."

Dr. W. P. Merrill Says Carols Fit Day Better Than Sermons.

The Rev. Dr. William P. Merrill preached yesterday in the Brick Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Thirty-seventh Street. He took as his text Luke ii:15, "Let us now go even unto Bethlehem."

"We bow in reverent adoration in presence of the beauty and wonder of the Christmas truth," he said. "It is no time for argument or for discussion of a theme. Carols fit Christmas better than sermons.

"God will come to us most surely and most blessedly if we receive Him into our life as we receive a little child into our home, to be our seal upon the sacredness of the past, our promise of the future, our dear object of unlimited love and devotion, to be at once our weightiest responsibility and our highest joy, in whose service we shall find our perfect freedom, whose highest good shall mean more to us than any selfish ease or success."

ASKS SPIRIT OF CHILDHOOD.

Dr. Carter Says Christmas Shows How Youngsters Lead Thoughts.

The Rev. Dr. William Carter, pastor of the Throop Avenue Presbyterian Church, Throop Avenue and Macon Street, Brooklyn, compared yesterday the religious spirit abroad during the holidays to a pilgrimage to Bethlehem.

"'A little child shall lead them,' says the Scripture," he said, "and every Christmas shows us how the children do lead our thoughts and hearts on this the greatest of our Christian festivals.

"'Unless ye become as little children ye cannot enter into the Kingdom of Heaven,' says Christ. He entered our kingdom as a little child; we can only enter His in the same way."

More Enthusiasm Urged In Fighting Life's Battles

"Nothing can stop man's enthusiasm," the Rev. Charles V. Connor said yesterday in Saint Patrick's Cathedral, Fiftieth Street and Fifth Avenue, in his sermon on "If Christ Were King Would You Imitate and Follow Him?" The speaker urged the congregation to be more enthusiastic, declaring that enthusiasm had played a great part in winning all of the world's great battles.

"Enthusiasm as displayed on the battlefields at Valley Forge, Gettysburg and at the scenes of other great engagements were largely responsible for victory," he said. "And don't forget enthusiasm and the Catholic squad in the 'Big Parade.'"

Father Connor recalled an incident in the great war when an American doughboy, under stress said "The command is forward." "Our command is forward," he reiterated, "and if you would win go forward with enthusiasm."

As a parting admonition the priest urged religious tolerance.

SAYS CHRIST GAVE NEW IDEAL OF LIFE

Dr. Hall Asserts His Teachings on Value of Service Has Revolutionized Society.

Had Nothing to Offer Save His Personality, Asserts Pastor in Yuletide Sermon.

For his sermon, "Christmas Giving," at the Universalist Church of the Divine Paternity, Central Park West and Seventy-sixth Street, yesterday, the Rev. Dr. Frank Oliver Hall quoted for his text a statement once made of Christ, "He gave gifts unto men."

"A strange statement," Dr. Hall said, "to make concerning One Who said of Himself, 'Foxes have holes and birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man hath not where to lay his head.' What had He to give? Where is the university which He established? Where is the library that He donated; the hospital named after Him because he gave it? Where are the great books He wrote, the works of art he produced, the symphonies He composed? How absurd it seems to say of Him, 'He gave gifts unto men.' What did He give?

"He gave us the inspiration of a heroic and loving personality. We admire certain great men, and love some. We have, for instance, a sense of personal affection for Lincoln. But where one man loves Lincoln, ten thousand would die for Jesus Christ. Men go to the ends of the earth at His command, and this twenty centuries after His death. There is nothing like it in history.

"He gave us the only conception of God that is really worth worshipping. The God of the Greeks was the Thunder; the God of the Jews was the King, the Lawgiver, the Executioner, the God of the Hindus sits indifferent, gazing over the world. The God of Jesus, our God, is a Father, a Companion, a Friend.

"He gave men a new ideal of life. The ordinary standard then, and now, is 'He is the greatest who gets the most.' Jesus taught us by precept and life that 'he is the greatest who serves the best.' That idea is revolutionizing society. He gave men a mighty hope of something good to come. He brought life and immortality to light, so that we may learn to approach our end 'like one who wraps the drapery of his couch about him and lies down to pleasant dreams.'"

INVOKES SPIRIT OF SERVICE.

Dr. Reiland Says Christmas Should Remind Us to Be Helpful.

The Rev. Dr. Karl Reiland, Rector of St. George's Episcopal Church, Stuyvesant Square, in his regular weekly bulletin to parishioners, issued yesterday, said:

"The Christmas spirit rebukes excess neglect and hatred; but it writes simplicity, thoughtfulness and brotherhood upon the canvas of the sky. Christmas means belief in ourselves, a consecration to heroic service for humanity, resistance to all wrongs, a lifting of heavy burdens, a protection to helplessness, virtue and innocence; a balm for the crushed and hopeless, a herald of justice, mercy and truth, a clarion call throughout the world for human betterment and a childlike enthusiasm for the tree of life whose leaves are for the healing of the nations."

TELLS HOW TO REGARD GIFTS.

Special to The New York Times.

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., Dec. 19.—Those who put Christmas on a commercial basis will "make sure of a joyless Christmas for themselves," according to the Rev. Dr. Frederick D. Niedermeyer, who preached today in the First Presbyterian Church.

"Men must believe to be happy," he continued, "believe in the kindliness, unselfishness, and right motives of those who seek to give joy by making gifts, in the disinterested intentions of people who try to bring good cheer to others, and, most of all, in the great truth that Christmas means that God became incarnate in Christ for the sake of humanity."

CHRIST A SYMBOL OF PEACE.

The Rev. Mr. Grinton Says His Birth Came as a Harbinger.

The Rev. George W. Grinton, pastor of the Five Points Mission, 69 Madison Street, preached there yesterday a sermon entitled, "A Christly Christmas." He said:

"Christianity is a religion of music. The birth of Christ means joy. What a wonderful message it was the angels brought to those humble shepherds! It aroused them to the highest pitch of enthusiasm. For unto you is born this day in the city of Bethlehem a Saviour which is Christ the Lord.

"The second part of the message announces the evangel of peace. This child came as the harbinger, the symbol of peace. O, the sweetness and simplicity of a little child! The nearer we get to childhood the closer we are to innocence and truth."

HOLY NAME SOCIETY HOLDS 6 MEETINGS

MGR. RUMMEL CITES DUTIES

Urges Men to Fight Vice, Personal Dishonor and Injury to Country and Church.

Nearly 3,000 Catholic men, members of the Manhattan Division of the New York Archdiocesan Union of the Holy Name Society, gathered yesterday afternoon in the Church of Our Lady of Good Counsel, 220 East Ninetieth Street, for the annual meeting of the society. The meeting, over which the Rev. John J. O'Donnell, director of the Manhattan Division, presided, was one of six. The others were held in the Bronx, Yonkers, Kingston, Poughkeepsie and Rosebank, S. I.

Following the address of welcome by the Right Rev. Mgr. James N. Connolly, rector of the church, the Holy Name Society roll-call was read and a representative of each parish answered.

The Rev. James B. O'Reilly of St. Malachy's Church then discussed the influence of the Church.

"The Catholic Church," he said, "exists for all people. It has been ever thus, and it is for this reason that she wields an influence that no other institution can even hope to have. Rich, poor, learned and unlearned, all are equal in her eyes, and her influence goes into the homes of the mighty as well as the houses of the poor.

"The Catholic Church, the mouthpiece of Jesus Christ, has opposed tyranny, given the world true liberty, ennobled woman, brought man from the beastlike condition in which he once lived to where he now stands. All this she has done because she follows the teachings of Christ as an absolute law."

"The Holy Name Society must become the society of every Catholic man in the United States," said Mgr. Joseph F. Rummel, D. D., pastor of St. Joseph's Church, West 125th Street.

"What should stir you Holy Name men," Mgr. Rummel continued, "is the fact that you constitute the army, the fighting forces, of the Kingdom of Jesus Christ.

"We must fight vice, immorality, personal dishonor and injury to our country and Church.

"The impression is too prevalent that the Holy Name man is a negative sort of an individual, that he does not do this and he does not do that. On the contrary, the very essence of the Holy Name Society is positive and active profession of faith in the Divine Jesus Christ, positive and active defense of Christ's Church and her teachings, positive and active support of her authority and laws and positive and active practice of the Christian life in the home, on the street, in the workshop, in the business office, in the resort of amusement, everywhere and at all hours and before all men.

"Whatever seems negative in the actions of a man of the Holy Name Society derives worth from the fact that the negative has a very positive background."

Following Mgr. Rummel's address Bishop Dunn spoke briefly on the reorganization of the New York Archdiocesan Union of the society. He explained the abolishing of the large central meeting and the dividing of the society into districts, saying that the division directors would be in constant touch and that cooperation would be the keynote of the society as heretofore.

The Holy Name pledge was then given to the men by the Rev. John J. O'Donnell. Closing the service, Mgr. James Connolly celebrated the benediction, with the Rev. Lawrence Costello and the Rev. Eugene Callahan as deacon and subdeacon. The members then sang the Te Deum.

CALLS KINGDOM OF GOD OF FIRST IMPORTANCE

Dr. McClelland Declares We Must Learn to Discriminate Among Various Parts of Life.

The Kingdom of God is one thing of supreme importance in this world, the Rev. Dr. Charles S. McClelland, retired minister, said yesterday in the Broadway Presbyterian Church, Broadway and 114th Street. Dr. McClelland took the place of Dr. Walter D. Buchanan, the pastor, who was ill.

"'Seek ye the Kingdom of God,' and the other things will take care of themselves," he said. "I do not mean that we should neglect other parts of life, but simply that we should realize that some things are infinitely more important than others.

"We must learn to discriminate, and appreciate those things which are truly valuable. Take, for instance, the rich man and the scholar who were both in a shipwreck. The rich man was left penniless, but the scholar was as well off as ever, for his treasures were all within his own head. So we should follow the name of Jesus today just as the Disciples followed it thousands of years ago. If we learn which thing is of the most supreme importance, and cling to it, it can never be taken away from us."

CRITICIZES THE METHODISTS

They Hide Political Schemes by Catholic Attacks, Says Mgr. Belford.

The Right Rev. Mgr. John L. Belford, pastor of the Church of the Nativity, giving his third Sunday afternoon address yesterday at the Knights of Columbus Clubhouse, 1 Prospect Park West, Brooklyn, took the Methodist Church to task because he said it concealed its political activities under attacks upon the Catholic Church.

Mistaken gossip, Father Belford said, had been incorporated in a magazine article, which he accredited to the Fellowship Forum, in which the erection of buildings for Catholic activities in Washington was assailed as possessing ulterior political motives.

"In reality this is an attempt to distract attention from the activities of the Methodist Church, which have received considerable publicity in the last few months. It has been shown that they have installed themselves in a building with a bureau in which legislation is hatched, inspired and directed. Here is the very Church that is making these vicious attacks doing the acts it has attributed to others."

35 Are Pledged by Uldine Utley.

Uldine Utley, fifteen-year-old girl evangelist, conducted a revival service yesterday morning in the Greene Avenue Baptist Church, Lewis and Greene Avenues, Brooklyn. At the end of the two-hour service thirty-five members of the congregation gathered before the pulpit and pledged themselves to active work for the salvation of souls.

Government Should Celebrate Christmas By Adding to Postal Staff, Dr. Young Suggests

The Federal Government might well celebrate Christmas by increasing the staffs in the postoffices, said the Rev. Dr. S. Edward Young in his sermon yesterday in the Bedford Presbyterian Church, Nostrand Avenue and Dean Street, Brooklyn. He said that postal employes had come to dread the holiday season, while the public had developed a similar feeling, owing to the long waits at all postoffice stations.

"If we have tremendously commercialized the Christmas idea," he added, "we have only carried further the inevitable inclination of all ages and all religions to promote business at special religious celebrations. With our unprecedented wealth and the universal vogue of Christmas, how could we expect to keep down the volume of trade? Is there any other way to save Christmas from being lost in Christmas trade than by having Congress and the Postoffice Department furnish ampler facilities in men and machinery for handling the vast postal increase?

"Yes, there is an additional way—we can all come to a mutual understanding to the effect that we do not prize so much the financial value or number of the gifts received as we do the remembrance and the sentiment, and we can accord the spiritual part of Christmas the foremost place, stressing public worship and family life and following out the Scripture injunction 'to send portions unto them for whom nothing is prepared; for this day is holy unto our Lord.' Tragedy of tragedies it would be if in our extravagant observing we should lose sight of the Lord of Christmas."

CALLS HIS CHURCH TO GREATER DEEDS

POINTS TO CAREER OF JESUS

He Declares Joseph and David Also Undertook Greatest Responsibilities at 30.

The Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Advent, Broadway and Ninety-third Street, observed the thirtieth anniversary of its founding yesterday when Dr. A. Steimle, its pastor, preached on the topic, "Thirty Years." The end of the thirty-year period in man's life is the beginning of maturity, he said, taking as three familiar examples the lives of Joseph, David and Jesus.

"While we remember Joseph for many things he did before he came to the fullness of his powers, it was after 30 that this dreamer became the man who saved Egypt. You will often find in history the combination of a dreamer and a man of action.

"The trouble with a great many Lutheran churches is that we stay dreamers. We are satisfied with the services and the music, whereas the call to every Christian is to hear the Saviour's command in his heart and conscience."

Dr. Steimle cited the example of David, who was 30 years old when he started to reign, and said his outstanding characteristic was the devoutness of his worship of God.

"This is the ideal which we must have before us," he continued, "devout worship, whose service will be as beautiful as we can make it. I have no sympathy whatever with church activities that are entirely separated from the sanctuary. After we have rejoiced with the Lord, then we must go forth and become men of achievement, realizing the things God would have us do. He has placed us in the greatest city in the world, with a civilization far advanced from the Hebrews, yet our duties are essentially the same as David's."

"As my last example, remember that Christ was 30 years old when he started His ministry on earth. So in our Advent anniversary, now 30 years old, we must be like Him, reaching up to bring God down to earth and reaching out to bring His healing touch to every one."

SEES CHRISTIAN SPIRIT CURE FOR WORLD ILLS

The Christian spirit can heal the differences separating men and nations, according to the Rev. Dr. Raymond C. Knox, who delivered the sermon at the Christmas vesper service yesterday in St. Paul's Chapel at Columbia University. Old and new carols were sung by the choir and the Barnard Glee Club was heard in a program arranged by Professor Walter Henry Hall.

"The love and good-will, which is Christ's spirit in men, is not passive nor weak," he said. "Neither is it blind to injustice and wrong. But it overcomes evil with good. It can heal the differences which separate men and nations, ever threatening the outbreak of war, and it can create in them instead the spirit of unity and concord and the willingness to labor together for abiding peace. The whole world is seeking today for the men and women in whose hearts Christ has been born.

"The Kingdom of God, the new and better way of living which Christ came to establish on earth, is to come—so He tells us—not by observation, not by the enactment of laws or the erection of systems. It is first to be found within, in the spirit of Christ in the heart, and then it will come with power."

TRACES HISTORY OF JESUS.

Dr. Slaten Decries Attempts to Show Saviour Never Lived.

The history of Jesus was considered yesterday by the Rev. Dr. A. Wakefield Slaten in his Christmas sermon in the West Side Unitarian Church, 110th Street, east of Broadway.

"During the last twenty years," said Dr. Slaten, "various attempts have been made in this country, in Germany and in England to show that Jesus never lived, and while the arguments are plausible it seems to me that free thought overreaches itself in this attempt to pull the keystone from the arch of Christianity. The essential fact that Jesus, the Jew, once lived, appears unshaken. He was the nucleus around which myth developed, as it has about the characters of Washington and Lincoln.

"Study of the Gospels has led some students to question the sanity of Jesus. His extravagant and unfulfilled predictions, his claims as to the power of prayer, his enormous self-estimate have made Him seem to them a religious fanatic suffering from megalomania. Such aberrations are however, familiar traits in great religious leaders and are noted by all students of the psychology of religion."

CHURCH PROBLEMS UNCHANGED, HE SAYS

Rev. Dr. George Romoser Asks Us to Believe That Profession of Faith Is Not Childish.

CONFESSION UPHELD, ALSO

Christmas Offers an Opportunity for Both, He Says—Prefers "Christ-mas" to "Xmas."

The Rev. Dr. George Romoser, President of Concordia Institute, Bronxville, declared yesterday morning in his sermon at the Evangelical Lutheran Church of St. Matthew, Convent Avenue and 145th Street, that the church today is fighting exactly the same problems with which it has always contended.

"Do not be told that our problems are new and more difficult," said Dr. Romoser.

"Do not be told that confession and profession of faith is childish, that it takes time from the solution of problems. No man is without his creed, even though that may mean that he believes nothing. No one should dodge the responsibility of confessing."

Dr. Romoser said that Christmas offers the best opportunity for profession and confession of faith. He asked that Christmas be made Christ-mas rather than Xmas.

DR. KRASS SAYS FORD SLANDERS ALL JEWS

Dearborn Independent Attack Is Scandalous Episode, He Says; Charges Untruthful.

Dr. Nathan Krass in his sermon yesterday in Temple Emanu-el, Fifth Avenue and Forty-third Street, denounced charges made against "international Jews" in Henry Ford's newspaper, The Dearborn Independent. The rabbi declared the charges were "utterly antagonistic to the teaching of Jesus," and said they were "designedly slanderous."

"The notorious maker of automobiles," he said, "who thought Arnold Bennett was a traitor, replied to the challenge made by Nathan Straus that a jury of ten Christians should sit in judgment on the accusations diabolically hurled into the heart of Israel, by reiterating the nasty calumnies made some time ago in The Dearborn Independent, an organ wholly out of tune with truth and honor. When a whole race is slandered or libeled there is no legal redress, but an individual can confront his accuser before the bar of justice. In declaring that the international Jew is in direct control of all financial centres of government, including the United States Federal Reserve System, The Dearborn Independent has been 'indiscreetly definite.' If the resolution introduced in Congress to summon the Detroiter in order that he disclose the name or names of the Jewish conspirators passes, an opportunity will be given to present in court the mass of fiction which was published as fact in Dearborn.

"The contemptible, bitter, poisonous, unholy attack on the Jews by The Dearborn Independent, that is independent of veracity, is one of the scandalous episodes of our time. Jewish literature, Jewish history and Jewish life indicate amply to all who care to learn that Israel's ambition is not world conquest with a Jew as universal emperor, but 'the brotherhood of man,' with the God of all humanity as ruler."

Dr. Krass discussed parenthetically the insinuations made against Governor Smith, that if elected President he would surrender the United States to the Pope. He said such a statement was on a par with the fear of the mischief done and about to be done by the "international Jew."

DISPRAISE OF JEWS SCORED.

Dr. Wise Says Expression "Too Bad He's a Jew" Is Condemnation.

The term applied by Christians to qualify their praise of noted Jews, "Yes, he's a good man; too bad he's a Jew," is an epitome of the hard struggle of the Jews and is a condemnation of that Christendom which makes it necessary to add to the praise of a man, "Too bad he's a Jew," said Dr. Stephen S. Wise in his sermon yesterday morning in the Free Synagogue, Carnegie Hall, Fifty-seventh Street and Seventh Avenue.

"I have heard the expression applied to me at least a thousand times," said Dr. Wise, "and it always makes me writhe. I had rather have hard words spoken of me than to hear the term, 'What a pity he's a Jew!' Dr. Leon Harris tells the story of a Christian woman who, in a New York synagogue, turned to her friend and remarked of the preacher, 'What a pity he's a Jew!'

"Analyze the term, 'too bad.' It is but a circumlocution of 'but.' Frequently it is said: 'He is a gifted man' or 'He is a brilliant scientist—but he is a Jew.' It is used in seeming compassion. But when the lady heard the preacher and remarked: 'Too bad he's a Jew,' I wonder if she felt compassion. I feel that it was not compassion but cruelty—cruelty of mass judgment. It is not extenuation but condemnation."

PASTOR IS PUZZLED BY RELIGIOUS POLL

Rev. C. N. Hogle Notes Majority Have Faith, but Do Not Go to Services Regularly.

ASKS REVIVAL IN MINISTRY

Says That Is the Greatest Cure for Indifference Toward Church, "Divinest Thing We Have."

The Rev. C. Newton Hogle, assistant pastor of the Chelsea M. E. Church, Fort Washington Avenue and 178th Street, spoke yesterday to 100 members of the Men's Club of the Broadway Temple, at a meeting in the Heights Theatre, Wadsworth Avenue and 181st Street. He cited figures, arrived at in a newspaper census, to show that 7,800 of 11,000 persons polled had declared religious faith.

"The figures resulting from this poll say two very strange things," he said. "They say that the heart of the great majority of people is religiously inclined. And the strange thing which these figures indicate is that while a great majority of these people still believe in God, immortality, prayer, Christ and the Bible, the majority now are not vitally connected with any church and do not attend church regularly. This is more confusing when we find that the majority were brought up in the church and religious homes and say that they would not like to live in a community where there were no churches.

"'What is the matter with the churches?' some one asks. It is a peculiar season of the year when some one, either a newspaper contributor or a half-hearted minister does not break forth in a column or two with what he regards as 'the faults and failures of the Church.' To say the least, it is poor sportsmanship. It gives aid and comfort to the enemies of the Church. It amuses some, wounds many, and helps none.

"Granted that it has made mistakes and failures and that there are some great blots upon its name, it is still about the divinest thing we have at the present time.

"The greatest cure for indifference toward the Church is a spiritual reawakening on the part of the ministry and the church officials."

CALM OVER "IRRELIGION."

The Rev. C. W. Beach Says Infidelity Flowers With Prosperity.

The irreligion of the day was the subject chosen yesterday by the Rev. Clifford W. Beach for his sermon, in St. Thomas's Lutheran Church, Topping Avenue and 175th Street, the Bronx. He discussed the religious census taken in England and the United States.

"Can it be that these twilight days of the year are witnessing the 'twilight of the Gods?'" he asked.

"We feel sure that no churchman will so much as turn a hair by this seeming sudden recrudescence of infidelity, for he knows that irreligion flowers with the same periodic regularity that characterizes the woodlands and park benches in Spring; governed, not by the seasons of the solar year, but by seasons of social prosperity or adversity.

"When even the meanest can lord it over a chariot of forty-horse potential or, by means of the pressure of the thumb upon the dial, can establish communication with the isles of the sea, what need has he of relationship with the creator? The worst that can be said of our sophisticated race is that it has not yet outgrown its period of spiritual adolescence. Our irreligion is not studied insolence, but the braggadocio of youth.

Dr. Scherer Says Census Reveals the "Failure of Christians."

The Rev. Dr. Paul Scherer, pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Holy Trinity, Central Park West and Sixty-fifth Street, said yesterday that the returns of the religious census disclosed not "the failure of Christianity but the failure of Christians."

"It is no argument either for or against the immortality of the soul or the interpretation of the Bible," he said, "to list the number of those who have voted in the affirmative and the number of those who have voted in the negative. Many a time has a minority of one been right and the majority of a hundred thousand been wrong. The voice of the people is not yet the voice of God.

"What we do get is a suggestion of certain types and tendencies of religious beliefs with which we ought to be concerning ourselves and for which we should be trying to find the corrective."

NEUMANN DISCUSSES DOUBTS ABOUT JESUS

Leader of the Brooklyn Ethical Culture Society Lays Them to Spirit of This Age.

This is an age that discourages hero worship, according to Dr. Henry Neumann, leader of the Brooklyn Society for Ethical Culture, who spoke yesterday in the Brooklyn Academy of Music. This attitude has spread to characters in the Bible, he said. The book, "Jesus, a Myth," by the Danish scholar, Georg Brandes, was characterized by Dr. Neumann as the latest example of this trend.

"The examination of this problem of the Jesus myth can be undertaken by this society with particular fairness," he continued. "We must admit that the Bible can hardly be taken as a reliable historic source, since it is so full of miracles that even statements intended as fact can hardly be credited.

"Brandes brings all his critical acumen to his book. He believes that the Bible is only the account of a miracle play of the time. Christ's birthday, he points out, was once celebrated on Jan. 6, a date coincident with an Egyptian festival in honor of the Sun God. Yet, however skeptical Brandes may be, he closes his book by saying that divine figures, after all, live their only true life in the imagination.

"If the Bible is only a miracle play, at least it is about some great person. Who was he? The legends about Jesus have grown with time. Had the whole thing been myth, you would have had the full-blown deity at the start. Admiration for Jesus survives all criticism."

Puts Hope for World Peace In the Truths of Religion

The Rev. Dr. Albert E. Ribourg in his sermon in St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, 2,067 Fifth Avenue, recalled that yesterday, the fourth Sunday after Advent, was usually known as "Peace Sunday."

"We are looking today," he said, "for the cementing of the world into one family, and for the increase of universal brotherhood, which in time shall lead mankind to international peace. We are far from that goal yet.

"Practically all the nations of Europe claim to be Christian nations. Our own land asserts that it is moved by the same Christian principles, yet all these countries are suspicious of one another. And while they are talking of peace, they are thinking of war. Why? Because we have all foolishly pursued the non-essential elements of Christianity and neglected to absorb the fundamental truths of religion and failed to incorporate them in our private and national life."

URGES HUMAN AID FOR CURE BY PRAYER

WANTS CHURCH IN POLITICS

Pastor Sees No Menace In Fight In Open for Men Who Are for Civic Righteousness.

Prayer and physicians were linked in the sermon delivered yesterday by the Rev. Dr. Daniel A. Poling before the weekly young people's conference in the Marble Collegiate Reformed Church, Fifth Avenue and Twenty-ninth Street. The conference was under the auspices of the Greater New York Federation of Churches. Dr. Poling's remarks were broadcast by Station WEAF.

"Some things, many things, that Jesus did by Galilee He does not need to do now in New York City," he said. "He counts on us, and in any faith clinic for the relief of physical pain there should be physicians and dentists, nurses and social service workers, dieticians and motherly women. In such a program prayer will always have exceptional power with God, power reaching beyond any human skill or finite authority.

"Let us not forget that to scorn the fruits of research and the results of scientific discovery, to reject a surgeon's skill and a physician's knowledge, is to spurn Christ's healing quite as definitely as any leper who may have turned from His touch.

"The prayer of faith does heal the sick. The prayer of faith is the most powerful thing in the world. It has a certain authority over both Heaven and earth."

Dr. Poling also answered several questions which had been sent in to him during the week. The first dealt with the union of Church and State. He replied as follows:

"I believe in the absolute separation of Church and State. Less than this is disastrous for each and both. Also, I believe that a church leadership that does not call upon its people to enter politics neglects its duty. There is no menace in the program of a great denomination that, in the open, fights against lawlessness and in support of those men and programs who declare themselves for civic righteousness."

Another question was whether Christianity was "90 per cent. pagan," and his answer was:

"I believe in Christianity. I do not believe that Christianity is 90 per cent. pagan. If I did, I would not remain in the Christian Church. If Christianity were 90 per cent. pagan, it would be worse than paganism. Every heathen cult I have studied has in it more than 10 per cent. of Christianity."

BIDS HIS CONGREGATION TEST GOD'S PROMISES

The Rev. Allan Sheldon Also Says He Will Preach Only the 'Old-Fashioned Gospel.'

The Messiah of the Old Testament was the Christ promised to the congregation of the Union Baptist Church, Noble Street, near Manhattan Avenue, Brooklyn, by the Rev. Allan Sheldon, who began his pastorate there yesterday, succeeding Dr. George McDonald.

Dr. Sheldon, who came from the Richmond Hill Baptist Church to take over the pastorate of the Union Church, said that only "old-fashioned" gospel would find a place in his pulpit. He urged the members of the congregation, through prayer, to test the promises in God's word, so that they might be able to write the word "proved" after each promise.

OPPOSES TEST MARRIAGES.

H. J. Golding Says They Would Result in Untold Agony.

Henry J. Golding spoke before the Society for Ethical Culture, Sixty-fourth Street and Central Park West, yesterday, on "Experimentalism in the Marriage Relation." He quoted the salient arguments of advocates of "the trial and error method of selecting a mate."

"The effect of temporary and readily dissolved unions on the individual must result in many cases in real affection," he said. "It is unfair to allow such affection to flourish and then cause untold agony when the union is dissolved by one party."

In addition to having little real value, it would expose marriage to ridicule by disestablishing the status of women, the speaker declared.

Ranks Cheerfulness Above Wealth.

"Mastering Our Moods" was Rabbi Morris Lichtenstein's subject yesterday at the Jewish Science services in the Hotel Astor. "Moods," he said, "are the vaults of the soul, and they are subject to one's will. A cheerful mood is the greatest of all possessions. It is greater than wealth, for wealth marks only what a man has, while joy marks what a man is."

HOLD CONSECRATION FOR CHRIST CHURCH

DR. ATKINSON IS PRAISED

Priests Says He Triumphed Over Almost Insuperable Difficulties in Clearing Debt.

Bishop William T. Manning yesterday morning consecrated Christ Episcopal Church, Seventy-first Street west of Broadway. This is the second oldest parish in the Episcopal Diocese of New York. It was founded 200 years ago.

No Episcopal edifice can be consecrated until entirely free of debt. When the Rev. Dr. John R. Atkinson became the rector eight years ago there was a debt of $155,000. This has been cleared off through his efforts. An endowment of $40,000 a year was arranged through the leasing of ground at the corner of Broadway and Seventy-first Street, and the present edifice was rebuilt after a fire in June, 1925, at a cost of $144,000.

The indebtedness which remained was transferred this year to the Broadway property, thus freeing the church and its immediate plot, which permitted its consecration.

Assisting in the consecration were the Right Rev. Herbert Shipman, the Suffragan Bishop of New York, whose father, the Rev. Jacob B. Shipman, was rector of the church. Two former rectors were in the chancel, the Rev. Dr. George Alexander Strong of Wenham, Mass., and the Rev. Beverly Van Etten of Pittsburgh. Also in the chancel also was Canon George F. Nelson, 84 years old.

Bishop Manning dedicated a reredos, the gift of Mrs. Howard E. Clark, in her daughter, Miss Edith Clark's memory of relatives. Dr. Manning also blessed a Bishop's chair, a rector's chair, a litany desk, a memorial board, a chancel Bible, hymnals and prayer books, most of which were memorial gifts. The sounding board was presented by John Moody. The bishop unveiled a window in the church which is a memorial to William Easton, for fifty years Secretary of the Mutual Life Insurance Company.

"A work has been accomplished under your present beloved rector which has few parallels," said Dr. Manning. "In the face of almost insuperable difficulties, his faith and hope took to the last degree, he has triumphed in every way.

"This day calls upon you for the loyalty and support to your rector. Give him your affection, your prayers and your personal help. Help him to make the parish so truly Christ that its power and the spiritual influence shall be felt in the life of the whole diocese."

On the Broadway lots of the church the tenants have built two office buildings. The leasing of the main part of this property was made possible by cutting off the tower and a few feet of the front of the church and changing the entrance from Broadway to Seventy-first Street. The leasing of the Broadway lot nearer to Riverside Drive and Seventy-second Street was made possible by raising a parish house.

CLEAN ROMANCE DEMANDED.

"The young people of this generation would do well to study the story of that beautiful home life of the Savior," she said. "A well-known principal of one of our boys' high schools, in speaking of juvenile delinquency, which is on the increase in Greater New York, said that the modern 'bandbox' home was responsible for the formation of many bad habits.

"I would go further than that and say that moving-pictures are also largely responsible for much of the coarseness which is to be found among our boys and girls of adolescent age.

"I am a firm believer in clean, wholesome romance and would to God some big Christian benefactor would come along and establish places of amusement for the men and women of tomorrow, where those young folks could meet each other and 'make love' if they wanted to in a Christian atmosphere instead of having to sit in automobiles, parked on lonely roads, or stand on public benches in Central Park."

TELLS POWER OF PRAYER.

Rev. Harrison Rockwell Says Many Do Not Grasp Fundamentals.

The Rev. Harrison Rockwell, rector of All Saints' Episcopal Church, Henry and Scammel Street, Brooklyn, spoke on prayer in his sermon last night. He said the average person failed to grasp certain fundamentals of prayer and thus did not realize "its wonder and its power."

"In the eleventh chapter of St. Mark," he said, "Jesus brought His disciples: 'Have the faith of God,' and in application revealed the power of faith in prayer: 'Therefore, I say unto you, whatsoever things ye desire when ye pray, believe that ye receive them and ye shall have them.' Believe that ye are receiving them and ye shall have them. That is the 'faith of God.' The Christian is bidden to discover the mighty power that is his: faith developed into a powerful force by means of his religion. This is the explanation of the power and efficacy of prayer."

STIRES SPEAKS IN Y. M. C. A.

Bishop, at Flushing, Calls God Greatest Giver of Gifts.

The Right Rev. Ernest M. Stires, Episcopal Bishop of Long Island, spoke on "Christ, Our Living Leader" yesterday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. at Flushing. This was the first of a series of meetings to be held on Sunday afternoons during the Winter by the Flushing Y. M. C. A.

"God is the greatest giver of gifts," said Bishop Stires, urging that those who would show their gratitude for true Christmas spirit give their gifts to God. Others who participated in the service were the Rev. George Dunn Egbert of the First Congregational Church, Flushing; the Rev. George Douglas of the First Baptist Church, Flushing, and the Rev. George W. Eccles of St. John's Episcopal Church, Flushing.

WEST ORANGE HOTEL BURNS

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Dec. 19.—Seven persons were driven into the street clad in night clothing and blankets early today by a fire in the Obsies Hotel on Pleasant Valley Way. The flames destroyed the interior of the hotel. The damage was estimated at $28,000.

The only persons in the place were Isador Obsies, the proprietor, his wife, three daughters and two employes. Mr. Obsies was awakened by smoke. He aroused his family and employes. All were sheltered in the home of Gordon Meyer across the street.

The hotel was being renovated and was to have been opened tomorrow. Firemen could not determine the cause of the blaze, which originated in the cellar.

Severely burned early yesterday when he fell asleep while smoking in bed, allowing a lighted cigarette to fall on his mattress, Michael Schultz, 45 years old, of 87 St. Mark's Place, died last night in Bellevue Hospital. He had been carried from his apartment by other tenants.

Fire in Leonard Liebling's Home.

CHAMBER MUSIC RECITAL.

New York Society Founded by Miss Beebe Plays for Large Audience.

The New York Chamber Music Society, founded by Carolyn Beebe, gave the second salon recital of this season last night in the ballroom of the Hotel Plaza before a large and distinguished audience. The New York String Quartet, consisting of Ottokar Kadek, Jaroslav Siskovsky, Ludvik Schwab and Bedrich Vaska, had the assistance of Gustave Langenus, clarinet; Lamar Stringfield, flute; Bruno Labate, oboe; Benjamin Kohon, bassoon; Bruno Jaenicke, French horn, and Anselm Fortier, double bass. Miss Beebe and Nadia Reisenberg were at the pianos and Prince Mohamed Mohiuddin was the 'cellist.

The program included the Concerto in C Minor by Bach, a first performin New York of Marcel Gennaro's Trio in G major, an arrangement of Schumann's Andante and Variations in B-flat major, and Paul Juon's Kammersinfonie in B-flat major.

This fine program had the advantage of unusually excellent interpreters. After the opening Bach concerto, Gennaro's Trio for flue, oboe and clarinet, by Messrs. Langenus, Stringfield and Labate, created great interest. The oboe, with its distinctive color, took the principal rôle in four movements that were as melodious as they were graceful.

Juon's "Kammersinfonie," given by the entire society, closed the concert appropriately.

The third concert will be on Jan. 16.

SURVEY SHOWS COST OF SCHOOLS SOARING

Grammar and High Have Risen 747 Per Cent. Since 1900, Says Conference Board.

POPULATION UP ONLY A HALF

Greatest Advance in the Western States—New York Leads in the East.

Expenditures for public grammar and high schools in the United States have been multiplied by seven since 1900, while the population has increased only by one-half, according to the National Industrial Conference Board, 247 Park Avenue, which is publishing the report of its survey today.

While the tremendous leap in public appropriations represents in large part the decrease in the purchasing power of a dollar, it also represents a considerable extension of the public school system, and an improvement in its work, the board says. The higher appropriations go partly to larger salaries for teachers, and considerably to the increased cost of equipping and maintaining schools.

The nation's annual budget for grammar and high schools in 1900 was $214,-965,000. In 1924 it was $1,830,743,000, an increase of 747 per cent.

The leaders in expenditure and also in results, the board says, are States of the Pacific, Middle Western and Rocky Mountain area. California ranks first.

New York ranks highest in expenditure per capita among the eastern, highly industrialized States, and fourth among all States. Its expenditure is $97.50. The board says it ranks equally high results.

CAN TUNE IN AND HEAR NEIGHBORS GOSSIPING

TEMPLE, Texas, Dec. 19 (AP).—Buford Young, a farmer near here, announced yesterday that he has found a way to tune a crude amateur radio set in on all neighborhood gossip within half a mile.

He came to town today to consult with radio experts. He said he wondered if there was not a law prohibiting the keeping of such an instrument about the house.

Young's description of the results obtained from the radio set, puts it away ahead of the rural party line telephone for tuning in on neighborhood conversations.

Some days ago, Young related, he attempted to make a three-tube outfit. He got the coil wound wrong and could pick up no station. Tinkering further he was amazed to hear his loud speaker report that: "Will Broach's mule is out."

The voice was recognized as that of Allen Warren, who lives half a mile from Young.

Young and his friends continued to listen in on the Warren home. Soon the children came from school and said some more wood was going to be needed at the school soon. Young then drove to Warren's and verified the conversations, he said.

Radio fans of the neighborhood, called in to study the mystery, decided that the explanation might be a wire or counterpoise running under Young's aerial, because by moving this, they could pick up voices from telephone lines without touching the telephone wires.

The wire was turned toward the homes of G. W. Young and Joe Archer and conversations were heard distinctly. It was found that voices could be heard when spoken in a closed room, but that the phenomenon failed in open air.

Owners of WEAF Objected to Rebroadcast in St. Paul.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 18 (AP).—The Program Service Company discontinued carrying WEAF programs rebroadcast from WCCO over its telephone lines today, it was announced. Objection by authorities of the New York Station led to the order discontinuing the hook-up from WCCO here.

Service from other stations will be continued, service company representatives said.

The Program Service Company, which has more than 1,000 clients, carries programs over its special telephone wires at certain hours day and night.

Officials of the National Broadcasting Company, of which M. H. Aylesworth is President and which owns Station WEAF and leases WJZ, said last night that their objections to the rebroadcast of their programs through telephone wire hook-ups was prompted primarily by clients who had complained. These clients, who make use of the station for advertising, objected to the arrangement because they had no guarantee of proper reception by this method for programs.

It was denied that the telephone connection had been forbidden because the wire radio threatened the regular radio broadcasting in any way.

It was explained that national programs were distributed by land wires to stations contracting for the service and that they could not be used for profit either by tapping or picking up the broadcast.

DR. SQUIRE DEFENDS LONG.

Urges Smith to Retain Him as Commissioner of Corrections.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, Dec. 19.—Dr. Amos O. Squire, former chief physician of Sing Sing and now medical examiner of Westchester County, has written a letter to Governor Smith urging the retention of James L. Long, the Superintendent of State Prisons, as Commissioner of Corrections.

Under the law Mr. Long, unless he resigns or is removed, automatically becomes head of the new Department of Corrections on Jan. 1, but George W. Alger, who investigated the prisons under the Moreland act for Governor Smith, has characterized Mr. Long as unsuited for the new post. Dr. Squire a Republican, defends Superintendent Long, a Democrat. He tells the Governor it would be hard to find a Commissioner "more honest, capable and efficient."

Disputing the intimation contained in the Alger report that there had been too many escapes of prisoners during Superintendent Long's administration, Sing Sing attaches made public records yesterday showing that in seven years twenty-one offenders had escaped and only five were still at large.

challenges any competitor to a comparison of performance

Radiola 20, with Radiotron . . $115
RCA Loudspeaker 100 . . . . $35

Test it first for musical quality. Tune in a program of fine music, and compare its clear, true reproduction with any of its competitors.

Test it for selectivity. Actual laboratory tests and measurements have proved that it is twenty times as selective as the ordinary radio set.

It has distance reach, too—it is more sensitive than larger sets that have more tubes. And it is simple to operate—with a single control for near stations, and verniers to add sharpness to distance tuning.

Radiola 20 is replacing thousands of antenna sets that have not been able to meet present day broadcast conditions. It has new principles—but it is no experiment. It is tried—perfected—proved. Hear it yourself, before you make any Christmas buy, and you will be satisfied with nothing less than its clear, true tone!

RCA has pioneered practically every important advance of radio today. And in RCA Radiolas alone, the finest modern radio has had the "road test" of experience.

RADIOLA 28
—the famous 8-tube super-heterodyne—has led a new day both in radio performance and in musical reproduction

Radiola 28, with 8 Radiotrons, $260
RCA Loudspeaker 100, $35

Radiola 28 holds a high place among the finest musical instruments—leading the new achievements of today in musical reproduction. With all the refinements and the remarkable performance of an eight tube super-heterodyne, it is sturdily protected against wear, and simplified to single control operation. In apartment homes, its loop does away with the need for an antenna. And its extreme selectivity tunes out interference in the most crowded cities. Its quality is unmatched in radio today!

Radiola 28, when adapted for use with Loudspeaker 104, can also be operated from the lighting socket.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Dec. 19.—With 300 delegates in attendance, the third biennial convention of the Jewish Welfare Board, representing 250,000 members of 227 organizations, was held here today, with Judge Irving Lehman, Associate Justice of the New York State Court of Appeals, presiding as President. In submitting his report to the Executive Committee he called attention to the growth of the organization, which, today, has under its jurisdiction ninety-seven young men's Hebrew associations and community centre societies, owning property valued at $15,250,000.

The following were elected as members of the Board of Trustees for a period of six years to succeed themselves: Judge Lehman, Felix I. Warburg of New York, Jacob M. Loeb of Chicago, Louis E. Kirstein of Boston, Jacob L. Wiseman of Boston, Abel Davis of Chicago and Morris Wolf of Philadelphia.

A resolution was also adopted to appoint a committee to confer with synagogue organizations for a study of the relations between the Jewish Welfare Board and the synagogue and similar centre movements.

Another committee was created to consider the establishment of a building bureau. Harry L. Glucksman, executive director of the board, reported that one-fourth of the constituency of the board was located in New England.

Dr. Cyrus Adler, President of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America and of Dropsie College of Philadelphia and Chairman of the Army and Navy Committee of the board, reported that there were approximately 5,000 Jewish men in American uniform and 1,000 in veterans' hospitals still suffering from injuries received in the World War.

Sol M. Stroock of New York City reported on the recent establishment here of the Metropolitan League of Jewish Community Associations, which has a membership of 60,000 and a yearly maintenance cost of $1,000,000. Felix Fuld, merchant philanthropist of Newark, N. J., and President of that State's Federation of Young Men's and Women's Hebrew Associations, reported on the growth of the building movement in that State.

David Weiner of Washington, President of the Middle States Federation of Young Men's and Young Women's Associations, reported on the successful completion of a campaign to raise $500,000 in Baltimore. Joseph Hormats of Troy, reporting on the New York Federation, told of a new $200,000 building in Albany and a campaign for $500,000 to be launched soon for a community centre building in Rochester.

At a banquet given for the delegates tonight by the Boston Young Men's Hebrew Association, Louis Kirstein presided and addresses were made by Judge Lehman, Mr. Fuld, Albert Hurwitz, Judge Joseph M. Proskauer of the New York Supreme Court and Representative Isaac Siegal of New York. The last named came in place of Louis Marshall, who was unable to be present. Mr. Kirstein read a message from Mr. Marshall in which the latter said:

"I know of no educational and social movement which at the present time is as deserving of the best thought of every loyal Jew and Jewess as that which is intended to develop the Jewish centres and the young men's and young women's Hebrew associations as an essential part of the American Jewish life. It is gratifying that through their agency a halt has been called to the indifference of our people to Judaism and all that it implies, which until recently was a serious menace to its future in this country."

A resolution passed by the board felicitating Mr. Marshall on his approach to a grand old age (he is now 70) was endorsed at the banquet.

A survey of Salvation Army hospitals and institutions in New York City has just been completed by Evangeline Booth, National Commander of the Salvation Army, who declared she was amazed by the number of inmates who were still suffering from the effects of the war. Commander Booth returned to her post last week after an absence of almost a year because of illness.

Among the institutions which Commander Booth visited were the Men's Industrial Home, at 533 West Forty-eighth Street; the Home for Aged Working Women, at Twenty-seventh Street and Tenth Avenue, whose quarters were once occupied by a saloon known as the "Bucket of Blood"; the Army Maternity Hospital, at 314 East Fifteenth Street; the Army Memorial Hotel, at 225 Bowery; the Brooklyn Nursery and Infants' Hospital, at 396 Herkimer Street, and the Family Relief Division, at the Salvation Army Headquarters, 122 West Fourteenth Street, where Christmas baskets are being prepared.

The Gift Magnificent

COLONIAL Power Receiver

NO BATTERIES — NO SEPARATE ELIMINATORS

ONLY the golden words of accomplishment can describe the wonderful performance of the Colonial Power Receiver. Its TONE is so NATURAL, the reception so PURE that no ordinary radio terms apply.

Operating on electric light power exclusively, it achieves all that radio engineers have been attempting for years. In selectivity, in distance, in ease of operation, it equals everything ever claimed for highest priced radio. But head and shoulders above these qualities is its NATURALNESS of TONE, made possible by the amplifying power of approximately twenty-five watts, as compared with from four to five employed by the ordinary receiver. The tubes operate at higher efficiency. Tuning with the automatic SINGLE-KNOB control is easier. The operating cost is but ONE CENT an hour—the power never runs down. In every respect this is the commercial perfection of batteryless radio.

In all the world there is no such radio value—nor such a wonderful Christmas gift. Come in today or tonight and get the FACTS—a demonstration will convince you.

Power!

Power—for the NATURAL amplification of all tones—for delicate phrasing, for smooth crescendos and diminuendos, for the pure, COMPLETE reception of the actual performance hundreds and thousands of miles away.

Nicolai Orloff Plays Again.

It would be an excellent thing if certain pianists of the thunder-and-lightning school would take a leaf from the book of Nicolai Orloff, the young Russian who played yesterday afternoon in Carnegie Hall. Mr. Orloff had given previous recitals in smaller halls. He had played in Carnegie with orchestra, but this was his first appearance on its stage with only a lone instrument for his companion. Under these circumstances it might have been anticipated that he would make generous employment of the virtuosity and brilliancy which he possesses in large measure and thunder, if he could not persuade, a Sunday afternoon audience into a proper respect for his achievements.

Mr. Orloff, fortunately, elected to do otherwise. He began with two Scarlatti sonatas, played with the appropriate fleetness and transparency of tone. He gave an exquisite performance, of a sculptured and almost flawless beauty, of the air of Gluck in the arrangement of Sgambati. Then came the turn of the Bach-Lisst transcription with which pianists of the old school customarily opened a program. Lo and behold! in place of the smash, the posturing, the pompous manner of the leonine virtuoso the transcription was that of the big G minor fugue—Mr. Orloff continued to insist upon real piano playing. He knows that the piano has limitations. His ear and his taste do not permit him to abuse them. There was not a chord that was hard or blurred through overpounding—not here, or in the climaxes of the B minor sonata. The piano refrained entirely from an invitation of the roar of the pedals or a tall organ turned loose on the superb harmonies of Bach; he attempted to create beautiful and varied tone of a character appropriate to the musical thought, yet native to his instrument.

It might have been feared that such a tonal scheme would be inadequate when it came to the heaven-storming frenzies of the Lisst sonata, but it proved otherwise. There were perhaps two occasions when Mr. Orloff used his utmost force in the course of a lengthy work, which is bestrewn with every temptation that the devil could put before an artist of temperament and technical equipment. Between the triple F's and the triple F's there was a very finely gradated scale of sonority and color, a gamut which put all and every tonal resource that a player could desire at his disposal. Within this careful adjustment of values Mr. Orloff gave one of the best, the most poetic and dramatic interpretations of the sonata that we remember and held the closest attention of his audience from the first note to the last. It was playing to hear, and treasure in the memory, as an instance of playing that was great and also sane.

The Friends of Music.

A program consisting entirely of classics by Mozart, Beethoven and Brahms, one which enlisted the aid of chorus as well as orchestra, and Carl Friedberg as solo pianist, was given yesterday afternoon in Town Hall by the Friends of Music, Artur Bodansky conductor. In reference, no doubt, to the centenary of Beethoven's death two works which are infrequently performed were heard—the early C major piano concerto and the Choral Fantasie. The concerto was a pleasure to hear again. It is an important step in advance of the concerto in B flat, listed as the second, but actually the first in Beethoven's piano concertos, and it is perhaps more equal and coordinated in all of its parts than the third concerto, which is powerful, Beethovenish in the later manner in its first movement. The concerto heard yesterday is Mozart-Beethoven, but very charmingly done throughout, and with more than a hint of the later style. It is more than a historical record of a period in Beethoven's development as a composer. The "Choral Fantasia," on the other hand, is almost purely a transitional work, and one, because of its marked inferiority to the later Beethoven symphonies, which provides a wonderful illustration of the manner in which Beethoven's ideas grew.

For the Choral Fantasia, composed in 1808, is actually an incomplete sketch, a kind of hazy anticipations, of the wonders and portents of Symphony No. 2 that came much later. The anticipations, in the character of the music for the chorus, are very striking, as is the nature of the variations, and the long instrumental prelude to the entrance of the voices. The two themes are similar in character and rhythm. The variations could be variations of the chorale-theme of the Ninth Symphony, almost as they stand. Brahms and Schumann, in fact, and many others, have written variations more distant from their theme than the variations of the Choral Fantasia are distant from the final chorus of the Ninth Symphony. Aside from these resemblances, however, the score of the Fantasia could well remain on library shelves for students to ponder.

The performance of the concerto, on the part of Mr. Friedberg, was very earnest, authoritative, enthusiastic. The same thing was true of the piano part in the Choral Fantasia. The chorus sang its music in a perfectly adequate manner, including the last verse, in which there is the prophecy that came in the symphony, "Vor Gott." The music, of course, lies none too well for voices; the singers' performance was the more creditable from the technical standpoint. The orchestra was less satisfactory; there were poor attacks and poor intonation of the wood-wind.

The chorus could perform with more comfort and advantage in the folk-songs for chorus of Brahms's "Erlaube mir mein feinst Mädchen," Der Lieblich hat gesellet," "Da unten in Tale," "Mein Mädel hat einen Rosenmund," "All mein Gedanken," and "Es steht ein Lind." Would that more of the moderns who must take a poor folk-song and disguise it with strange harmonies until it is incoherent and unrecognizable, might study these measures. Their delight, their supreme art, lies in unaffected simplicity. To be genuinely simple! It is not easy nowadays, in any art. Nor could it have been easy to a composer with Brahms's technical knowledge, seriousness and intellect, if his heart had not been so much greater than his head, and his artistic instinct have led him so completely aright in such matters. The songs were sung in the straightforward manner they deserved, with a style and sentiment that made one of the best features of the occasion.

COBINA WRIGHT IN SONGS.

Soprano Successfully Gives a Varied Program in Aeolian Hall.

Cobina Wright, soprano, gave a song recital at Aeolian Hall last evening with the assistance of Kurt Schindler at the piano. Mme. Wright's artistic feeling extended to her costume, a crimson velvet and gold medieval gown, and to the platform, ornamented by tapestry as a background for evergreen trees and two lighted candles.

In these appropriate surroundings Mme. Wright sang four groups of differentiated songs, with a keen sense of their import and atmosphere. Bach's noble and beautiful air, "Bist Du bei Inir," opened the program, to be followed by two contrasted Mozart numbers, one full of joy, the other, "Ah! lo so piu," of a slow and graceful turn. These were complemented by Cesti's spirited "Aria di Filura."

Ravel's "O! la pitoyable aventure," from his opera "L'Heure Espognole," which the singer has almost made her own on the concert platform, was placed, by request, in the second group. Mme. Wright gave it with a delicate sparkle and cynicism, making light of its vocal difficulties. An air from the same composer's "L'Enfant et les Sortileges" was surprisingly simple and melodious; but the presence of two Debussy numbers and one of Szymanowski proved that Mme. Wright has a special faculty for negotiating strange intervals.

Mme. Wright was equally successful in Spanish songs by De Falla and Joaquin Nin, rounding out her program with airs in the English language.

By MORDAUNT HALL.

July Holidays.

SUMMER BACHELORS, with Madge Bellamy, Allan Forrest, Matt Moore, Hale Hamilton, Leila Hyams, Charles Winninger, Clifford Holland, Olive Tell, Walter Catlett, James F. Cullen, Cosmo Bellew, Charles Esdale and others, adapted from the novel by Warner Fabian, directed by Allan Dwan; overture, "First Hungarian Rapsody"; Celia Turrill; "Trail of the Gods," a scenic; "Caprice Harlequin," with Joyce Coles. At the Capitol.

By way of contrast it is perhaps a good thing that "Summer Bachelors," an adaptation of Warner Fabian's novel of the same name, is just now defying the cold of these December days at the Capitol Theatre. It is Allan Dwan's first production for the Fox Film Corporation, and it succeeds, at least temporarily, in dispelling thoughts of the frosty weather. It's scenes treat of Summer, and consequently some of the characters are not only beheld enjoying cooling breezes aboard a motor boat, but are also depicted taking a dip in a placid Adirondack lake.

Madge Bellamy, a winsome lady, not new to the screen, gives an intelligent performance in this rather frivolous affair. She impersonates Derry Thomas, a young woman who helps to entertain several husbands whose wives have deserted them for the mountains or the seashore, with the result that the wives are not missed at all.

The husbands are seen saying goodbye to their wives at the Grand Central Station. As the subtitle sets forth, they enter the station as husbands and come out as bachelors of the "Summer variety." Judging by the alacrity with which four of them hasten to a telephone booth immediately the train has vanished, it is a plain case of "out of sight, out of mind." After seeing Miss Bellamy this state of mind is quite comprehensible.

Derry, the pretty heroine, is not as keen on marriage as she is on becoming clothes. However, she is decidedly averse to being ignored by such males as come her way. The first time she sees Tony Landor (Allan Forrest) is in a department store, where Derry is depicted gazing longingly at some costly material. She throws it down and signifies that she must be satisfied with something much cheaper. The pantomime is not lost on the world, and one man who easily reads her thoughts is Landor. He quietly buys enough of the expensive material for a dress, and when it is wrapped he proffers it to Derry, promising that if she will accept it he will never recognize her if he sees her again.

There is a hint that Landor is married—of course he isn't, for this is a nice film—but nobody can blame Derry for feeling hurt when Landor keeps to the letter of his promise. At the same time one sympathizes with Landor, even if he is somewhat audacious.

To make the matter more involved, Derry's friend, Willowdean Francis, has her own little affair with a scientist, Walter Blakely. He looks harmless enough, but actually this rascal is married. The scenes flash on and off with such rapidity that often one is confused as to which girl is Derry and which is Willowdean.

Then the time comes for one of the "Summer bachelors" to be caught while having an earnest conversation with a girl whose attractions are not to be ignored. Old as the situation is, it elicited almost as much laughter yesterday as when one of the "bachelors" slipped on the floor.

Miss Bellamy's vivacity and charm are distinct assets to this production. She plays with zeal and sincerity, always impressing one with her interest in the action of the narrative.

Allan Forrest makes the most of his rôle. Matt Moore and Hale Hamilton also give sound performances and Lelia Hymans is attractive as Willowdean.

THE POPULAR SIN, with Florence Vidor, Olive Brook, Greta Nissen, Philip Strange, Andre Beranger and Irish Gray, adapted from a story by Monta Bell, directed by Malcolm St. Clair; "Victor Herbert Melodies," devised and staged by John Murray Anderson; Jesse Crawford, organist; overture, "Capriccio Espagnol." At the Paramount.

In this picture "The Popular Sin," Malcolm St. Clair, who directed "The Grand Duchess and the Waiter," gives to the screen another delightful comedy in which he dodges tiresome motion picture conventionalities. This film teems with subtle touches, and while it does not arouse that uproarious mirth to be heard where the more obvious comic affairs are holding forth, it was plain yesterday afternoon that the adroitly pictured incidents were thoroughly appreciated by the audience.

"The Popular Sin" is, singularly enough, a story written by Monta Bell, another of the successful younger directors. And in the cast is Florence Vidor, who finds her rôle in this vehicle as well suited to her as the one she portrayed in "The Grand Duchess and the Waiter."

Mr. St. Clair does not tarry long before he introduces original ideas into this photoplay. In the first place, he has a husband coming home when the sun is well up. This individual is not staggering nor does he fiddle around with his key to unlock the door. Yet there is no doubt that he has had a full night. He is in a condition wherein consequences mean little to him. Instead of apologizing to his wife for returning home at bright daylight, he endeavors to amuse her with a toy that appeals strongly to his fancy. It is a little figure which when wound up sways back and forth. Having exhibited this novelty, George Montfort retires to take off his evening clothes and put on his pajamas and dressing gown.

The popular sin appears to be the weakness for tiring of a wife or the wife wanting to get rid of her husband. Popular sinners meet in an old lawyer's office, where they in due time arrange for a divorce. In this picture nothing is done in anger; it is merely a pity. So Yvonne Montfort gets her divorce and is promptly married again, this time to Jean Corot, who happens to meet Yvonne through a railroad ticket George Montfort had given him.

Corot is an author, and although he is charmed by Yvonne, his happiness is halted by the presence of La Belle Toulaise, an actress, who is distinctly fickle in her amours.

A good many sequences of this comedy take place in "Reauville," a delightful spot where they have a zoo, very much like the one in Central Park. And Mr. St. Clair even profits by a visit to the polar bears to give the audience a bear's-eye-view of a devoted husband and wife.

The marital complications leave Yvonne without a husband and Corot yearning for a wife, which is settled satisfactorily ere the last fade-out comes.

Mr. St. Clair manifests a keen imagination in filming every scene in this picture, and the episodes are always entertaining, even though they may result in nothing more than Yvonne looking suspicious and Corot appearing puzzled. Corot believes that if his wife is jealous, she ought to count up to one hundred before she breathes a word about it. It is a horse of another color when he himself is jealous of Yvonne.

The subtitles are admirably suited to the clever situations in this clever satire on divorce.

FLORA NEGRI PLEASES.

Flora Negri, who has sung with the Schola Cantorum, the Philharmonic and New York Symphony Orchestras, and the New York Civic Opera Company, gave her annual recital at Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon before an audience that applauded unstintingly. Mme. Nina Massell was the accompanist.

Some of the songs on an interesting program were perfect in vocal production, diction and interpretation. Among these were a Donaudy composition, a Brahms and a Schumann. One could imagine them done with more force, but not with more grace, or sweetness, especially Brahms's "Von ewiger Liebe."

The Mozart "Alleluja," showed on an attractively rounded "Ah," the limitations of Miss Negri's unhurried and leisurely style. The scales had an occasional catch in them, and the note of praise and triumph was absent.

By the end of the second group Miss Negri had five recalls to her credit. Her Russian group, in the Russian language, although it brought three recalls, an encore, and the repetition of Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Flight of the Bumble Bee" (in the song form), showed that heavy, dramatic, or long songs were not so well adapted to the singer's delicate voice. The encore was an anonymous Russian song in the collection of James Massell.

Miss Negri was further heard in American compositions and in a special group of Jewish folk-songs.

Mme. Nina Massell was an exceedingly sympathetic accompanist.

Brock Pemberton to Apply Chief Idea of "The Ladder."

The two Christmas Day performances of "The Ladder" will be given free to the public, it was announced yesterday from the office of Brock Pemberton, producer of the play. The doors of the Waldorf Theatre will be opened at 1:45 on Saturday afternoon for the matinee and at 7:45 in the evening, and tickets will be issued in order of application at those hours. Only one ticket will be given to a person, and no seats will be alloted to children under 16. The capacity of the theatre is 1,079.

The statement from Mr. Pemberton's office says that these free performances are being staged "as a practical application of the motivating thought in J. Frank Davis's play."

THREE ORCHESTRAS IN SUNDAY CONCERTS

Walter Damrosch's version of Bach's suite in C, with the same composer's gavotte in D orchestrated by the composer's father, recalled a musical family dynasty to yesterday's audience of the New York Symphony Orchestra at Mecca Temple. It was Mr. Damrosch's first bow to an audience since publishing his resignation, which takes effect this year. A Bach-Ravel program included Bach's second concerto for strings and wind instruments. In the French composer's group, Mr. Damrosch added the "Tomb of Couperin," two excerpts from "Mother Goose" and others from "Daphnis and Chloe."

Efrem Zimbalist earned a half dozen recalls at yesterday's matinee of the Philharmonic in the Metropolitan Opera House, when the violinist gave a brilliant performance of Glazounov's concerto with the orchestra under Mr. Mengelberg. Glinka's overture to "Ruslane and Ludmilla" began the day and a series of ovations marked the closing symphony, Tchaikovsky's "Pathetique."

Toscha Seidel played with the orchestra of the Metropolitan at last night's "opera concert," reinforced by ten singing stars. Mr. Seidel was heard in Tchaikovsky's concerto and violin solos by Kreisler, Schubert and Novacek. Curt Taucher, Grace Anthony, Delaney, Tibbett, Tedesco and Blanc sang solos or duets and there were two quartets from "Marta" with Queena Mario, Merle Alcock, Tokatyan and Didur.

'SHANGHAI GESTURE' OPERA.

Mary Garden May Sing Leading Role in Converted Play.

Contracts have been signed by John Colton, author of "The Shanghai Gesture," and Werner Janssen, composer, whereby the melodrama, which has just ended its New York engagement, will be converted into an opera for production next season. It was said yesterday that Mary Garden might sing the leading role, and that negotiations to that end were in progress. Miss Garden has gone to Chicago, where "The Shanghai Gesture" will begin an engagement next Monday.

Mr. Colton is probably best known as co-author of "Rain." Mr. Janssen is a son of the restaurant man, and has written the music for a number of musical comedies.

Zionists Greet Habima Players.

The Zionist Council of Greater New York last night held a reception for the Habima Players of Moscow in Mecca Temple, 130 West Fifty-sixth Street. The players from the Moscow Hebrew Art Theatre are appearing at the Mansfield Theatre. Addresses were made by Dr. Chaim Weizmann, President of the World Zionist Organization, and Dr. Stephen S. Wise.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Loose Ankles" will close at the Garrick on New Year's night. It is scheduled to leave.

Gilbert Miller, now in London, is to revive "Peter Pan" for matinee performances at the Adelphi Theatre there from Dec. 22 until Jan. 29.

"Chicago" will open in Atlantic City tomorrow night. At the same time "Betsy" will have its first performance in Washington.

Charles Hopkins has secured the dramatic rights to a Dutch novel by Louis Couperus, "Old People and the Things That Pass," and in association with Robert Housum he has made it into a play, "Echoes."

Carroll McComas will be seen in the revival of "Night Hawk" at the Frolic Theatre. The play will be directed by Arthur Hurley.

The capacity of the Broadhurst Theatre for tonight's and tomorrow night's performances of "Broadway" has been purchased by the Institutional Synagogue, 37 West 118th Street.

Gene Lockhart will play Mephisto in the production of "Faust" which Edyth Totten is preparing.

Will Rogers has closed his concert tour and gone to his home in California for the holidays. He will reopen in Detroit on Jan. 5 and, according to his manager, Charles L. Wagner, he will then play every night until June 10.

Laurette Taylor will be next week's headliner at the Palace. Florence and Mary Nash will follow her, opening on Jan. 3.

Martin Brown's play, "It Is Love," will be seen in Allentown on Christmas night.

"Seed of the Brute" did not end its New York engagement at the Comedy Theatre on Saturday night, but will move tonight to the Forrest. "Hangman's House," according to Mr. Ames, has closed at the Forrest.

The Shuberts announce that Emmerich Kalman, Hungarian composer, will pay his first visit to this country in March to see the New York opening of his operetta, "The Gipsy Princess."

It is announced by the Theatre Guild that the box office prices for its attractions will not be advanced for the Christmas or New Year's performances.

Florenz Ziegfeld says: "I sat watching 'What Price Glory' as though I were living through a new experience—an experience crowded with laughter, turbulent with excitement and richly laden with human sympathy."

Christmas Seats Free

The motivating thought of J. Frank Davis' play, "THE LADDER," is that somehow, somewhere, we all attain happiness, if not in this life, perhaps in another. In the hope of adding to the sum total of happiness in this life the owners of "THE LADDER" have decided to give all the seats for the two Christmas day performances free to those who might not otherwise be able to buy them. The doors will be opened at 1:45 for the matinee and 7:45 for the night performance, and tickets will be issued in the order of application at these hours for the respective performances. The theatre seats 1079. Only one seat will be given to each applicant, and as the play is not primarily for children none will be given to those under sixteen years of age.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The Steel Corporation's Action and Its Bearing on the General Situation.

In the somewhat varying comment of Wall Street, on last Thursday's vote of the Steel Corporation directors for a 40 per cent. "stock dividend," the aspect which made the most impression was the seeming proof that the well-known financiers in the management were confident of the business future. When Judge Gary declared to the shareholders' annual meeting, last April, that declaration of a stock dividend with resultant larger cash dividend payments was something which "cannot be done with safety at the present time," he explained his position on the ground that "we must be prepared for emergencies," that "business fluctuates" and "selling prices are uncertain." Wall Street, therefore, drew the inference last week that misgiving which had existed in such directions during April has now been wholly dispelled.

The inference may no doubt be strained too far. Declaration of stock dividends has sometimes resulted from very different causes—virtually irresistible pressure from shareholders, for instance, or a desire to divide a company's share capital into smaller units, whereby the dividend rate might not appear so large. Probably there was never so tumultuous a rush of industrial companies to pay stock dividends of 30, 50 or 100 per cent. as in April, 1920, when considerably more than a dozen large corporations made such announcements, their program frequently involving very great increase in the amount paid out by them in yearly cash dividends.

The action was made possible by the abnormally active and profitable industry of wartime, and to that extent it indicated actual conditions. Whether it did or did not indicate expectation of the immediate financial future by the various company directorates, it might be difficult to say. But any one who accepted the stock dividends of that April as proof of continuing prosperity would have had to pay dearly for it. The first shock of "deflation" came in the very next month; by Autumn, some of the companies which had declared stock dividends in the Spring faced a critical situation.

This merely proves that action of this sort on dividends is not necessarily conclusive as to the financial future. But 1926 is not 1920; the business community has this year been soberly and sometimes mistrustfully facing facts, whereas 1920 was notoriously a year of illusion, even in the high places of finance. It is therefore reasonable enough to infer that the Steel directors' action did mean confidence in the immediate future. Regarded in that light, however, it would only be cumulative evidence; for the present month has been distinguished from the start by proof that the misgivings prevalent in the early months of 1926 have for the most part been dispelled.

There is no doubt a certain potential element of danger in this situation and that is the possibility of transforming confidence into overconfidence. It was the absence of such overconfidence which, more perhaps than any other single contributory influence, caused the non-fulfillment of last Spring's predictions of trade reaction. For those predictions, judged by general principles, were not unreasonable. Mr. Mellon's summary of the reasons for the present sound condition of finance and trade cites not merely our great gold reserve, our accumulated savings and our more efficient transportation, but the prudent buying of merchants and consumers, the lower average of prices and "the disinclination of business men to carry speculative inventories."

The three last-named factors of sound prosperity are capable of being transformed into factors of overtrading and disordered credit, if last year's cautious view of the immediate future were to be replaced by belief in unlimited expansion of trade activity and profits. The Stock Exchange and the real estate market have proved, even in these days of conservative business, that the material for a speculative blaze exists.

It is at least imaginable that, as happened in 1919, in 1906 and in 1901, the tendencies which have not been kept in restraint on those two markets might spread to the general field of industry. In the years referred to, when exactly that occurred, it was always some one unexpected event, not necessarily in the domain of trade, which turned out to be the spark in the powder-barrel. This possibility, and the frequent recurrence of reckless speculation on the Stock Exchange, have caused in a few quarters frank regret, if not disapprobation, that the Steel Corporation directors should have taken at [illegible] this time the action that they took. The time to preach and practice caution is usually the time when everything seems to be going well, with no obstacle in sight.

Still, no such qualifications will prevent this year-end from being a period of exceptional brightness in finance and industry. The old Wall Street tradition of a "Christmas market" has certainly been observed, even as concerns the general influences bearing on the financial situation. Year-end financial prophecy will doubtless take its color from the prevailing atmosphere. In January, as usual, we shall get down to a closer examination of all aspects of the immediate outlook.

Europe's Economic Renaissance

American investments in foreign fields continue to offer unusual advantages. The high interest returns, coupled with safety, the moderate prices at which even the highest grade foreign securities can be purchased, and the economic recovery everywhere in evidence, all present unusual opportunities.

HOPE FOR CHECK TO FRANC FLUCTUATION

WHY BANK RATE WAS CUT

PARIS, Dec. 19.—The decision of the Bank of France to lower its official discount rate from 7½ per cent. to 6½, and its rate on loans from 9½ to 8½, was regarded here as merely the consequence of the 1 per cent. reduction which had already occurred in the interest rate on defense bonds. The difference between the bank rate and the rate carried by the bonds was already too wide.

The week's foreign exchange market was less animated, with comparatively few transactions and little important fluctuation of prices. There is some reason to believe that the Treasury intervened discreetly on the market, with a view to affecting relative stability of the franc around the present rates. At all events, the Government seems to have begun to realize the difficulty caused to French trade, industry and agriculture by the precipitous revaluation of the franc.

Course of French "Deflation."

The crisis is in fact now manifest in all branches of activity. It is evidenced by great reduction both in sales of goods and in output of material. Manufacturers are reducing work hours, even paying off workmen, and exporters last week reported almost complete absence of new orders.

The banking community has recognized all along that the Government could not remain deaf to the general dissatisfaction. With last week's halt in the rise of the franc, however, the kind of panic which had seized the public who held foreign securities has been allayed.

Sale of Foreign Securities Slackens.

People now hesitate to sell such securities at the prices to which they have fallen on the Paris market. Recent speculators for the rise in that part of the market have completely liquidated their positions; there are even now some bear commitments. Foreigners, moreover, seem to have liquidated the greater part of their commitments for the rise of the franc.

On the other hand, some people fear that there may be further forced sales of foreign exchange and purchase of francs on the part of French traders who have engagements to meet in francs at the end of the year. But there are perhaps still a greater number of traders who have not yet covered their foreign commitments, and who, therefore, will have to sell francs and buy foreign exchange.

VERY SLOW REVIVAL IN BRITISH STEEL TRADE

LONDON, Dec. 19.—The steel trade is hoping to get a few more furnaces working before the end of the year, but progress is necessarily slow. Two additional furnaces came into operation in November, making a total of seven operating at the end of the month, compared with 147 on the eve of the coal stoppage. Pig iron output for November was 12,700 tons against 539,100 tons in April, which was the last normal month and 502,000 in November, 1925. Steel output in November was 97,500 tons, against 661,000 in April and 664,000 in 1925. The year's low point in the steel output was 33,000 tons in July.

Unemployment remained bad during November, but was improving toward the close of the month. Among 12,000 working people insured against unemployment, the percentage of unemployed was 12.5 last month, against 13.6 in October and 11 per cent. a year ago. Calculations by the Ministry of Labor show that the average level of retail prices at the beginning of December was approximately the same as a month earlier and 70 per cent. above July, 1914, as against 77 per cent. a year ago.

Berlin Thinks Central European Countries Will Not Benefit by Joining

BERLIN, Dec. 19.—The entry of Czechoslovakia, Austria and Hungary into the international steel cartel is not expected to benefit them. The reason is that Poland, which remains outside the cartel, is underselling it heavily in Southeastern Europe.

The plan for an East-European syndicate, embracing all four countries, has been abandoned owing to the unwillingness of the Polish and East Silesian works to join.

GERMANY'S PUBLIC REVENUE

BERLIN, Dec. 19.—Federal revenue receipts during November in Germany, were 625,000,000 marks. This compares with 741,000,000 in October, and 561,000,000 in November, 1925.

In the first eight months of the fiscal year, receipts were 4,726 millions, which was 357 millions more than the budget estimate of the share which those months would contribute, but 219 millions below the corresponding period in 1925.

'LABOR COURT" CREATED BY GERMAN REICHSTAG

Also Reconstructs Economic Council, to Which Economic Measures Must Be Submitted.

BERLIN, Dec. 19.—The Cabinet has carried through the Reichstag its Labor Court law, which creates a special court of jurisdiction for all disputes, individual or collective, arising out of employment. One employer and one employe will sit as assessors with the Labor Court judges, who may be non-professional.

A bill has also been submitted to create a permanent Federal Economic Council to replace the present provisional council, which dates from 1920. Experience has shown that the provisional council, with its 326 members, was too large.

The "definitive" council will have 123 members, of whom one-third will represent capital, one-third labor, with the remaining third representing various social and professional interests. The council's decisions will, as before, remain advisory, and will bind no one. But the Government is compelled to obtain the judgment of the council on all economic, social and financial bills before submitting them to the Reichstag.

LONDON EXPECTS DEAR MONEY AT YEAR-END

LONDON, Dec. 19.—A short period of acute money stringency lies immediately ahead of financial London. All of the year-end business of balancing accounts, window dressing by banks, clearing up of the speculative position in stocks, occurs usually in the last week of the year, and at the present moment monetary conditions rather resemble the calm before the storm. Immediate requirements are moderate, while heavy Government disbursements at the beginning of the month placed a good deal of fresh money in circulation.

Last week, however, the market suffered a preliminary spasm of stringency, and from now on to the end of the year an increasing activity, with diminishing supplies, will be expected. A reaction will come early in the new year, when there doubtless will be renewed discussion of the possibility of a reduction in the bank rate. In this matter, however, the general belief is that the authorities will proceed very cautiously.

New capital issues continue numerous, and with few exceptions are still going well. Last week £3,500,000 new securities were offered and oversubscribed, while even this week, which cannot normally be regarded as a favorable period for offering new securities, one important home corporation will be in the market for a loan of £1,000,000.

FRENCH TRADE BALANCE UNHURT BY DEFLATION

PARIS, Dec. 19.—The foreign trade statement for November shows total imports of 4,994,000,000 francs as against 4,574,000,000 in the same month of 1925. Exports, however, were 5,329,000,000 francs, as against 4,193,000,000. The surplus of exports for last month was therefore 335,000,000, as against an import surplus of 381,000,000 in November, 1925.

The comment is freely made, however, that November's foreign trade figures could not yet reflect the falling off in export orders which has actually occurred. On the contrary, exporters were busy during the month rushing out orders previously received. More stress is laid on the fact that the trade report shows decrease in import of raw material for industry amounting to 267,000,000 francs in value and 96,000 tons in quantity.

Compared with November, 1925, the decrease in that category of imports amounts to 564,000 tons, although their value increased 75,000,000 francs by reason of the rise in prices. This is recognized as a symptom of industrial reaction.

For the first eleven months of 1926 the trade balance shows an import surplus of 252,000,000 francs, as against an export surplus of 2,375,000,000 for the same period in 1925.

LONDON'S EXPORT OF GOLD.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—The week's gold withdrawals of £1,062,000 from the Bank of England, which caused some surprise, included £5,000 for Italy and £5,000 for Spain, but the destination of the balance was not stated by the Bank. In financial circles, however, it was considered that it went to Germany.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 19.—The report from London that Germany last week acquired £1,500,000 of English gold, of which £1,000,000 came from the Bank of England reserve, is taken here to indicate that the London bank rate will not be reduced this year.

GERMAN POLICY CRITICIZED

LONDON, Dec. 19.—The City was somewhat perturbed last week by the sudden keen Continental demand for gold. This manifested itself when the weekly consignment of South African gold came to hand. Contrary to recent practice, buyers eagerly bid what is in effect the maximum price of 84s 11½d per fine ounce, this being the price paid by the Bank of England for gold. It was unfortunate that this revival in demand coincided with a small consignment from South Africa. In addition to buying nearly the whole of this shipment of £480,000, Continental buyers took £1,062,000 from the Bank of England.

While the practice is still observed by the Bank of England of not disclosing the names of countries to which the bar gold is dispatched, it was understood in the market that Germany was the buyer, confirmation of this being forthcoming in the fall of German exchange below the gold point. Germany's persistent absorption of gold during recent months has attracted a good deal of attention in London, with criticism taking an unfavorable line.

America Has Equipped Germany.

It was pointed out that while London has been careful to keep its foreign loan operations within strictly proper limits, owing to the adverse economic situation at home arising from the coal stoppage, there has been very considerable activity in the United States in the granting of foreign credits and long-term loans. This applies particularly to Germany and no doubt exists that most, if not all, of the gold taken from London by Germany represents the conversion of proceeds of American loans into gold, which, instead of being taken from America, has been secured from London because it is cheaper for Germany to draw on its American credits via London than to do so direct from New York.

While it is recognized that the gold standard carries such responsibilities as unfettered gold movements, it is questioned whether Germany has not been obtaining loans and credits too easily and too cheaply. After last week's German gold purchases were made, exchange on Berlin went above the gold point, while New York exchange also rallied quite sharply.

Bidding Up New York Exchange.

These movements probably were not unconnected, because it would be necessary for New York to secure sterling in order to pay for gold sent to Germany. German exchange is now falling again, but the dollar rate keeps up.

Currency notes outstanding at the end of the week aggregated £291,122,254, rising on the approach of Christmas, but still below last year, when the total was £295,456,404. This compares with £289,414,270 a week ago and £285,783,429 two weeks ago. The highest of the year to date was £303,466,376, in the week ended May 31; the lowest £284,178,770, in the week ended Feb. 19.

PROCEEDS OF FRENCH TAXES CONTINUE LARGE

PARIS, Dec. 19.—Tax collections by the Government for November are reported at 4,236,000,000 francs, of which 59,000,000 were extraordinary receipts. Somewhat contrary to expectations, payments on direct taxes did not decrease from the preceding months. Proceeds of indirect taxes, however, were lower by 700,000,000 francs than the October figure, and they are expected to decrease further if the trade crisis continues.

The permanent fiscal receipts during the eleven completed months of the year, which are stated at 35,375,000,000, show an increase of 9,749,000,000, or 38 per cent., over the same period of 1925.

HOPES OF BRITISH TRADE.

Industry Getting on Its Feet Again Only Gradually.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—Taken as a whole, the revival in British trade since the coal strike ended has been comparatively small. Present activities are confined principally to preparations for getting industry going again. Coal production is rapidly increasing, but distribution is faulty, while prices are still very unstable. On all sides it is agreed that the first half of 1927, at least, should witness considerable revival, as sufficient orders were accumulated during the coal strike to keep manufacturers busy.

Although uncertainty still exists in the textile trade, numerous factors recently making for uncertainty have been removed. Lancashire is looking forward to the best business in years. It is out to regain lost trade and is certainly in a better position to meet competition from its chief rivals.

THE NATIONAL CITY BANK OF NEW YORK, Fiscal Agent of the Loan.

The following is summarized from information received by cable and furnished us by Floyd H. Baldwin, Esq., Fiscal Agent of the Republic, and from official and other sources:

RELATIONS WITH THE UNITED STATES: In accordance with Article I of the Treaty between the United States and Panama, ratified February 26, 1904, "the United States guarantees and will maintain the independence of the Republic of Panama." The Government of the United States not only has the right to regulate sanitary measures in the Cities of Panama and Colon, but also has the right and authority to maintain public order in these cities and in the territories and harbors adjacent thereto. The United States, under the terms of this treaty, was granted in perpetuity the "use, occupation and control" of the Canal Zone.

In accordance with the terms of Article XIV of the Treaty, the United States paid $10,000,000 gold to the Republic. The Constitution of Panama stipulates that $6,000,000 of this payment shall permanently be kept invested in interest-bearing securities. An Act passed by the National Assembly of Panama and signed by the President, provides that this "Constitutional Fund" shall be invested in first mortgages on New York City real estate; and the fund is so invested. During the life of the Treaty, the United States also is obligated to pay the Republic $250,000 gold per annum.

The United States Government invested in the Panama Canal, over $350,000,000, of which amount, for purposes of accounting, over $112,000,000 was written off to national defense in 1921. The United States Government has also over $29,000,000 invested in auxiliary enterprises other than those conducted with funds of the Panama Railroad.

PANAMA: Excluding the Panama Canal Zone, a strip of land approximately ten miles wide, occupied by the United States, Panama has an area of 32,380 square miles. In 1923, its population was 446,093, an increase of 110,000 over 1912. The country is rich in natural products and resources, the chief exports being tropical fruits. Panama is also rich in timber resources and has an extensive cattle raising industry.

The United States dollar is legal tender and United States currency is the principal circulation medium.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE: The acts authorizing this loan provide that the purpose thereof shall be the construction of national highways, the construction of an aqueduct in Bocas Del Toro, the redemption of the outstanding National Defense Bonds and the completion of the sum appropriated for the extension of the Chiriqui National Railroad to the Port of Armuelles.

DEBT: The total external funded debt of the Republic, including this issue, amounts to $10,457,000. Of this debt $5,693,000 is secured on the net income of the Constitutional Fund and the annual payments made by the United States. For the year 1925, the net income of the Constitutional Fund, plus the annual payment by the United States, was approximately $560,000 whereas the service charge on the $5,780,000 external debt then outstanding was only approximately $470,000, leaving a surplus of over $90,000. The Republic is thus in the unique and advantageous position of carrying the above $5,693,000 external obligations wholly with external resources without using revenues from home taxation. The total internal debt of the Republic is only $2,551,862, which includes $1,755,063 due the United States Government for municipal works constructed by it in the cities of Panama and Colon and $226,[illegible]tional Defense Bonds which are to be redeemed on March 10, 1927. The Republic has no floating [illegible]

Total internal and external debt is less than $30 per capita.

SECURITY: These bonds have been authorized by Acts of the National Assembly approved by the President. The bonds are the direct credit obligations of the Republic of Panama, and are specifically secured by a first charge on the income derived from the Retail Liquor Tax, subject only to the existing charge in favor of $226,375 outstanding National Defense Bonds, provision for the redemption of which on March 10, 1927, has been made, and for the payment of which cash will be deposited with the Fiscal Agent of the loan. For the past five years, the revenues derived from the above tax have averaged over $537,000 per annum, against a total service charge for interest and sinking fund on the present Loan of $176,000 per annum, or over three times the service charge. The Republic further agrees that if in any year, the receipts from the above tax fall below $500,000, it will pledge other taxes as security for this loan.

SINKING FUND: Under the terms of the Loan, it is provided that on or before the tenth day of each and every month, the Republic will remit the sum of $14,666.67 to the Fiscal Agent of the Loan. After a sufficient sum has been set aside for the payment of interest, the balance will be used for the retirement of bonds, either by purchase at prices not exceeding the redemption price, or, if not so obtainable, to the redemption of bonds by lot. Bonds so acquired are to be cancelled. This Sinking Fund is calculated to retire the entire issue before maturity.

We offer these Bonds when, as and if issued to and received by us, subject to prior sale and to the approval of our counsel, Messrs. Shearman & Sterling.

BERLIN CHEERFUL, IGNORING POLITICS

LONG CREDITS CHEAPENING

BERLIN, Dec. 19.—The prospects of a change in the Cabinet as a result of Chancellor Marx's difficulties with the Social Democrats, and the Ministry's resignation Friday afternoon, had no visible effect on business sentiment at Berlin last week. That was apparently because the trade reports, notwithstanding the usual slight midwinter increase of unemployment, remained uniformly favorable.

Fears which had been entertained of money market troubles, in connection with the midmonth Boerse settlements, proved unfounded. The demand for money, however, was considerable, owing to the determination of borrowers to provide themselves with cash well in advance of the year-end settlements, so that day-to-day money was relatively dear at 5 to 6½ per cent.

Bankers, moreover, desiring to show liquid balance sheets for December, are reserved toward borrowers. The Gold Discount Bank's first offer of bills under the system previously described in these cables, had no effect on the market. A large part of that issue was taken by departments which wanted short-term investments for their reserves of cash.

Refunding High-Rate Bonds.

One striking indication of the cheapening in long-term German credit was the announcement by the Berlin Subway Corporation that it will redeem immediately its 10 per cent. bonds, though it is obliged to repay the lenders at 110. The example for such conversion was first set by the Siemens und Halske, which redeemed its 10 per cent. bonds issued in 1925 and replaced them with a loan at a lower rate.

The chief spokesman at the Bankers Association Congress at Berlin declared that the bankers will support Dr. Schacht's policy discouraging further increase in borrowing from abroad.

Decline in German Railway Revenue.

Traffic returns of the Railroad Corporation for the beginning of December show a sharp decline, due, apparently, to slackening activity in the building trade. The full report of the corporation for October shows revenue of 625,000,000 marks, against 419,000,000 in September. Expenditure, including services of reparations bonds, was 299,000,000, against 290,000,000.

The Railroad Corporation has signed a contract with the newly-founded "Car Construction Trust" obligating itself to give the trust 20 per cent. of its orders during the next three years. The trust meantime has a large program of standardized specialization in hand.

DECLINE IN COMMODITY AVERAGE FOR THE WEEK

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 19.—Professor Irving Fisher's index number of American commodity prices for the past week, based on 100 as the average of 1913, is 147.2, comparing with 149.0 the week before, 149.5 two weeks before, 149.4 three weeks before, and 149.2 four weeks before. The highest average for the year to date was 159.7, on Jan. 20; this week's average, which was also reached on Aug. 21, is the lowest for the year to date, and is also lower than any reached in 1925.

The highest weekly average reached in 1925 was 164.4 on Jan. 31, which was also higher than any reached in 1924; the lowest was 154.1 on May 2. The highest percentage since the war was 247 in May, 1920; the lowest, 130 in January, 1922.

Crump's British index number, as cabled for the past week, is 141.7, which compares with 144.5 the preceding week, 145.1 two weeks ago, 145.3 three weeks ago, and 146.4 four weeks ago. The average of four weeks ago was the highest since Jan. 9, when it stood at 146.7, the high point for the year to date; the lowest average thus far in 1926 was 138.1, on June 19.

The index number of average Italian prices, compiled and cabled by the Chamber of Commerce at Milan, was 633.9 for the past week, compared with 634.5 the week before, 638.1 two weeks before, 644.4 three weeks before, and 645.2 four weeks before. The average of 662.9 for the week ended Aug. 28 was the highest of the year to date, and was also higher than any reached in 1925; this week's average is the lowest.

PARIS, Dec. 19.—The striking feature of the French money market throughout last week was the very great abundance of accommodation. This was puzzling to some people, in view of the very substantial surplus of revenue collections by the Treasury during the last few months.

Under certain circumstances that might have caused actual tightness of the money market. But any such tendency has been counteracted by the fact that the Treasury has placed its surplus receipts at the disposal of the market through its purchase of foreign exchange.

FRENCH GOLD BUYING LESS, BUT CONTINUES

Only About $613,000 Purchased by Bank Last Week—$53,000,000 Acquired to Date.

PARIS, Dec. 19.—Purchases of gold coin by the Bank of France continue to grow smaller week by week. Last week only 17,000,000 francs in paper were paid out for such purchases, which amount in gold would be some 3,900,000 francs. The total transactions of the kind to date are given as 1,526,000,000 francs paper, which would mean approximately 288,000,000 francs gold or $53,800,000. The bank has again reduced its purchase price for gold, in view of the rising franc.

Although the State repaid only 280,000,000 francs to the Bank of France in the week covered by Thursday's statement, and although bills discounted decreased only 238,000,000, the bank's outstanding note circulation fell 737,000,000. Attention was attracted to the fact that private deposits, rising 20,000,000 francs for the week, reached the very high figure of 5,283,000,000. Allowance must still be made, however, for the fact that these figures include deposits of the Caisse d'Amortissement.

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY CONTINUES IN GERMANY

BERLIN, Dec. 19.—Production of pig iron in Germany during November was 962,286 tons, as against 780,358 in November, 1925. Steel output was 1,297,007 tons, against 873,484. The steel export market is weakish, but the home market continues satisfactory.

The Solingen cutlery industry reports improvement. It complains, however, that the American market is disposed to buy only wares of very high quality which are sold very cheap, and that the American tariff hinders importation of medium qualities, which constituted the main export of the German industry before the war.

Imports of all iron and steel and products thereof, excluding machinery, amounted in the first ten months of the year to 947,854 tons; but exports reached 4,398,390 tons. The whole year will show an export surplus of these goods exceeding 4,000,000 tons, as against an excess of 2,100,000 tons in 1925.

LIRA'S 'STABILIZATION POINT' YET UNCERTAIN

ROME, Dec. 19.—In Italian financial circles it is believed that the maximum effort for revaluation of the lira has not yet been made. There are predictions, however, in some quarters that the lira may reach a lower quotation than it now commands on the market, as soon as a point is reached beyond which it will be evident that further revaluation cannot be obtained without incurring serious economic risk.

To financial Italy, the purposes of France in its monetary policy do not seem clear. On the whole, the feeling is that the franc is destined to suffer further wide oscillations before reaching even relative stability.

ITALY'S TRADE BALANCE.

Expectation That October's Good Results Will Be Repeated.

ROME, Dec. 19.—The official figures of Italian foreign trade for November are not yet available. They are awaited with interest, however, in view of the October showing, in which an export surplus was reported for the first time since the war.

In commercial circles, it is generally believed that the improvement of the last few months will have been maintained, since the Autumn season in previous years has shown that November and December trade results were as favorable as those of October.

BERLIN MARKET RECOVERS.

BERLIN, Dec. 19.—In the first half of last week the Berlin Boerse had a considerable all-around recovery, the largest demand being for coal and steel stocks. Thursday's market was irregular, but with a big rise in banking stocks.

In that movement shares of the Commers and Privat Bank took the leadership, rising 10 points. Friday's market closed with slight declines.

Warns of Counterfeit $10 Note.

Warning has been issued by the Treasury Department of a new counterfeit ten-dollar Federal Reserve note, which has appeared in circulation. The bogus note is drawn on the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston. It is series 1914, check letter F, face plate No. 176, back plate No. 1096, carries signatures of John Burke, Treasurer of the United States, and A. W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury; and has a portrait of Andrew Jackson upon it.

ROME STILL FINDS NO TRADE DEFLATION

NO CURRENCY CONTRACTION

ROME, Dec. 19.—The latest statement by the Bank of Italy shows no further contraction of the currency. This, however, is considered a natural situation until the result of the subscriptions for the new loan to reduce the floating debt becomes known. Good financial observers expect that further deflation will occur when the full scope of conversion of discounts into cash reserves and of reduction in bank notes becomes known.

The deflation of commodity prices continues, however. Taking the 1913 average as 100, the index number during the first ten days of December stood at 634 against a maximum of 691 reached in August, 662 in December, 1925, and a monthly average of 646 for the whole of last year.

Measured in Italian paper currency, the price of gold fell from 501 in October to 451 in the first ten days of December. Prices of goods in gold therefore increased from 133 to 140. On the other hand, it is calculated that the internal purchasing power of the lira now stands at 16 per cent. of its nominal value, as against 14.5 in August and an average of 19 in 1925.

Trading on the Stock Exchange has almost ceased. The market has been dull and lifeless with the depression of November and October continuing despite the fact that balance sheets of incorporated companies are showing satisfactory profits. The average quotation of Italian stocks for November worked out at 111 against 116 in October and 156 in January. The maximum average value of recent years was 230 in February, 1925, the minimum 110 in June, 1923.

Despite these evidences of financial deflation, industrial production still fails to show signs of feeling the consequences of currency revaluation. It is true that certain industries, textiles in particular, are finding difficulty in exporting, but this is chiefly ascribed to reduced purchasing power of the countries which usually import from Italy.

Heavy Business at Reichsbank.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 19.—The Reichsbank's clearings for October and November show very large increase. In November they were 5,454,000,000 marks, whereas even in 1913 the monthly average was no higher than 6,136,000,000.

RATE ON FRENCH 'BONS DE DEFENSE' TO BE CUT

PARIS, Dec. 19.—The shrinkage in business activity, as a result of the deflation following the rise in the franc, has greatly reduced the demand for money in the French market. The consequence of that situation has been the acceleration of subscriptions to defense bonds. Since, however, the maximum issue of those bonds allowed by the statute has already been nearly reached, the Caisse d'Amortissement has been obliged to propose checking the subscription movement by reducing to 4, 4½ and 5½ per cent. the interest rate on the bonds for three, six and twelve months, which, up to the present time, have borne interest at 5, 5½ and 6 per cent. respectively.

The Caisse d'Amortissement has also suppressed the issue of one-month bonds, which were special favorites with the banks for investments of their deposit funds. The banks, therefore, will in the future not find any opportunity for very short profitable investment except directly with the Treasury, which still offers 3¼ per cent. for thirty-day deposits.

GERMAN LLOYD'S NEW SHIPS

BERLIN, Dec. 19.—The North German Lloyd's decision to build two 46,000-ton ships for trans-Atlantic traffic is regarded, in this market, as proof positive that the Germans intend to compete on the pre-war scale in fast passenger business. In that competition the North German Lloyd will have the advantage over the Hamburg America.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 19.—The weekly index number of Stock Exchange prices compiled by Professor Fisher and based on the week's fifty most active industrial stocks, reckoned on their average of 1926 as 100, is 168.5 for the past week. This compares with 165.5 the week before, 164.6 two weeks before, 162.1 three weeks before, and 164.6 four weeks before.

The average of 178.9 on Oct. 2 was the highest of the year to date and was also higher than any reached in 1925; the lowest thus far in 1926 was 121.1, on April 17.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Heavy buying of the French and Italian descriptions resulting in new high prices for the year, and longer, proved the feature of last week's foreign exchange market. The chief inspiration for the rise came from the continued improvement in the financial and industrial conditions in both countries. Last week's budget of news in this respect included an excellent French Bank statement, which showed a deep cut in circulation, further repayments by the State, and a reduction in the discount rate from 7½ to 6½ per cent.

In the Italian situation, the condition of the Italian Treasury was likewise reported as satisfactory. In the first three months of the fiscal year the budget presented an actual surplus of 55,000,000 lire, despite lire allotments for reduction in circulation and railway construction. Public debt also revealed a marked shrinkage.

Bankers and traders traced the heavy buying to the Continent—Amsterdam, Swiss, German and London speculators. Local institutions were also engaged in the demand. While there was a fair share of profit-taking sales near the week-end, both bills managed to retain the better part of the gains established earlier.

Strength in sterling on Tuesday, in which the pound touched $4.85⅛ for cables, was another noteworthy development. The demand appeared to come from the British Government, which was lifting the pound rate beyond the profitable point of purchase against German marks in London. Later dullness reflected the success of this movement after the pound crossed the $4.85 level. Swiss francs was another to move quietly forward, and the German mark crept close to parity on good buying. Scandinavians were generally lower, but the Spanish and Holland remained firm.

The Chinese currencies were first soft, and then firm, with the fluctuations in the price of silver, the Japanese and Indian exchanges also ruling irregular. In the South Americas, the Argentine and Brazilian rates reacted, while the Uruguayan was strong.

San Antonio, the County Seat of Bexar County, is the largest City in the State of Texas. It is an active industrial and commercial centre and is the wholesale distributing point for surrounding territory having a population estimated at 1,500,000.

Transportation is furnished by five important railroads (including the Southern Pacific Lines and the Missouri, Kansas and Texas R.R. Co.) which make San Antonio the gateway between the United States and Mexico and furnish the city direct rail routes to all sections of the country as well as giving San Antonio ready access to ocean transportation by way of the Gulf Ports. San Antonio includes within its boundaries more than 500 factories having an annual output valued at over $64,000,000. It is served by twenty-one banks having combined deposits of more than $60,000,000. The natural resources of this section of Texas, together with its substantial industrial development, are responsible for the fact that the population of San Antonio has been practically doubled in each of the past two decades.

These Bonds, issued for flood protection, bridge, municipal buildings, sewer, park, paving and other improvement purposes, constitute direct general obligations of the entire City of San Antonio, payable from direct ad valorem taxes to be levied against all the taxable property therein.

(The Company has no funded debt.)

Business: The Hobart Manufacturing Company, in successful operation for more than 30 years, developed the first electric coffee mill, later entering into the manufacture of electric meat chopping, mixing and food cutting machines. It is the largest manufacturer of such equipment and has over 300,000 machines in use. Hobart products are standard equipment in the principal chain grocery stores, markets, commercial kitchens, confectioneries, bakeries and other basic food industries.

The Company has acquired recently the business and patents of the Crescent Washing Machine Company, manufacturers of dish washing and metal washing machines for commercial kitchens and industrial companies. The Crescent Company serves the same general trade and occupies the same relative position in its field as that of the Hobart Company.

Branch offices of selling agencies are maintained in many of the larger cities of the United States and the Company is represented through subsidiary companies and agencies in the principal foreign countries. The Company's plant, located at Troy, Ohio, is highly efficient and modern.

Earnings: In every year for the past 20 years the Company has shown a substantial profit, including 1920 and 1921, years of business depression. Earnings of the Company and its proportion of earnings from foreign subsidiary companies, available for dividends, for the seven years ended December 31, 1926, (last two months estimated) including earnings of the Crescent Washing Machine Company only for 1925 and 1926, after all charges, including depreciation and federal income taxes, without deducting royalties paid on Crescent patents now owned, averaged $697,957 per annum, equal, after the present preferred dividends, to $3.21 per share of common stock to be outstanding. These royalties amounted to $22,746 in 1925 and to $23,809 in 1926. For the two year period ended December 31, 1926, annual earnings on the above basis averaged $904,678, equal to over $4.25 per share of common stock after preferred dividends. For the year ended December 31, 1926, such earnings should be approximately $870,000, equal to $4.08 per share of common stock after preferred dividends.

Assets: Current assets as of October 31, 1926, after giving effect to the acquisition of the Crescent Washing Machine Company, amount to $4,020,746, compared with current liabilities of $432,644. Net tangible assets applicable to the common stock, as shown on the balance sheet after deducting goodwill, amount to $3,960,157 equal to $20 per share. Giving effect to the appraisal of the fixed assets at Troy as determined by Messrs. Sanderson & Porter and to the actual value of the Company's investments in foreign subsidiaries, total net tangible assets applicable to the common stock would amount to $4,965,154, equal to over $25 per share.

Dividends: The Company has paid cash dividends on its outstanding preferred and common stocks in every year for the past twenty years. Dividends will be paid on the present common stock at the annual rate of $2 per share.

Management: Messrs. A. G. Stouder, President; H. L. Johnston, Vice-President; J. M. Spencer, Secretary; E. E. Edgar, Treasurer; W. E. Bowyer, the directors of the company and substantial owners of common stock, will continue to actively manage the company and direct its policies.

OF THE ABOVE OFFERING, 11,250 SHARES OF STOCK ARE BEING ACQUIRED FROM THE COMPANY AND THE REMAINDER FROM INDIVIDUALS.

Application will be made to list this stock on the Cincinnati Stock Exchange and the New York Curb Market.

We offer this stock if, as and when issued and received by us, subject to the approval of Messrs. Ernst, Cassatt & Cottle, of Cincinnati and Johnston E. West, Esq., of Troy. Books and accounts of the Company have been audited by Messrs. Haskins & Sells. Appraisal of fixed assets and business examination have been made by Messrs. Sanderson & Porter.

Business and Properties: The New York Trap Rock Corporation, organized under the laws of the State of New York in 1918, through predecessor companies has been in the business of producing crushed stone for over thirty years. The Corporation is acquiring the physical properties of the Tomkins Cove Stone Company, and will own five large-scale operating quarries located on the Hudson River, equipped with dock facilities for utilizing water transportation. Four of these quarries also have facilities for railroad loading.

The operating plants have been extensively developed for the economical production of crushed stone. A large part of the past earnings of the Corporation have been invested in plant extensions and improvements. The property of the Corporation will embrace 1,873 acres of quarry lands containing superior deposits of trap rock, dolomite and limestone, sufficient to supply raw material for at least 100 years.

Market: Crushed stone is a staple basic commodity used in large quantities in construction of public highways, for ballast purposes by railroads and for aggregate in all general concrete construction. The products of the Corporation include crushed trap rock and dolomite which because of their unusual wearing qualities are given preference for the above uses. The demand for these products is constantly increasing and, for each of the years since the organization of the New York Trap Rock Corporation, has been in excess of production. The territory served embodies a population estimated at approximately 10,500,000, including the entire metropolitan area of New York City and adjacent territory from New Brunswick, New Jersey to Troy, New York.

Transportation Facilities: With each of the operating quarries having water transportation and all but one rail transportation as well, the Corporation holds a strategic position in supplying the world's greatest market. In delivery to New York City and the metropolitan territory, water transportation shows a differential of approximately $.75 per cubic yard over rail shipment and permits delivery to a larger number of points than can be reached by rail without additional cost of re-handling.

Security and Assets: These bonds will be direct obligations of the New York Trap Rock Corporation, and will be secured by a closed first mortgage on all its fixed assets and those being acquired, including quarry lands, buildings, machinery, barges, equipment, etc. The J. G. White Engineering Corporation values the five operating properties and barges at $16,630,000 which is in excess of $2,500 for each $1,000 bond of this issue. The balance sheet of the Corporation giving effect to this financing shows current assets of over four times current liabilities.

Earnings: The consolidated net income for the past three years of the Corporation and the properties and business being acquired available for interest but before depreciation, depletion and Federal Income Taxes, as certified by Messrs. Haskins & Sells, have been as follows:

*1926	1,824,947.96

*November and December estimated.

The $1,625,624 average annual earnings for the above period are in excess of 4.1 times maximum annual interest requirements of this issue and in excess of 2.5 times combined maximum annual interest and minimum fixed Sinking Fund charges on this issue.

For the year 1926 (two months estimated) such earnings are in excess of 4.6 times maximum annual interest requirements on the First Mortgage Bonds. Earnings available for interest for the year 1927 are estimated in excess of $2,000,000.

GROUND FOR WEEK'S RISE IN COTTON

Highest Levels Were Reached on Wednesday as Result of Severe Weather in Belt.

TRADERS STILL PESSIMISTIC

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 19.—While trading was but moderately active in the cotton market during the past week there were signs of life from time to time mainly due to covering by the short interest accumulated during recent declines. Professional traders have been bearishly inclined and continue to be of the same bent, although they have considered it the part of prudence to cover in advance of the census ginnings report due at the opening Monday morning.

The price range has not been very wide, but it has been upward, reaching the highest levels of the week on Wednesday because of the severe weather experienced in the belt during the middle of the week. It was assumed that such weather slowed down picking and ginning and it is known that considerable cotton remains unpicked in the fields of Texas and Oklahoma.

January, which reached 12.36 Wednesday, eased off to 12.00 by Friday and then rallied to 12.28 and closed at 12.28, or 44 points net higher for the week. The main cause of the rally of the last part of the week was the fear that because of bad weather ginnings for the last period, that is from Dec. 1 to Dec. 12 inclusive, would prove disappointing to the believers in the Government crop estimate.

Estimates on Ginnings.

This impression was strengthened by a private estimate issued Friday making the ginnings prior to Dec. 13 15,550,000 bales. Should this estimate be confirmed by the Census Bureau on Monday it would mean that the amount ginned during the last period was only 905,000 bales, as against 960,000 bales ginned during the corresponding period last year.

Should the ginnings reach no larger total than that indicated the impression would be at once created that the Government has overestimated the crop. It is this fear that induced shorts to cover freely on Friday.

Doubt Failure to Pick Crop.

While it does not follow by any means that because ginnings should prove light for the last period the Government estimate is too large, that impression would be created and it would probably cause some advance in price. As a matter of fact, small ginnings for the last period could be attributed entirely to the inclement weather plus the unwillingness of farmers to pay the cost of picking with prices at present levels.

That they will permit any appreciable amount of cotton to go to waste in the fields for want of ultimate pickings, few in the trade believe. They will continue to pick the matured cotton late into the new year as occasion offers, and the ginning season will merely be prolonged, as it was in 1920. Most people believe that the Government's crop has been made and that it will ultimately be harvested, although ginnings may make a poor showing for a time.

NEW YORK CENTRAL OWNERS

Forty-one Per Cent. of Stockholders Are Employed by Railroad.

Forty-one per cent. of the stockholders of the New York Central Railroad Company are employes of the New York Central lines, they having completed payments for stock offered the employes in 1925. There are 63,939 stockholders in all, of whom 26,704 are employed by the New York Central, the Michigan Central, the Big Four, the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie or other lines of the system.

These 26,704 employes have purchased 62,650 shares of New York Central stock, the par value of which is $6,265,000, and current market value more than $8,300,000. This is exclusive of stock bought outside the special stock purchase plan. The average holding of stock per shareholder is now sixty shares.

STEEL PRODUCTION SHOWS AN INCREASE

STOCKS BEING REPLENISHED

Tin Plate Mills Working to Meet Future Needs—Lighter Buying of Sheets.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 19.—There has been an increase in steel mill operations in the past two weeks, and this tends to confirm the opinion previously formed that the November decrease was not a seasonal matter. If so, a further and sharper decrease this month would be indicated. Support is given to the view stoutly put forth by some observers that for two or three months, from August or September through October, production and shipments of steel ran above the current consumption, whereby the November decline in production would be due to that influence.

The great question having been whether fundamental conditions as to building and industrial operations have so changed as to call for less steel, in the long run, or lighter mill operations are due to a natural year-end relaxation, a computation may be made comparing this year with last year. Production of steel ingots in the last five months of last year was at 2 per cent. greater rate than production in the first seven months. This year production in the last five months is running about 4 per cent. below the rate in the first seven months, making a total change of 6 per cent. If the theory be correct that general activity has dropped to a lower plane, this 6 per cent., or something like it, is the measure of the change according to statistical information now available.

Output Up to 83 Per Cent.

The computation made is based on the production statistics, with an estimate for the present month at a 75 per cent. mill operating rate, or about 3,500,000 tons of ingots for the month. The October report had shown 88 per cent. and the November report 80 per cent. Last week the Steel Corporation ran at 81 per cent. and this week at about 83 per cent. Probably independents have not done as well, but the general average in the fortnight cannot have been much below 80 per cent. The Steel Corporation has a slight advantage over independents at this time, in anticipatory rolling of rails.

The pipe mills in general are replenishing stocks, in both merchant pipe and oil country goods. It is normal for pipe mills to carry stocks and to ship from stock, making for stock. In the active season there were no stocks, mills being behind in deliveries of oil country goods.

"January Expansion" Not in Sight.

Such production, in excess of current consumption, in rails, tubular goods and tin plate, would easily account for the use of 300,000 to 400,000 tons of ingots this month, possibly more, out of a production of say 3,500,000 tons of ingots, i. e., 10 per cent. or more. Such operations are natural and normal and are a convenience to both mills and customers.

Although the middle of the month has been passed, there is no evidence of any extra buying such as occurred one year ago and still more markedly two years ago during the "Coolidge boom," to indicate a large increase in mill operations in January. In all probability some sort of an upswing will occur, but there is no indication now that it will carry mills to the 89 per cent. operating rate they showed for last January.

EXPLAIN TEXTILE FULL TIME

MANCHESTER, England, Dec. 19 (AP).—Reason for abandonment of "short time" in that section of the cotton mills using American yarns is given in a circular to the trade, which complains of the disloyalty of an increasing number of firms in accepting orders at prices under the basic prices fixed by the Federation. These orders can only be executed by working the mills extra time.

The re-establishment of full time was recommended by the short-time organization committee of the Federation of Master Cotton Spinners. It was decided upon several days ago. It will bring to an end the practice of curtailing American yarn spinning, which has been in effect almost continuously since 1920.

FIRST TRUST AND SAVINGS BANK, CHICAGO, TRUSTEE

Organization and Business: The Central West Public Service Company, incorporated under the laws of the State of Delaware, will be a consolidation of the public utilities formerly owned with those of the Platte Valley Power and Light Co. and its subsidiaries, the Platte Valley Power Company of Nebraska and the Dakota Public Service Company, and other independent public utilities.

The Company will own all the capital stocks (except directors' qualifying shares and negligible minority interests in three subsidiaries) and all outstanding funded debt of these subsidiary companies.

The Central West Public Service Company will own and operate through subsidiaries, public utility properties serving 129 cities and towns in Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota, South Dakota and North Dakota. The population of the communities served is approximately 150,000 and the total number of customers about 32,500. Included in the Company's territory are Norfolk and Columbus, Nebraska; Rapid City and Hot Springs, South Dakota; and Jamestown, North Dakota.

Security: In the opinion of counsel, the First Lien Collateral Bonds will be a direct obligation of the Company and upon completion of the financing will be secured by a first lien on all the bonds, mortgage notes and capital stocks to be outstanding (except directors' qualifying shares and negligible minority interests) of all subsidiaries herein referred to (except two small companies), all of which will be deposited and pledged with the Trustee. No additional stocks or bonds may be issued by said subsidiary companies unless deposited with the Trustee under the First Lien Collateral Indenture.

Valuation: The properties have been examined by Messrs. Hagenah & Erickson, Engineers, whose preliminary report shows that the fair depreciated value of these properties as of August 1, 1926, was in excess of $8,883,993. The two subsidiaries whose securities are unpledged have a combined depreciated value of only $76,960, as reported by the same engineers. The depreciated value represented by collateral securing these Bonds is therefore $8,807,033. The First Lien Collateral Bonds will represent about 45% of this depreciated value of $8,807,033.

Earnings: The consolidated earnings of the subsidiaries to be owned by the Central West Public Service Company available for interest, depreciation and Federal Taxes, for the year ended July 31, 1926, were $540,847.22. These earnings are 2.46 times the maximum annual interest charges of $220,000 on the First Lien Collateral Bonds.

Management: The entire outstanding Common Stock (except directors' qualifying shares) of the Central West Public Service Company will be owned by the McGraw Electric Company. The management is in the hands of men who are known for their successful experience in the administration and the engineering, operating and commercial development of public utilities.

All legal matters in connection with this issue are under the direction of Messrs. Newman, Poppenhusen, Stern & Johnston, Chicago and Mr. H. B. Carter, Sioux City. Audits by Messrs. Smart, Gore & Co. and Wm. Bryden & Co., Certified Public Accountants. These Bonds are offered when, as and if issued, subject to approval of counsel. It is expected that temporary receipts of the company calling for the delivery of temporary or definitive Bonds will be delivered on or about December 28, 1926.

WHEAT IS LOWER THE WORLD OVER

PRICE MOVEMENT DOUBTFUL

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—Activity in stocks in Wall Street has detracted from speculation in grain and practically all of the large grain traders are more interested in stock market fluctuations, which makes the grain market a secondary affair. The world's wheat situation is regarded by many as bearish, with an excess of supplies over requirements as compared with last year. The impression is that until there is a decided change in speculative sentiment and trading that the grain markets are not likely to do very much in the way of advancing and maintaining the gains for any length of time.

Wheat futures in the leading markets are 15 cents to almost 30 cents lower than at this time last year, which discounts a great deal of the bearishness, but this is not taken into consideration by the traders a majority of whom can see nothing but lower prices, large supplies and a limited demand, with Europe dictating prices.

Chicago and New Wheat Crop.

Chicago has comparatively light stocks of cash wheat, especially of hard Winters, which are 3 to 5 cents over the December for car lots of fresh receipts, with red Winters 1 cent over. Cash handlers who study this situation closely are friendly to the market, while exporters at the seaboard as a whole are understood to be bearish because of the large Canadian stock unsold, a considerable percentage of which may not move until next Spring.

The world is understood to have a sufficient surplus to prevent a decided advance in values unless something happens to the Winter wheat crop, which is likely, as zero to below zero weather prevails over the greater part of the Winter wheat area, and this is likely to result in serious injury to the plants.

Doubt Much Lower Prices.

It is the belief of those who are bullish that with no pressure of cash wheat from the country, and with millers holding the bulk of the cash wheat, there is no use looking for the low prices predicted by the bears until holders in the interior, as well as millers, decide to unload.

December closed Saturday at $1.39, May $1.39⅝ to $1.39¾, and July $1.32⅝ to $1.32¾, showing gains of ⅛ to 1½ cents for the week.

Primary receipts of wheat for the week this year, 4,911,000; previous week 5,671,000; last year 8,645,000. Corn receipts this year 5,043,000; previous week 4,971,000; last year 1,446,000. Wheat shipments for week this year 3,255,000; previous week 5,840,000; last year 4,243,000. Corn shipments this week 1,765,000; last week 1,915,000; last year 2,893,000.

THE LARGER WHEAT SUPPLY.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—One analysis made here of the North American wheat situation indicates a remaining exportable surplus of 258,000,000 bushels from Canada, or 58,000,000 bushels more than last year, and the United States and Canada have around 325,000,000 bushels, or about 100,000,000 bushels more than last year. Argentina and Australia are estimated to have 65,000,000 bushels more wheat for export than last year, while European stocks are understood to be small.

In the United States there is no pressure of cash wheat in any of the cash markets, and Kansas City, which has the largest stock of any market in the country, is trading in cash wheat at a premium over December with the December over the May. This is in the face of estimated supplies back in the country materially larger than last year and with a limited milling demand.

COMMODITY PRICES.

Majority of Cash Articles Reveal Forward Swing—Some Declines Noted in Metals.

Trading in last week's cash markets revealed a majority of the articles had improved upon their levels in the preceding week, nine of the subjoined list of twenty-five articles making gains; six were lower, while ten remained steady and unchanged.

Fluctuations appeared in all groups, the foodstuffs, metals, textiles and miscellaneous. In the grains, wheat, rye, flour and oats advanced, the last named to a new high. In the groceries, coffee yielded to a new low, and in the dairy products eggs regained a small fraction of their recent decline. Lard was heavy in the provision group.

Metals appeared generally unsettled, lead and copper sagging, while tin alone advanced. Cotton and silk, in the textiles, went higher, but printcloths dropped to a new low. Rubber turned strong near the weekend, and appeared the strongest in the miscellaneous list.

BERNET WILL RESIGN TODAY

CLEVELAND, Dec. 19 (AP).—John J. Bernet, whose selection as President of the Erie Railroad was announced last Friday, will resign his position as President of the Nickel Plate Railroad to devote full time to his new duties, he announced tonight. His resignation will be presented to the directors of the Nickel Plate when they meet tomorrow.

Mr. Bernet will become actively engaged as President of the Erie the first of the year. Although his offices will be in New York he plans to retain his home here. With the exception of his Secretary, Robert J. Rowman, no other members of his present staff will be taken to the new organization, he said.

Walter L. Ross, senior Vice President of the Nickel Plate, is regarded as a likely successor to Mr. Bernet. The directors refused to discuss a successor until Mr. Bernet has formally resigned.

TRADE IN MID-WEST MAKES NEW RECORD

STEEL ACTIVITY INCREASES

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—Holiday trade is the largest known and is said by retailers to be for a greater variety of goods than usual, being well balanced, as it covers all sections in retail and department stores. Mail-order houses and wholesalers of toys, jewelry and novelties are having an unusual run of rush orders to replenish broken stocks of interior retailers. In staples jobbers are getting a good run of orders for small lots, but as inventories are at hand the desire is to go slow. In spite of this, sales aggregated the same as recent weeks and last year.

An outstanding feature in the steel trade is the increased activity on the part of railroads in the market for cars, with inquiries for upward of 35,000, of which 14,000 are said to be figured on and orders for 3,500 were placed recently. These orders represent around 450,000 tons of steel, which is an encouraging feature for the first quarter of 1927. Track supplies are also being inquired for, with a fair tonnage placed.

Immediate business in finished steel represents a fair tonnage to fill out the requirements of consumers who underestimate their wants for this month. Western mills are operating at around 80 per cent. capacity, with the leading independents at 85 per cent. Structural material and pig iron are coming in for more attention for the first quarter of 1927. Implement and automobile interests are indicating a disposition to specify more freely after the new year.

Cold weather increased the consumption and movement of coal, but the market in general was easy. Building operations have been largely suspended because of low temperatures.

A good credit situation prevails here and throughout the West. The failure of twenty-three banks in Northwestern Iowa one day and the resumption of the majority of them two days later has brought about reorganization and the cleaning up of a large amount of frozen credit. So far this month there has been no undue enlargement in borrowings for settlements, apparently the banks being in a position to furnish all funds necessary without seeking aid from the Federal Reserve Bank. This is indicated by the small number of bills discounted, with a moderate gain in loans and gold reserves and a good increase in deposits.

Ratio of reserves dropped to 66.4, compared with 68.9 the previous week, 66.3 last year [illegible] two years ago.

PROVISIO[illegible] WAVERS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—Limited speculative interest prevails in the provision market, with holders of lard liquidating on strong spots and shorts taking profits on every break. High prices for lard are not regarded as likely by the trade so long as cottonseed oil is abundant at low prices, the Government report issued on Saturday being especially bearish on both oil and lard.

Supplies of lard in Chicago's market are not heavy for this season, neither is the output of packing houses, but there is a sufficiency for all the trade requirements, both domestic and export, for the present. January lard finished at $11.92½ and May at $12 to $12.50, the latter going to a premium of 20 cents over May, while the January closed 12½ cents lower, at $11.92½, with a loss of 12½ cents for the week. May closed at $12 to $12.50, a gain of 5 cents. Short ribs were offered sparingly and gained 10 to 30 cents for the week, with January $13.55 at the close. Clear bellies were up 50 cents to $14.50 at the finish.

STABLE PRICES FACTOR IN 'STEEL DIVIDEND'

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 19.—Steel prices in the past year, and indeed for a year and a half past, have been remarkably steady, and unprecedently so considering the strenuous competition, which not been relaxed at any time. This stability is now standing a further test.

This allignment of steel sellers in support of prices was undoubtedly one of the points that moved the management of the Steel Corporation to make the decision announced last Thursday afternoon, to recommend a 40 per cent. increase in the common shares outstanding, to be distributed as a stock dividend. In the past the steel industry used to have bad spells when it suffered from the combination of severe decreases in demand and similarly severe declines in prices. Recent records show much more steadiness in demand, and if prices can be held dips are relatively unimportant.

Neither from the agricultural implement nor the automobile trade is steel demand picking up much. After allowing for seasonal variation, production of automobiles and trucks is running below the rate to be expected from the pace of the first nine months of the year, which was particularly strong in September. January may bring an increase in automobile production over this month, but with this month a light one the increase will count for little.

In fabricated structural steel and in freight cars the steel trade has digested bad news and is getting better news now. Structural steel lettings turned light for September, October and November, while in the past fortnight bookings reported run fully 50 per cent. above the old pace, which was a satisfactory one. Mill shipments to fabricating shops have run lighter in the past few weeks, yet this made little impress on steel production as a whole.

In the case of freight cars, the shops virtually ran out of work some time ago, and mill shipments to them have been light, except for repair work. Now there is inquiry for 35,000 to 40,000 cars. The orders are not in hand by any means, and it is no secret that the railroads will insist on very close prices, otherwise the buying will be strung out. In the past week the Chesapeake & Ohio bought 2,000 seventy-ton hopper-bottom gondolas.

COTTON MOVEMENT LIGHTER

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 19.—The movement of the cotton crop to market last week showed a marked falling off from preceding weeks, although still running ahead of last year. The total brought into sight was 610,772 bales, against 718,927 bales last week and 582,361 bales last year. The comparatively small movement was attributed mainly to the very bad weather which has prevailed. Nevertheless the amount of American cotton in sight has continued to gain and is now 6,609,400 bales, against 4,993,584 last year.

The good exports continue to be the only encouraging statistical feature. Last week the exports totaled 385,908 bales, against 292,957 bales for the corresponding week last year. The excess in exports this season to date over last season for the corresponding period is now 628,925 bales.

CUDAHY PROFITS A RECORD.

Net for Year $4,052,780, an Increase of More Than $1,000,000.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19 (AP).—Cudahy Packing Company's earnings are more than $1,000,000 over those of a year ago, and constitute the best 12 months' total in the history of the company.

E. A. Cudahy, Chairman of the Directors, will issue a statement tomorrow, showing that net income for the year ending Oct. 30, was $4,052,780. After dividends on $2,000,000 of 6 per cent. preferred stock and $6,550,500 of 7 per cent. preferred, this is equal to $16.34 a share on the basis of the 212,495 shares of $100 common stock outstanding during the year. These figures compare with net earnings of $2,792,357 in the year ended Oct. 30, 1925, or $10.41 a share on common stock according to the same basis.

Cudahy's 1926 balance sheet reveals the company as having a total surplus in excess of $10,000,000.

SPINNERS STAY OUT OF COTTON MARKET

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 19.—The main depressing factor in the cotton market during the past week has been the lack of demand for spot cotton. Spinners, both domestic and foreign, have stayed out of the market, evidently with the belief that they will be able to cover their needs later on at lower prices. Spot houses complain that they not only have no demand to report for the actual, but they have even been without inquiries for cotton. Moreover, spot cotton has been on a tenderable basis during the week, and there has been hesitation to buy contracts, for fear that any advance would bring cotton that was not wanted.

One of the features of the week was the rather liberal consumption total of lint cotton issued by the census bureau for November. The figure, 583,950 bales, consumed by domestic mills during the past month, exceeded both the preceding month of October and the total for November last year.

Despite this rather liberal consumption, mill takings of American cotton so far this season, showed on Friday an excess of only 144,000 bales. This moderate gain in mill takings does not bear out the hope of a total consumption by the world for the present season of 16,000,000 bales or more. The mill takings for the past week were particularly disappointing, as they totaled only 452,000 bales, according to Secretary Hester, as compared with 505,000 bales last week and 520,000 bales last year.

Central Power Stock Sold.

Howe, Snow & Bertles, Inc., and their associates have sold 17,500 shares of 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock of the Central Power and Light Company, which is controlled by the Middle West Utilities Company. In the four months to Oct. 31 the company's electric customers increased 12.4 per cent., its gas customers 5.8 per cent., and its water customers 9.4 per cent.

ZERO WEATHER BAD FOR WINTER WHE[illegible]

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—Zero weather [illegible] slightly above over the greater [illegible] of the Winter wheat belt, [illegible] down well into the Southwest, is [illegible] pected to have hurt the Winter [illegible] as there has been little snow [illegible] except in parts of Northwestern [illegible] Western Kansas and Southern [illegible] braska and Colorado. There has [illegible] a little snow in the northern [illegible] of the belt, where the acreage of Winter wheat is not large. Such weather creates apprehensions of damage to the crop, but the extent cannot be determined for some time.

It is expected that the Government report due Dec. 21 will show more [illegible] 39,000,000 acres seeded last Fall, [illegible] will not show increases expected [illegible] early forecasts made by the Government. Condition in the Southwest [illegible] erages high and in the Middle West fair. Last year on Dec. 1 it was [illegible] and the ten-year average is 84.4.

Corn husking has made fair progress being delayed in some sections by the cold weather, while in others low temperatures were favorable for getting into the fields. More corn is still in the fields than at this time for years. Recent wet weather has damaged quality and caused moulding. [illegible] value of a considerable percentage of this season's crop is poor. At the same time new grain that has come to market is grading fairly well.

$6,000,000 ON WAY FOR TOBACCO MEN

Second Payment on 1925 Crop to Be Made to Growers in Middle of January.

$150,000,000 SINCE 1921

Special to The New York Times.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Dec. 19.—Tobacco growers of seven States are to have a melon of their own cut in the next two or three weeks.

Preparations for a second payment on the 1925 tobacco crop of its members, to be made about the middle of January, are being made by the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association, James C. Stone, its President and general manager, has announced. The payment, which will equal 50 per cent. of the advance paid on the 1925 crop at the time of delivery, will amount to approximately $6,000,000. Secretary B. P. Anderson had started work today on the calculations so as to get the checks to the growers at the earliest possible time.

With this distribution the growers will have received a total of more than $150,000,000 on the 869,000,000 pounds of tobacco they delivered to the association in the crop years of 1921 to 1925, inclusive, and will have received two payments on each of the crops of 1923 to 1925, the crops of 1921 and 1922 having been paid for in full.

Mr. Stone said that additional distributions would be made as soon as the funds from the sale of tobacco warranted, and that he was receiving many inquiries from manufacturers and dealers for the re-dried tobaccos of the association which have been greatly reduced by the sales of the last fifty days, totaling approximately 55,000,000 pounds. Almost all of the tobacco of the 1923, 1924 and 1925 crops of the association is high grade leaf, of which there seems to be very little, according to reports from all parts of Burley district, in the 1926 crop.

The amount paid on the 1925 crop on its delivery was $12,241,064.74. The total paid on the 1921 crop was $23,449,352.07 and on the 1922 crop $49,426,795.53. The association paid on advance of $21,412,827.36 when the 1923 crop was delivered, and a second payment on that crop amounted to $12,426,131.87. On the delivery of the 1924 crop the association paid $15,275,526.10 and the second payment made on the twenty-nine grades of the crop, which then had been sold out, totaled $10,680,714.73.

The total payments made on all the crops delivered to the association up to the present time is $144,912,412.40, and the payment of the 50 per cent. of the advance on the 1925 crop will bring the total to $151,032,945.97. This is an average of $17.37 a hundred pounds on all the tobacco delivered to the association of the first five crops.

HINES BECOMES HEAD OF COTTON INSTITUTE

Former Director General of Railroads Will Direct Development of the Industry.

Walker D. Hines, former Director General of Railroads in the Wilson Administration, has been named President of the Cotton-Textile Institute, Inc., it was announced yesterday. Mr. Hines's acceptance is effective at once, but it will be some months before he will take active charge of the affairs of the Institute.

"The selection of Mr. Hines for this office was the result of a very thorough and widespread canvass to secure the services of a man of broad vision, constructive achievement and enthusiasm for the work which the Cotton-Textile Institute has undertaken," the Executive Committee's announcement read in part. "The nation-wide outlook which Mr. Hines obtained as Director General of Railroads, his experience in composing differences between European countries after the war, and the broad and varied character of his law practice and railroad affiliations, both before and since the war, have added to his qualifications for this undertaking."

"I have been profoundly impressed by the objects of the Cotton-Textile Institute and by its promise of opportunities for constructive effort. The laws affecting cooperative action by business interests leave available many methods for useful and helpful collaboration which will not only aid the cotton mill industry itself, but will promote the interests of all classes of the public affected by the prosperity of that industry, and the Institute's work is to be along these wholesale lines.

"The Institute is formed to promote the progress and development of the cotton industry through studying the manufacture and marketing of cotton products and informing the trade and the public as to the results."

LIVE STOCK PRICES VARY.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—Yearling steers at $14 to $14.35 in Chicago were 25 cents higher than the previous week's best price, with a general demand for beef steers at 50 to 75 cents advance. Arrivals were 75,000 in Chicago, a shade more than last year. The average of all beef steers was $10.50, or the same as the previous week and 90 cents over last year and $2.90 above the five-year average.

Cold weather checked the marketing of hogs, but packers are strong in their belief that there will be larger supplies in the near future. The close was 15 cents lower than a week ago. The top on Saturday was $11.75 and the week's average $11.40, a drop of 35 cents from the previous week. This year's average is 80 cents higher than a year ago.

Fat lambs lost $1 this week and were the lowest since 1923. The top at the close was $12.50, an average of $12.20, a loss of 35 cents for the week and almost $4 from last year. Feeders have overstocked the market with sheep and lambs and a drop in prices is the result.

Sheep averaged 15 cents lower at $5.75 and compared with $8.25 as the average last year. Receipts were unusually heavy, 111,700, or 40,000 more than last year.

Estimated receipts at Chicago for the coming week are: Cattle, 58,000; hogs, 170,000; sheep, 85,000. Receipts last year were: Cattle, 40,584; hogs, 138,864, and sheep, 51,664.

NEW CORN MOVING MORE FREELY TO THE MARKET

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—Country holders of corn are more disposed to sell and new corn is beginning to move freely, as it usually does at this season. Low grades are selling from 4 cents to 17 cents under December. Nearly all of the new corn coming in shows more or less injury. With December corn around 74 cents present discounts return very little to the farmer.

The big stocks of corn in Chicago stand out as a bear factor, despite the comparatively low prices, with around 2½ to 4 cents under last year for futures. December corn closed Saturday at 76⅝ cents, May 81⅝ cents and December 84⅝ cents, with net losses for the week of ⅝ to 1¼ cents.

Speculators have taken hold of oats on the theory that the crop is 230,000,000 bushels less than last year, and there are prospects of a further reduction in the final returns. Prices show net gains of 1 to 1⅜ cents for the week, with December 46⅝ cents, May 50⅝ to 50⅝ cents and July 49 cents, or about the highest week-end of the season. No. 3 white oats on track are scarce, being 4 to 6 cents over December, and No. 3 white ½ to 2 cents premium. Choice old oats are held firmly and will be wanted for seed.

Tin Falls 85 Shillings a Ton, Causing Active Trade—Lead Is Higher.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—In the rubber market during the past week plantation grades opened steady, but closed quiet.

First crepe spot and December sold from 1s 6¾d to 1s 6⅞d per pound and sellers; smoked sheet spot and December from 1s 6¾d to 1s 6⅞d and value; January, from 1s 6⅞d to 1s 6½d and buyers; January-March, from 1s 6½d to 1s 6⅞d and value; April-June, from 1s 7⅜d to 1s 7¼d to 1s 7½d and value.

In the tin market the East reported 375 tons sold at £307 5s, c. i. f., a fall of 85 shillings. The market here opened lower, with three months dealt in at £296 10s. Values became steadier and business active at the reduced rates. At the close, cash was in keen request and the market closed steady, though on balance cash was 65s and three months 37s 6d lower. Sales were 600 tons.

Quotations: Cash at £307 10s to £307 to £307 15s; December, £306 15s; February, £301 to £301 10s; March, £296, and three months, £296 10s to £297 15s to £298 5s. The settlement price was £307 10s.

First Mortgage Bonds and Convertible Preference Stock to Be Issued.

The recently announced change of control in the Schulze Baking Company will be financed through an issue of first mortgage bonds and an issue of convertible preference stock, the latter to be convertible at any time, share for share, into common stock. Spencer Trask & Co. and H. M. Byllesby & Co. will head the group offering the securities.

R. L. Nafziger of Kansas City will be President and General Manager of the company. In twenty years he built ten plants, acquired about two years ago by the Purity Bakeries Corporation, which now does a business in excess of $7,000,000 a year. Mr. Nafziger was a Vice President of Purity Bakeries and resigned from that company to join the Schulze organization. The latter organization operates twelve plants in Chicago, Peoria and Springfield, Ill.; Kansas City, Cincinnati, Omaha, Detroit and Grand Rapids, Mich., and Des Moines.

PIG IRON MARKET DULL.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 19.—The valley pig iron market has continued very dull, partly because consumers of merchant iron in general are far from busy, and partly because of suspicions that prices would not hold, the boom in coke being over. Recently Valley furnaces receded from the $20 asking price on foundry iron, which had never been supported by much actual business, getting back to $19. Even this is considered high by consumers.

The Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company has set furnacemen to figuring, by inquiring for first quarter iron, and already it is understood that some furnaces would take $18.50 if they could get a fair sized order.

FUR DRIVE HALF WAY TO $1,000,000 GOAL

WALKER PRAISES WORKERS

280 Campaigners to Meet Today to Open Final Drive to Reach the Quota for Chest by Jan. 1.

The Charity Chest of the Fur Industry, for which a goal of $1,000,000 has been set, has passed the half-way mark, according to announcement at a dinner at the Hotel Pennsylvania last evening. Pledges amounting to $501,404 have been received, according to Motty Eitington, who presided. The announcement was received with cheers by the 400 men and women present.

Mayor Walker, on his way to be initiated into the Elks, was a guest and in a brief address congratulated the industry for "assuming a responsibility that would otherwise fall upon the city and its taxpayers."

"Governments have a tendency to become cold," said the Mayor. "They are inclined to neglect God's work at times. As Chief Executive of New York I wish, for the city, to thank and congratulate you for the fine thing you are doing for the fine people of the finest city in the world."

A whirlwind drive to bring the total nearer the goal will open today with a meeting of the 280 workers at noon at the Fur Merchants' Club, 224 West Thirtieth Street. A reassignment of prospects will be made and the final attempt will be started to double the total of 1,416 pledges which was announced last evening. This is the third year of the chest's career, the total in 1924 having been $472,000 and $482,000 last year. The drive will close Jan. 1.

Groups reporting last evening showed the furriers, including proprietors and members of firms, to be leading with 881 pledges and $470,316 pledged. The women's division, wives of firm members and proprietors, followed with 200 pledges and $26,680. Other groups were: Ladies' Auxiliary, employes of furriers' offices, 220 pledges, $2,275 pledged; Salesmen's and Buyers' Club, 93 pledges, $1,253 pledged; miscellaneous, 22 pledges, $880 pledged.

To stimulate interest, Michael Hollander, President, gave $1,000 for the winners in an essay competition on the benefits of the work. Winners of the larger prizes, employes of the industry, were announced last evening as follows: $250, Lillian Fried; $200, Jack Blend; $150, Marie Levinsky; $100, H. Bielfeld; $65, Philip Besser; $50, Estelle Baum.

HOSPITAL EXPANSION PLANNED BY U. OF P.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 19.—Plans for the expansion of the medical school and hospital of the University of Pennsylvania into what is expected to be the largest and most perfectly equipped medical centre in the world were given out tonight by Dr. Alfred Stengel, Professor of Medicine at the University.

A program involving millions of dollars will be discussed by university officers and prominent medical men and educators at a dinner and conference here on Jan. 10, to which 1,200 invitations have been issued. Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, President of the Carnegie Foundation; Dr. Hubert Work, Secretary of the Interior, and Josiah H. Penniman, President of the university, will speak at the conference.

Dr. Stengel said the program involved the erection of new buildings, establishment of numerous foundations, clinics and hospitals for research and observation of every type of disease, and the introduction of revolutionary methods in hospital isolation.

Dr. Stengel made no estimate of the exact sum required to carry out the program, but it is agreed that it will run into many millions of dollars. Fulfillment of the complete plan will be a matter of years, but it is hoped to begin immediate work toward four goals partly made possible through gifts already received. Efforts will be made, it is understood, to bring to the university recognized leaders in every branch of medicine and surgery as Faculty members and lecturers.

A new departure in hospital methods on a large scale will be introduced with the establishment of an "out patient" department, in which persons may receive treatment for certain periods every day and continue at their work, instead of entering the hospital for long stays.

Another objective is the erection of suitable buildings to house clinics of every type, each separate medical and surgical specialty to be presided over by its chief, who will be the senior professor that subject in the medical school.

Plans call for a fireproof hospital with 1,000 beds, a staff of 100 internes and 500 nurses. This, it was said, would do away with most of the present buildings of the University Hospital, except the maternity building an dthe J. William White surgical pavilion. An administratino building of twelve stories, also to contain 400 beds, is to be the central unit of the proposed new group.

Dr. Stengel said the institution planned to establish a "medical press" to issue pamphlets on the latest developments in medicine and surgery, to pass upon the authenticity or falsity of medical discoveries, and to offer general medical information to the public.

No "medical trust" would be involved in the hospital scheme, it was emphasized. Although the central idea is the treatment of the "middle man" who does not wish to go to a charity ward and feels he cannot afford other hospital treatment, most of the patients will be sent to the University Hospital direct by their family physicians.

VIEWS ON NARCOSAN TOLD BY ADDICTS

ONE NOW ABLE TO WALK

Ex-Soldier Says He Doesn't Want Drugs Any More—All Condemn Other "Cures."

Prisoners on Welfare Island undergoing treatment for drug addiction told a reporter yesterday just what they thought about narcosan. Some of them agreed with Dr. Louis I. Harris, Commissioner of Health, in that they described it as "torture." Many of them praised it, thus agreeing with Supervising Warden Henry O. Schleth, who favored the new treatment, and with Alexander S. Horovitz, biochemist, who originated it. Most of those interviewed had undergone one or more previous "cures." Attendants at the Department of Correction Hospital were unanimous in endorsing narcosan.

The first patient interviewed was a war veteran who was committed on Oct. 14 last by Magistrate Hirshfield after he had written a letter begging the city to give him a cure. He displayed none of the marked symptoms of a drug addict.

"When I came here I was stooped over. I couldn't stand up straight," he said. "Now I can walk."

He said that before narcosan treatment he could "never get the stuff out of his mind. Now I don't think about it. You give me some and I don't want it."

Another ex-addict was brought in. He was a tall, well-built man of about 48 years, formerly a musician. He said:

"I took a reduction treatment at Matteawan. That is where they keep cutting you down on the junk. I also took a 'cold turkey' treatment, where they cut you off entirely. I suffered till I was weak in the head. All I thought all the time was 'Give me some dope.'

"It isn't that way now. I don't want it any more. I am through for good."

Next the reporter, escorted by a nurse, visited the women's section. Last March, it was said, there were ordinarily between thirty-five and forty women taking treatment. Yesterday there were six. One woman said that while all the cures she had taken—and they were many—were "terrible," this one was not quite so bad the initial suffering only lasted two or three days. She said that when she completed the narcosan treatment she was finished with narcotics for ever.

In an adjoining cell another woman said that she had taken two previous "cures" and they were torture. She said she had no desire for drugs now. Three other women said they had taken other cures but that they suffered less during the narcosan treatment and apparently the treatment had cured their desire for drugs.

Nineteen men were in one ward that the reporter visited. Two inmates, one a former officer in the merchant marine, the other a former insurance salesman, both of whom had been "cured" previously, declared that narcosan had "really cured" them now. One said: "I don't need the junk anymore." The other said: "Drugs are out of my system. I don't want them any more."

Only one out of all interviewed said that he had ever heard a patient cry, as Commissioner Harris charged, "Kill me" or "Put me out of my misery."

'BOB' LOSING IN COLLEGES.

BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 19.—Girls at Wellesley, Smith and Simmons Colleges are reported to have become bored with bobbed hair and are letting their tresses grow. Already a majority of the students, it is said, are to be seen in the "growing-out" process, and many of the others are delaying until after the holidays.

In place of the bob, the "psyche" knot is finding favor. It is irreverently called a "bathtub" effect, the hair being slicked back from the face and wound in a low knot at the back.

At Wellesley many of the girls are letting only the sides grow, keeping the neck clipped, while at Smith, a prevailing style is to retain the short, trimmed sideboards, leaving the ears exposed and training the rest of the hair back under a "pug."

MOTOR FEATS RECORDED.

A record of performance by Wright air-cooled airplane motors, the type of motor used by Commander Richard E. Byrd in his flight to the pole, has been compiled by the Wright Aeronautical Corporation. It shows that American planes equipped with these motors flew 1,774,268 miles in 1926, with only three forced landings due to failure of a motor part. One forced landing was in a motor used in an experimental plane for test purposes and the other two were caused by high-speed flying close to the ground while dusting cotton fields and fruit trees.

The report has been sent to William P. MacCracken Jr., Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aviation, to be included in the review of commercial aircraft operations for 1926.

Big Apartments for Westchester.

Plans have been filed with Building Inspector Burden of Mount Vernon for a seven-story apartment house on Claremont Avenue near Elm, to cost close to $1,000,000. It will house 102 families. Work on five other apartment houses in Mount Vernon, aggregating in cost more than $4,000,000, is now being rushed. In Yonkers Marcos Singer is going to build an apartment house to house 220 families. In New Rochelle two new apartment houses to cost $1,800,000 are now being erected.

CHILDREN'S SOCIETY MOVES.

Bronx Organization Takes Possession of Its New 3-Story Home.

The Bronx Children's Society, which had occupied the two upper floors of 356 East 137th Street since its establishment eleven years ago, yesterday took possession of its new building at Grand Concourse and McClelland Street.

The new building, a three-story structure, is of Colonial design to commemorate the gift of the land made by Mrs. Eva B. C. Hawkes, a direct descendant of Gouverneur Morris, on whose original estate the site lay. Dedication of the building will be deferred until Spring, when a tablet in memory of Mrs. Hawkes's daughter and a tablet in memory of John J. McKenna, whose contribution to the building fund was considerable, will be unveiled.

The new home is fireproof throughout and can accommodate 150 children and more if necessary.

Cold Water Dismays Hounds When Ice Gives Way.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 19.—Thomas Leod and James Kinneys reported that while they were skating on Croton Lake today they saw two large deer being chased across the lake by a pack of hunting dogs until the deer struck rubber ice and fell into the icy water.

When the dogs also broke through the ice, the cold water seemed too much for them and they swam back to the solid ice after floundering about for some time among the floes. The deer didn't seem to mind the cold water as they forced cakes of ice aside and finally reached the other shore and disappeared in the woodland.

Regular Stocks for Silk Sales.

In holding sales of silk fabrics it is preferable for retailers to mark down regular lines than to purchase special lots, in the opinion of a silk manufacturer here. After the sale, he added, the store can put the remainder of the unsold merchandise back into the regular stock at the usual mark-up and fill in on colors. This manufacturer says that customers have greater confidence in this type of sale. In addition, the salespeople can put more enthusiasm into their work, because they know the intrinsic value of the goods. Finally, according to the manufacturer, the store has a clean stock, with no broken assortment of colors which cannot be filled in and which cannot be readily disposed of.

Atlantic City Property Traded.

ATLANTIC CITY, Dec. 19.—A real estate deal involving $600,000 local and New York properties was made yesterday by Craig Wilkinson and I. B. Davidson, real estate brokers, 1,905 Atlantic Avenue. The Boardwalk frontage of 187 feet, between Seaside and New Hampshire Avenue valued at $400,000, was traded by Dr. Margaret Hill Nelson of this city to the Dorbin Realty Company, New York, for a five-story brick apartment house on Staten Island and $55,000 in cash.

COSMETICS HAVE HELPED.

Use of Them Said to Have Aided in Making Green Popular.

One of the principal factors in the growth of the present vogue for various shades of green in women's outer apparel and millinery was said here yesterday to be the increased use of cosmetics by American women. Heretofore, it was asserted, this color has not been generally popular.

"Until comparatively recently," said the man who advanced this theory, "it was practically impossible to get women in this country to take up green in a large way. The reason is simple, and it is because green is not a shade to be worn by a woman without a certain amount of color in her cheeks. Without this color, green has a tendency to make her look ghastly.

"In fact, green has heretofore been regarded as a blonde's color, natural blondes usually having sufficient red in their complexions to 'carry' this shade successfully. With the quite general use of cosmetics, especially rouge, green has now become available to any woman who wants to wear it."

HOPE SEEN IN TREATY.

1908 Compact Quoted in Review of Mexican Land Law Controversy.

The Foreign Policy Association has issued a bulletin reviewing the controversy over the Mexican land and oil laws between Mexico and the United States. The bulletin gives the history leading up to the passage of the land laws, their texts and extracts from the correspondence between Mexico and the United States State Department. In conclusion the bulletin says:

"If the basic questions of principle involved in the present controversy are not solved through direct negotiations, it is suggested in various quarters that Article 21 of the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo of 1848, confirmed in the convention of 1908 between the United States and Mexico, offers a means of justiciable settlement. Article 21 reads in part as follows:

"'A resort shall not * * * be had to reprisals, aggression or hostility of any kind * * * until the Government of that [country] which deems itself aggrieved shall have maturely considered in the spirit of peace and good neighborship whether it would not be better that such difference should be settled by the arbitration of commissioners appointed on each side or by that of a friendly nation. And should such course be proposed by either party, it shall be acceded to by the other unless deemed by it altogether incompatible with the nature of the differences or the circumstances of the case.'"

REFUSED OFFER FOR CASTLE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—How he curtly refused an offer from America to buy Hartlebury Castle the home of his predecessors for nearly 700 years, is related by the Bishop of Worcester in a history just issued by him. The castle is hallowed by the residence there of the martyrs Latimer and Hooper.

The history is dedicated to the Bishop of London and the Bishop of Worcester asks him to assure the people of America while he is visiting them that the castle is not for sale.

"Quite recently," he writes, "my legal secretary received an inquiry from an agent as to the price that would be accepted for it. He replied briefly that there was nothing doing. I don't mean to be bribed out of my heritage."

FOUR VESSELS ICE-LOCKED.

Three Steamers and a Collier Are Caught in Lake Erie.

DETROIT, Dec. 19 (AP).—Three lake steamers, the Berryton, G. N. Wilson and Collier No. 1, were ice-locked tonight near Amherstberg, Ontario, in the upper end of Lake Erie, and tugs were standing by while an ice crusher tried to free them. Approximately seventy-five men are aboard the vessels, but they are believed in no immediate danger.

Collier No. 1 left Toledo several days ago with coal for Port Colbourne, near Buffalo. The Berryton and G. N. Wilson are loaded with grain for Buffalo. The tugs Lutz and Michigan were sent out from Cleveland to assist the steamers, and the Harding and an ice-crushing car ferry were sent from here.

Little progress toward freeing the boats was made today. The Michigan broke her wheel and shaft and will have to be towed back to Cleveland. Moderating temperatures predicted for tomorrow are expected to aid in the rescue work.

TAXI INSURANCE TO GO UP.

Rates for Motor Trucks and Buses Also Will Rise Next Year.

Higher insurance rates will be paid next year by owners of motor trucks, motor buses and taxicabs. Announcement was made yesterday by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters that as the result of a three-year survey, which showed that motor trucks and commercial delivery wagons caused a larger number of deaths and injuries, proportionately, than private passenger cars, increased rates for public liability and property damage automobile insurance will go into effect early next year.

Rates on trucks and delivery wagons will be increased 7.6 per cent. for personal injury coverage and 8.4 per cent. for property damage coverage. In some places the rates will be higher or lower in proportion to past risks there.

On all motor buses, taxicabs and other vehicles carrying passengers for hire an increase of about 20 per cent. has been made in the premium for property damage insurance. The National Bureau states that the rapid development of motor bus transportation has presented a serious problem.

No fundamental changes in the rates for private passenger automobiles will be made. The committee of experts is now studying the risk on garages and automobile dealers in preparation for rate changes.

Christmas Gifts for the Blind.

The Woman's Club at the Lighthouse of the New York Association for the Blind will give a Christmas party tonight at the Lighthouse, 111 East Fifty-ninth Street, for more than 125 sightless women. The guests of honor will be eight blind women, some of who are more than 80 years of age.

An entertainment will be held in the assembly room and a supper will be served. A Christmas present will be given to each guest. Miss Anne Leagh, President of the club, and Miss Grace Keator are in charge of the arrangements.

Engineering Medals Awarded.

D. W. Brunton, consulting engineer of Denver, and Zay Jeffries, metallurgical engineer of Cleveland, will receive, respectively, the William Lawrence Saunders medal and the James Douglas medal, it was announced yesterday. The presentations will be made at the annual meeting of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers to be held here in February.

YEAR IN BUILDING A MASON-DIXON LINE

GREAT EXPANSION SEEN

What the Mason-Dixon line typifies on the political map of the United States the year 1926 will symbolize in an industry that, while looking toward a bigger and better future, would forget much of the past, writes Allen E. Beals in the current Dow Service Daily Building Reports.

Thumb-worn codes and standards of practices in the metropolitan district building construction industry have been liberally discarded in 1926, and yet not since the opening of the Brooklyn Bridge in May, 1883, has New York's building industry had prospects as big.

The Brooklyn Bridge first let New York building material men who were willing to haul heavy loads of construction commodities through the paveless or cobblestone-surfaced Brooklyn streets of that day.

Quite different is the promise held out by the opening of the Hudson vehicular tunnels with trans-New Jersey concrete-paved highways leading from the tunnel portals to centres of population many times greater than the 599,495 total of Brooklyn in the eighties.

New Jersey's 3,506,428 inhabitants are more than half the combined population of all five boroughs of New York, and its rated wealth of $11,794,189,000 represents potential building material equipment and appliance purchase in fair proportion to the volume annually called for in New York City. They are building in New Jersey's big cities skyscrapers that differ in no way in their requirement from similar buildings in New York. Private dwelling construction, however, may be more closely supervised.

Outside of mason material lines there is a widespread preparation going on among commodity, equipment and appliance distributers to get in line for some of this New Jersey business, and, it might as well be known, there is a corresponding aggressiveness on the part of New Jersey manufacturers of building material and equipment to get a foothold in New York City. They see a big saving in avoidance of lighterage fees and traffic delays of freight destined for building construction or equipment, with the opening of the tunnel.

Northern New Jersey is looking with some anticipation to the time when they can bridge the Hudson with building commodities and serve Bronx and Westchester Counties. By the same token the Bronx and Westchester building construction interests foresee wider trade opportunities.

The double-deck expressway connecting the New York portal of the Hudson tunnels with Bronx, Westchester and Southern Connecticut is another factor that is beginning to find expression in factory expansion, multi-family dwelling construction, churches, schools and business buildings, the latter particularly noticeable in large suburban cities within the last year.

The year 1926, moreover, will be notable as the time of epochal change, because of its past performances rather than the growth of trade opportunities. Since last December more genuine changes toward higher ethical practice and standard of doing business have been accomplished than in almost any similar period, and the finest thing about it all is that each trade has acted for itself and by itself in improving the conditions within its own field.

While only the mason material dealers, the face brick distributers and the paint jobbers have unitedly reached out for benefits similar to those that have been accomplished under the guidance of Charles L. Eidlitz for the electrical and structural steel trades, even that is more than New York City building construction industry has ever as spontaneously reached out for in a single year, excluding instances where they have organized for protection against wage crises. The completed work of 1926 along higher ethical lines in these trades augurs well for similar progress in 1927 and beyond.

The question now most frequently asked concerns itself with whether to build at once or wait. Construction work ought to get under way as soon as possible. Presidential election campaigns have had a tendency to tighten money. The year 1927 ought to be a free year for building financing before such influences, if any, interfere.

There is little likelihood of a general lowering of basic building material prices during 1927. More likely they will go up. Current levels have been held for a record-breaking period, but coal prices covering Spring delivery are already quoted at higher levels to building material manufacturers.

Wage costs appear to be safely fixed for the life of almost any kind of a building project that might be started before March, when the building season opens. At the same time, it is just as well for building investors and prospective projectors to bear in mind that organized labor's next drive is going to be for the five-day week, and while building trades employers are preparing to protest the further progress of this movement, the men seem to consider it as something certain to come.

National building construction is probably going to show a decline in both volume and value. Award of contracts, however, will indicate a gain greater than the loss of permits granted, but the disrupting, overexploited post-war building shortage finally takes its place in history with the passing of 1926.

DANCE IN AID OF HOSPITAL.

The annual reception and dance of the Ladies' Auxiliary of St. Vincent's Hospital for the benefit of the hospital's extension work will be held on the night of Dec. 28 in the grand ballroom suit of the Waldorf-Astoria.

Mrs. José M. Ferrer of 10 East Sixty-sixth Street heads the dance committee. Other member are Mrs. Peter McDonnell, Mrs. James P. Carey, Mrs. Bruno Benziger, Miss Teresa O'Donohue, Mrs. Constantin MacGuire, Miss Caroline Linherr, Mrs. John P. Gallagher and Miss Teresa Harrison. Miss Linherr, at the hospital, Seventh Avenue and Eleventh Street, has charge of tickets.
